From Our Own Correspondent.

ANDERSONVILLE NATURAL CEMETERY,
(NEAR THE ANDERSON STOCKADE,) GEORGIA,
Sunday, Oct. 22, 1865.

A short ride from Macon brought me to this celebrated village.

There is no other place in this broad republic so full of historic glory as this sacred spot. And the heart swells up in holy ecstacy as the eye looks upon that banner of beautiful blue, which waves in billows of red and white crested with stars, from the staff at the cemetery's centre.

"Above doth float their country's flag,—
Beneath, its champions sleep;
They died to save the nation's life,—
Let all that nation weep.

From east to west, from north to south,
This broad land o'er and o'er,
We'll sigh for those who died for us,
And love them evermore."

About a quarter of a mile north of the north end of the stockade or death prison, is the south entrance to this National Cemetery. The burial grounds, as surveyed, planned and inclosed by order of Gen. WILSON, Miss CLARA BARTON's party, &c., is a square, containing forty-seven acres. Entering the south gate, next the stockade, a broad carriage-way leads directly northward through the centre of the grounds, on either side of which are very many long rows of head-boards denoting the trenches where our dead are buried. A neatly graded pathway, at the foot of the entombed soldiers, runs the full length (several hundred feet) of each of these trenches, where the name painted on each board can be easily read by the passing visitor. These two solid, close-columned divisions of dead soldiery extend nearly to the flagstaff, which is in the centre of the grounds. A little to the right, are buried six men—I cannot call them soldiers—who were hung by our soldier-prisoners for murdering and robbing their comrades. The third and largest division of graves is located in the northeast corner, occupying several acres. The last head-board bears the number 12,848. Add to this 64 prisoners who died of small-pox, buried in another inclosure, the six criminals who were hung, and one negro soldier, and the total mortality of which we have any record amongst the soldiers of the Union is 12,919. Including 114 rebels, buried here, the grand total is 13,033.

The cemetery is undergoing a thorough cleansing, substantial fences are in process of completion, inclosing the whole grounds. A modicum of ornament is being added in the shape of architectural gates, etc. On a little white-painted board at the left of the main south entrance appears the following inscription:

On fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread;
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

Further along the wide carriage-way, toward the centre, on the right, we read:

Whether in the prison drear,
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place for man to die,
Is where he dies for man.

And on the left:

The hopes, the fears, the blood, the tears,
That marked the battle's strife,
Are now all crowned by victory,
That saved the nation's life.

Close to the flagstaff, from which floats the starry banner, at the central terminus of this broad carriage-way, is another inscription, running thus:

A thousand battle-fields have drank
The blood of warriors brave,
And countless homes are dark and drear
Thro' the land they died to save.

I append a list of the names of all the brave patriots from the State of New-York who suffered for their country the horrors of Andersonville Prison, and who died, rather than take the rebel oath and live. So long as history shall chronicle their glory, or the flag they defended wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave, let these heroes be honored and loved.

OUR HAVANA CORRESPONDENCE.

Matanzas and its Prison—Amnesty or Death in Mexico—The Empire and its Secret Foes—Military Colonies—Insurrection in Jamaica, &c.

HAVANA, Saturday, Oct. 21, 1865.

A singular incident at Matanzas has lately attracted public attention, and with reason; for if all that is boldly asserted is true, it must cause serious misgivings as to the security of life and property in our cities. A short time since, the Captain of the port of Matanzas was assaulted and robbed at night in the streets of that city, and, according to the newspaper, La Aurora, the robbers were two convicts who had got out of the prison that night, and after the robbery returned to its friendly shelter, pursued by the watchmen, who asserted that, although unable to find the fugitives, they had found the establishment in a state of great laxity of discipline, a door leading to the street unfastened, and many of the prisoners, instead of being in their wards, under lock and key, in a hall whence free egress was easy. The official in charge of the convicts there denied the truth of the report, asserting that the hall entered by the watchmen was not occupied as a prison, but by the laborers of the corporation, who were free. So the affair remained in doubt for a short time, but the correspondent of the Siglo now writes that the Chief of Police having placed some officers in ambush near the prison, in a short time they saw a prisoner emerge from that building. On being detained and examined more closely, he was found to be not in the prison dress, but wearing plain clothes, and armed with a bayonet; he declared that he had permission from the jailor. The watch was continued, but no others were caught; it may be that they smelt a rat. Since then, the Matanzas paper mentions that the Captain of the Port had pointed out one of the men who robbed him amongst the crowd of prisoners in the jail.

The system which was introduced in 1863, of having government inspectors of railroads and joint stock companies, appears to have been a failure, for the last mail brought out an order for its abolition. It must be confessed that no good seems to have been effected by the costly bureau established to protect the public, and especially shareholders, from the mismanagement of their capital. This vigilance will, in future, be exercised directly in the office of the chief Secretary.

The confession which the Emperor of Mexico makes, when announcing that the flight of his inflexible enemy from the country will leave no excuse to the Republicans for continuing the contest, is much commented upon here. "The cause which, with so much valor and firmness was maintained by Don BENITO JUAREZ," says the Imperial proclamation, and the words are attributed either to a chivalrous feeling of magnanimity, to astuteness in conciliating, or lastly to a confession of what it would be idle to deny; all these interpretations are given as the tone of thought inclines the speaker.

The threats of capital punishment to all who do not accept the amnesty by the 15th of November will probably only render the strife more deadly, if possible, and the subsequent stoppage of the railroad train to Vera Cruz, the death of the engineer, the arrest of the French officers and soldiers, and their subsequent murder, would seem to be a frightful taking up of the gauntlet thus hurled at the Republicans.

Whilst a force of 1,000 men meets with but little success in Oajaca, it is too much to assert that the contest is now over; and to increase the difficulties with which MAXIMILIAN struggles—"with valor and firmness," as he says of his rival—must be added the lukewarmness and even treachery of many of his own officials. The Republicans under MARTINEZ, in the district of Ajusco, fell into an ambuscade of the French, and were roughly handled. Amongst the prisoners was the secretary of the leader, with his correspondence. This led to the arrest of the District-Attorney of Tlalpam, who, disconcerted, at once confessed that he was an agent between MARTINEZ and the Republicans of the City of Mexico. The search of his house revealed the fact that he had a depot of arms, and moreover had imprisoned his wife, who had long been the victim of the cruelty of his two mistresses. Sent before a court-martial, he has doubtless expiated his treason with his life. But it is to be remarked that from the capital of the empire did MARTINEZ principally receive news, stores and money.

The Sociedad, on the same topic, declares that the Imperial officials at Sinaloa are not loyal to the government, and that Commissioner GAMBOA is not seconded in his efforts. The Nacion observes: "Nobody is ignorant that the enemies of order and public peace have their associates in all the cities, and even about the authorities; from these the guerrillas receive timely news, so as to avoid meeting the Imperial troops." This paper goes on to say that all the correspondence and papers they receive express fears at the rapid increase of barbarism and crime, which is concealed by a pretence of party spirit. It says there can be no doubt that the guerrillas are on the increase.

UGALDE, after his defeat, was put under arrest by MARTINEZ, but afterward released, and with the remains of his cavalry, marched toward Cardonal. Being pursued by the French, he sought refuge in the mountains near Ulapam, where, at the last news, he was surrounded. Nor was FRAGOSO less unfortunate, being defeated in Acambay.

SAUVAGE & Co. have received permission to construct a railroad from Mexico to Toluca, the grant being for fifty years, and the government subscribing for shares to the amount of $50,000.

Messrs. PRICE, HARRIS, PERKINS, HARDEMAN and ROBERTS are appointed Colonization Agents. The first three have left Mexico to visit Cordoba and belt of land which bounds the "Tierra Caliente." The two latter gentlemen have left for Tepic and the Pacific coast, in order to find eligible sites for colonies.

The Diario of Orizaba gives a very favorable account of the colony of Lieut. TOURVILLE, near Cordova. In spite of the wet weather, it is getting along famously. Fifty or sixty men are hard at work, and the kind behavior of the director has gained everybody's affection.

Two other officers of the French Legion propose to establish another military colony in Guanahuato, in the district to the northwest of San Luis de la Paz. They propose to have always a large armed force ready, and offer also, for a moderate remuneration, to keep the roads in repair, and escort either government or private convoys. By this means the government would be spared the expense of the rural guards who have hitherto done but little good.

A telegram from Santiago de Cuba announces that the negroes of Jamaica are in insurrection, and are besieging Kingston, which has at present only a garrison of 400 soldiers. Two war steamers have been sent from Santiago de Cuba to Kingston, to protect the inhabitants. The Havana newspapers of this morning have nothing on the subject; probably the telegram arrived too late for insertion, but the above I have on reliable authority, and I have no doubt of the accuracy of the fact.

LETTER FROM VERMONT.

Important Measures before the Legislature—The Militia Law—Taxing U. S. Bonds—The Agricultural College—A Railroad Quarrel.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Friday, Oct. 27, 1865.

Montpelier is deep down among the hills, so that it is sometimes said of it that it is located in the bottom of a cup. The State House stands against a hill about as high as its dome. The people of Montpelier think this a very fine location, while other towns in the State take a different view of it. It is the idea, so common in many States, that the capitol would be improved by moving it to some other place. Of late all are content to allow the capitol to remain, the contest having pretty much died away. The genial and hospitable character of the people of the place has had its share in bringing about this decision.

The present Legislature has three important questions before it. The first is to shape a militia law that will suit the people, or to decide that the law of last year shall not be changed. The law of last year provides for organizing and uniforming twelve regiments as a reserve force. Only one-half of each regiment, however, is imperative as its minimum, and to keep the regiments up to this point drafting is provided for, if there should fail to be volunteers enough at any time. It is found expensive and burdensome to keep up this force. Already about two hundred thousand dollars have been expended in organizing, uniforming, &c. The people do not like to bear what now seems to be an unnecessary burden. Petitions are coming in every day for a repeal or modification of the militia law.

The second important question is the familiar one, as to taxing United States bonds. Petitions praying for a law to tax bonds, and to tax the income of the bonds, are coming in from every part of the State, and a committee of one member from each county has been appointed to consider and report upon the right of the State to tax said bonds.

The third important question is "what to do with the Agricultural College?" The feud proves as difficult to dispose of in this State as in any other. Two years ago there was an arrangement made by which the College would have been located at Burlington, if the law in regard to it had not been repealed. Its repeal was brought about by the jealousy of other institutions and of other localities. Last year the Legislature put the matter in a shape that would locate the College in any county or town that would have the enterprise to raise $100,000 to pay for putting up the necessary buildings, and other similar expenses. Rutland made a good deal of effort, and at one time it was thought the institution would be located there. I believe, however, that the subscription of the Rutland people did not reach $40,000. The Trustees to whom the work of locating the College had been intrusted, finding that no locality would raise the $100,000 required, opened negotiations with the then existing collegiate institutions of the State, viz.: Norwich University, Middlebury College and the University of Vermont. The first two above-named seem to have repelled all advances made by the Trustees. Vermont University, located at Burlington, consented to again open the negotiations so summarily closed by the repeal of the law above alluded to. The Trustees report these facts to the Legislature, and have drawn up a bill providing for the location of the College at Burlington. That is the way the matter now stands. It is one of the most difficult questions the Legislature has to settle.

Besides these matters of general interest, there is a sharp railroad contest between the Western Vermont Railroad and the Rutland and Burlington. The managers of the Western Vermont think the managers of the Rutland and Burlington road take pains to send their through travel to Troy over the Saratoga and Rensselaer road, the competitor of the Western Vermont. The Legislature is memorialized by both parties, and the contest grows warm.

I see here some New-York managers, (not unknown in the Legislature at Albany,) looking up copper-mine affairs. Whether they have designs upon the Legislature, I do not know.

As usual during the session, there have been several public meetings held in the Representatives' Hall, of a good deal of interest. The most unique affair of this nature has been a meeting of the State Historical Society. The peculiarity of the occasion was the reading of a historical paper by a teacher of singing, upon the early singers and music of Vermont. The teacher, himself a Vermonter, put all the New-England peculiarities into his paper and his manner of reading it. It was a history, a drama, an oration, an opera and a Yankee farce pretty well commingled. The gentleman who is accountable for this production was formerly a member of the Assembly, and I find in the debates of 1857 some characteristic speeches of his, which with New-England peculiarities, have about the same style and basis as the addresses of Mr. THOMAS FIELD, of New-York, State Senator.

It is the general impression here that the Legislature will continue its session about three or possibly four weeks from this date.

TENNESSEE.

Special Message of Gov. Brownlow.

STATE OF TENNESSEE, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
NASHVILLE, Oct. 24, 1865.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my late message I advised that the railroad companies of the State be required to pay their interest on debts due upon bonds issued and indorsed for their benefit. I further advised you that there is now due on railroad bonds loaned to the different railroad companies in the State $3,769,509. This is the interest now due upon the bonds indorsed by the State for the railroad companies, amounting to $16,211,000. This is a subject of vital importance to the people of the State, and since the issuance of my message I have given it much consideration, and have availed myself of the best sources of information.

I am now satisfied that it will be utterly impossible for most of the companies to pay the interest on the indorsed bonds of the State, and the roads will pass into the hands of receivers unless the State provides for the payment of the interest now due. In a word, if the payment of this interest is not provided for, nearly every road in the State will go under. The first effect of this will be to sweep from the thousands of stockholders all they have expended in building these roads. Should the State attempt to run them, there will be extravagance, waste, swindling and general corruption, and the State will have to issue several millions of bonds in that event, or tax the people beyond endurance to raise the money to meet this interest and to put these roads in order. If the State should sell these roads they would be purchased by a combination of speculators from abroad, who will manage them for their own benefit, without any regard for the honest and public-spirited people who built them.

They would sell for less than half their real value, and finally leave the State to pay the bonds, or a larger part of them, which result is the most that can happen to the State if the roads are left in the hands of the companies.

What then is the policy to adopt, and how shall the State meet the issue? I respectfully suggest that the State issue three or four millions more of bonds, to run six, seven, eight and ten years, the first payment of interest to commence in July next. Let them be given in payment of interest now due, upon condition that they are taken at par.

If the Legislature shall think proper, let them be sold on similar conditions and the proceeds applied to the payment of the interest on all outstanding bonds, and let there be a further lien in favor of the State on each road for the sum paid for its benefit. The first effect of this will be to bring the bonds of the State up to par value immediately, and to place the credit and integrity of the State above suspicion. Our people are honest, and will submit to taxation almost beyond endurance rather than be disgraced by the brand of repudiation. The second effect, however, would be to relieve the people of the heavy taxation now imposed on them, and hereafter to be imposed on them, to meet the interest for which the State is liable. In the future, when the people recover from the devastations of war, they can pay two dollars easier than they can one at present. The third effect will be to save the railroads to the stockholders.

They can and will meet the current interest as it arises, but they cannot meet it and the back interest. They can also, in the end, pay off the bonds as they mature, or beforehand, by setting apart so much of a sinking fund with which to buy in their bonds. Finally, it will save the State from all appearance of repudiation. For if the State now refuses to pay the interest due upon her bonds, which have been indorsed by her, and sold upon her credit, it will be called repudiation, let her motives be what they may. The credit of the State will be gone, and gone forever, and this must not be allowed. Let us maintain our credit, honor and integrity at all hazards.

While upon the subject of railroads, allow me to say that a law should at once be enacted, providing for the punishment of any and all parties conducting railroads in this State, enjoying the credit of the State, who are discriminating in freights so as to favor the cities of other States, to the prejudice and injury of the large towns of our State. Such abuses should be met by prompt legislation.

There is, in the future, a wonderful prosperity before us, when our people and roads can pay off the State debt, with scarcely an effort, provided we have the necessary legislation now, in this their hour of need. Give the roads time, aid them now, and in the end the State will not lose a dollar. These are not only my views, but the views of every intelligent man with whom I have conversed.

WILLIAM G. BROWNLOW.

HELMBOLD'S

FLUID

EXTRACT BUCHU

Continues to receive the unqualified indorsement of the most PROMINENT PHYSICIANS IN THE UNITED STATES, from the fact that the ingredients are not kept secret, and, also, because are recommended only for those diseases and accompanying symptoms for which their ingredients are everywhere recognized as thorough, standard specifics. In quoting properties from Medical Certificates, there must be repetitions of language. Diseases and symptoms follow, but symptoms should not be mistaken for distinct diseases. This is mentioned from the fact that many might say that they proposed to cure everything. Additional evidence, also, which fully sustains all that is claimed for them, is found in the medical works of the day, recommendations from prominent chemists, druggists, &c., who have been personally acquainted with the proprietor for many years, as well as certificates in unlimited numbers.

Nothing [pertaining to these preparations will be withheld from either the faculty or the public.

In conclusion, the entire modus operandi of procuring and preparing the ingredients being perfectly free for inspection, it will be deemed both unjust and unfair for the faculty and the public] to decide upon the merits of these preparations without a trial, especially after so much pains and expense in bringing them to their present state of perfection.

THESE PREPARATIONS

all the diseases for which they are recommended. It is not claimed that a single bottle will restore to soundness a constitution broken down and shattered by years of irregularities, or that dissipation may be continued when under treatment, and a cure effected; but that, where the directions are obeyed, these preparations will

EFFECT A CURE.

Under any circumstances they will do as much as any preparation or medicine in the wide world.

The best evidence of the truth of the foregoing statements is found in a simple trial which the most skeptical of their entire truthfulness.

The Laboratory for the manufacture of

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACTS

In Philadelphia, has been visited by hundreds of Physicians. It will soon be removed to

NO. 594 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK CITY,

at which time the faculty are invited to inspect the mode of preparation, &c.

A WORD OF CAUTION.

Health is most important; and the afflicted should not use an advertised medicine, or any remedy, unless its contents or ingredients are known to others beside the manufacturer, or until they are satisfied of the qualifications of the party so offering.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron, infinitely safer, and more pleasant, is now offered to afflicted humanity as a certain cure for the following diseases and symptoms, from whatever cause originating:

General Debility,

Mental and Physical Depression,

Determination of Blood to the Head,

Confused Ideas,

Hysteria,

General Irritability,

Restlessness and Sleeplessness at Night,

Absence of Muscular Power,

Loss of Appetite,

Dyspepsia,

Emaciation,

Low Spirits,

Palpitation of the Heart,

And, in fact, all the concomitants of the Nervous and Debiliated state of the system.

To insure the genuine, cut this out.

THE REBEL WAR DEBTS

Important Dispatch from the President to Gov. Johnson of Georgia.

He Insists Upon the Repudiation of the Rebel War Debts.

Decided Expression of the President's Views on this Point.

Loyal People Not Responsible for a Debt Created to Break Up the Union.

They Must Not be Taxed for Its Payment.

Holders of the Rebel War Loans Must Take the Consequences of Their Own Folly.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 3.

The National Republican has the following:

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 1, 1865.

The following highly important dispatch, from the President of the United States, has been received here by Gov. JOHNSON:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28, 1865.

To James Johnson, Provisional Governor, Milledgeville, Ga.:

Your dispatch has been received. The people of Georgia should not hesitate one single moment in repudiating every single dollar of debt created for the purpose of aiding the rebellion against the Government of the United States. It will not do to levy and collect taxes from a State and people that are loyal and in the Union, to pay a debt that was created to aid in taking them out, and subverting the Constitution of the United States.

I do not believe the great mass of the people of the State of Georgia, when left uninfluenced, will ever submit to the payment of a debt which was the main cause of bringing on their past and present suffering, the result of the rebellion.

Those who invested their capital in the creation of this debt must meet their fate, and take it as one of the inevitable results of the rebellion, though it may seem hard to them.

It should at once be made known at home and abroad, that no debt contracted for the purpose of dissolving the Union, can or ever will be paid by taxes levied on the people for such purpose.

ANDREW JOHNSON,
President of the United States.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 3.

MR. LANIER'S MISSION TO EUROPE.

Mr. J. D. F. LANIER, the well-known banker, of New-York, who recently returned from Europe, whither he went some time ago on a confidential mission for the government in connection with the national finances, yesterday had an interview with the President and the Secretary of the Treasury, to whom he submitted a verbal report of the results of his mission. Mr. LANIER everywhere found the best of feeling prevailing in financial circles with relation to the United States, particularly on the continent, and great confidence in our public securities. At Frankfort-on-the-Main he addressed at length a large meeting of capitalists, embracing representatives from nearly every leading house in Germany. The complete and utter overthrow of the rebellion was a matter of equal surprise and congratulation, and the demonstration made of the power and wealth of the North was a subject of universal admiration. But the war being ended, the expectation was confidently expressed by the European holders of our securities that we would immediately commence a return toward specie payments, however gradual the progress in such direction might be. Such a step, it was represented, was absolutely necessary to the maintenance of confidence in our securities and in the policy of the government. The ability of the country to bear all the burdens of the war was not questioned, especially with the rapid progress of the work of reconstruction, which bids fair to restore political and social unity to every portion of the country. With a wise and correct policy, there will be no limit to the demand for our securities, not only on the continent, but in England, where our military successes were fast opening the eyes of their people as to the value of our bonds. But the feeling against any further increase, and in favor of a steady contraction of the currency, was universally expressed as the sole condition on which our credit abroad could be maintained. It is understood that the views of Mr. LANIER were heartily responded to both by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury.

GEN. LONGSTREET AT THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The ex-rebel Gen. LONGSTREET availed himself of an early opportunity after his arrival to visit the War Department and other places which were his familiar haunts when enjoying the ease and comfort of a Paymastership in the old regular army. In his travels he, of course, met many old acquaintances, and they manifested none of the bitterness of the conflict in their treatment of their old acquaintance. Mr. LONGSTREET would probably not object to a pardon, though Mrs. LONGSTREET already has one.

THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The Treasury Department to-day issued to JOHN D. PERRY, President, and W. J. PALMER, Secretary and Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, six hundred and forty thousand dollars in government bonds, being at the rate of sixteen thousand dollars per mile, for the first division of forty miles, now completed, commencing at the mouth of Kansas River, and extending westerly in the valley of that river.

THE FIVE-TWENTY CONVERSION BONDS.

The five-twenty conversion bonds are issued from the Treasury Department as rapidly as they can be printed. A million a day of the denomination of one thousand dollars are now delivered. Those for five hundred dollars and one hundred dollars will be ready in a few days. Registered bonds for five thousand dollars will be issued according to the request of the subscribers.

A NATIONAL BANK AT NEW-ORLEANS.

Application has been made to the Comptroller of the Currency for the establishment of a National Bank at New-Orleans, with a capital of one million dollars. The application has been granted.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

The receipts from internal revenue continue to come in handsomely. The amount received to-day was $2,270,157 07.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The President has appointed J. J. MILLER Collector of Customs at San Francisco, vice CHARLES JAMES.

SENATOR SHERMAN IN THE CITY.

Senator SHERMAN, of Ohio, is in the city, making arrangements for his residence here during the coming Winter. He will occupy, as heretofore, the fine mansion on K-street, near Thirteenth.

THE NAVAL COURT-MARTIAL.

The Naval Court-martial, of which Admiral FARRAGUT is President, after finding a verdict in the case of Lieut.-Col. MARSTON, of the Marine Corps, which will not be promulgated until approved by the proper authorities. Adjourned till Tuesday next, when the case of Commodore CRAVEN will be taken up.

SENTENCE OF CAPT. MOONEY.

The War Department has promulgated the sentence against Capt. JAMES MOONEY, Nineteenth United States Infantry, charged with enlisting, attesting and inspecting, in January and February last, whilst on recruiting service in New-York City, PETER RYAN, MICHAEL KEARNEY and eleven other persons, and severally crediting them falsely to two or more towns in the State of New-York at the same time, and receiving corruptly for each recruit, a credit of six hundred and fifteen dollars from various bounty-brokers, &c. The sentence of the court is that Capt. MOONEY be dishonorably dismissed the service and pay a fine of three thousand dollars. The Secretary of War approves the sentence but remits the fine.

LULL IN THE PARDON BUSINESS.

There is a lull in the pardon business. Among those whose warrants await the signature of the President are ROGER A. PRYOR and ROBERT OULD. Among the latest applications is that of Major-Gen. JOHN M. WITHERS, of Alabama.

VOLUNTEER ORGANIZATIONS TO BE MUSTERED OUT.

The Secretary of War to-day promulgated the following list of volunteer organizations which have been, or are ordered to be mustered out of service, not included in previous circulars.

Illinois—Infantry, Forty-fourth and Fifty-first, detachment of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, still in service.

Indiana—Infantry, Ninth, detachment of the Twenty-sixth, Companies I and K of the Ninety-third, muster out of regiment completed.

Iowa—Artillery, Third Battery, independent organizations; Infantry, Third U. S. Volunteers.

Kansas—Cavalry, Sixteenth.

Missouri—Artillery, Companies B, C, D, E, H, K, L, M, Second Light, muster out of regiment completed.

Ohio—Infantry, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth; Cavalry, Companies L and M, Second, muster out of regiment completed; Companies A, B, C, D, Eleventh.

Rhode Island—Infantry, Hospital Guards.

Wisconsin—Infantry, Companies B, C, D, Forty-ninth.

NOTE—Men of Seventeenth Kentucky Infantry remaining in service transferred to Twenty-first Kentucky Infantry, the latter still in service.

THE STORM ON THE COAST.

Additional Accounts of Disasters to Shipping.

Rescue of a Portion of the Crew of the Schooner Minnie.

Wreck of the British Ship Mercy—Four of Her Crew Rescued.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, Nov. 2.

The steamer Fung Shuey, from New-York, arrived to-day. On 27th ult., 89 miles east of Beaufort, N. C., she fell in with the steamer Chase, from New-York to Savannah, with her ensign union down, hoisted by the purser when the Captain was below. The Chase met with a heavy gale on the 23d; her hull was full of water, her fires put out and her engines stopped; the passengers bailed her. The Captain reported her tight and sound, with plenty of coal and provisions.

The Fung Shuey also reports between Jupiter Inlet and Cape Florida, picked up in a small boat Capt. APPLEMAN and four of the crew of the schooner Minnie, of Mystic, for Key West, lost in the heavy gale of the 23d, off Jupiter Inlet. From Hillsboro Inlet to Saltboro Light-house the Fung Shuey passed ashore with masts standing two brigs and one ship, and the wrecks of five vessels sunk dismasted.

Capt. APPLEMAN reports that while at Jupiter, he saw a propeller towing a disabled brig. Large quantities of steamboat cabin furniture floated ashore. A large black ship with cotton was ashore on Grecian Shoals, surrounded by wrecks.

The steamer Herman Livingston brought a part of the crews of the barks John Wesley, Caroline, and M. E. Smith. The Wesley sailed hence for Liverpool, and went ashore 150 miles from Key West. Her officers and crew were taken up. The M. E. Smith was from Mobile for Liverpool, and went ashore on French Reef, 40 miles west of Key West.

One of the boat's crew of nine men reached Key West. The Captain and the rest of the crew were safe when the boat's crew left, but nothing has been heard of them since.

The British ship Mercy, from Honduras, went ashore 200 miles north of Key West. Four of the crew had been picked up in a dying condition. The Captain and crew had taken to the rafts and boats. Nothing had been heard of them when the Livingston left Key West.

The Disaster to the Republic—Additional Particulars—Who Were on the Raft.

Capt. HAWTHORNE, who commanded one of the boats of the Republic, states that he was assured by the sailors that the persons placed on the raft were nearly all, if not all, firemen and deck hands. When the Republic went down there were only two persons on board—one an elderly sea captain, and the other a German sailor. Had these two had presence of mind enough to make an effort they would doubtless have been saved.

A report was current at Hilton Head, when Capt. HAWTHORNE left, that another boat had arrived at Charleston, and also another one at Savannah. Capt. HAWTHORNE picked up seven persons from portions of the wreck, after the steamer went down. It is generally believed that Lieut. CAZIARC, of Boston, was among those who took refuge in the second mate's boat. The Lieutenant was indefatigable in his exertions to rescue his fellow-passengers. Capt. HAWTHORNE was peculiarly fortunate in saving himself and family; but he lost everything else except the clothes he wore.

Further Particulars—Additional Names of Passengers Saved from the Steamer Republic—Other Disasters.

The Savannah Herald of the 31st ult. reports the arrival of the barkantine Horace Beals with a boat from the steamer Republic, picked up on the 26th ult., 20 miles east of Hunting Island, containing the following persons:

S. E. YOUNG, chief officer of the Republic. Passengers: Col. William Nichols, Major R. S. Nichols, John E. Harloe, First Lieut. Louis V. Caziara, Capt. George W. McNear, Charles H. McNear, Horace D. Ellsworth, Ferdinand Muller, John C. Potter and George Long; and James Cavana, fireman, and John Maney, coal-passer. They were in the lifeboat fifty hours without food or water. A demijohn of water placed on board was broken by accident. They had lost all their clothing and valuables, and were nearly naked.

The steamship Catherine Whiting, from New-York for Galveston, went ashore on the 28th ult., five miles south of Carysfort. The Whiting had picked up two men from the wreck of a schooner, the remainder of the crew having been washed overboard.

The British brig Fairhaven, from Galveston, with cotton, for Liverpool, was also ashore, having been in tow of the Whiting, and dismantled. The steamer Gen. Barnes, which communicated with them, was unable to render any assistance, both being so far on the reef. The Barnes counted seven vessels ashore and dismantled in sight of Carysfort.

The English bark Margaret, from New-Orleans for Europe, dismasted, was picked up by the steamer Herman Livingston, when near Key West, but was forced to leave her, having parted all hawsers.

A dispatch printed in the Savannah Herald from Morehead City, 28th of October, announces the steamer Chase short of coal. She would leave the next day for Savannah.

The light boat on Martin's Industry had broken adrift. She would soon be replaced.

The steamers Varuna and Weybosset had arrived at Savannah from New-York.

GRAND UNION RALLY.

Monster Meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Speeches by Hon. Hiram Walbridge, Judge Kelley of Pennsylvania, and Gens. Kilpatrick and Logan.

Andrew Johnson Indorsed, Jeff. Davis Denounced and His Execution Demanded.

It would be difficult to adequately describe the enthusiasm, the unanimity, the absolute success of the last great Union rally of the Brooklyn Republicans at their beautiful Academy of Music; nor would the limited space of a newspaper report permit more than the simple chronicling of the fact that a larger, finer, better audience, never graced that temple par excellence, of the City of Churches.

Drawn by devotion to the principles of which the party is the exponent, attracted by the fame of the gallant Generals whose heroism on the field of battle parallels gracefully with their enthusiasm in the more peaceful arena of politics, the ladies of the city, attended by their loyal friends, thronged the building and made the auditorium brilliant with their beaming faces, while every available space, not occupied by chairs or benches, was crowded by men whose votes and support are pledged to the ticket whose standard bears, and has borne during all time, and under all pressures, the magic watchword, the Union. At 7 o'clock the band began a concert of choice and patriotic music, which charmed the audience until 7:30, at which time the officers of the meeting, the speakers and the invited guests, filed upon the stage, amid plaudits of recognition and enthusiasm. The more familiar countenances were known in a moment, and a scene of unparalleled, uproarious rejoicing ensued, which beggars description. Hats and handkerchiefs waved in timely unison, while the huzzas and cheers of the people, soared up and above the sound of the music, producing an effect as electric as it was novel. Among the prominent men upon the stage, were His Honor Mayor A. M. Wood, Hon. James Humphrey, Hon. J. S. T. Stranahan, Hon. H. R. Pierson, Hon. C. P. Smith, Rev. Dr. Leavit and Hon. J. A. Cross.

The President of the Central Club, Mr. GRISWOLD, called the meeting to order, after which Mr. NATHAN COMSTOCK read long lists of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries. Mr. CAREY then read the resolutions which were unanimously adopted, after which Judge KELLY, of Pennsylvania, was introduced and said substantially:

SPEECH OF JUDGE KELLY.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I come not hoping to inspire in you additional patriotism, but to congratulate you on the victories you will gain here and in New-Jersey on Tuesday next. The war has been one of more than thirty years' duration. The war is not a war between nations or States, but of ideas dividing one people, and must be waged until one set reigns supreme. So we thought in Pennsylvania, and we drove the Copperheads to their holes. We proclaimed to the South and her cowardly allies here that we meant that they should never more be in power in our State. Our Democratic friends who hope to captivate our President say the war is over. It had an object; is it attained? It was to cement the Union—to make it dear to the heart of every American citizen. Let us ask the border States what they think of secession and political equality. A distinguished citizen of Maryland writes: "The only chance of freedom is in having the courts on our side, for the enemies of negro education are burning their schools and tearing their books. The Democratic candidate for Judge is steeped in treason." How is it in Virginia? PEIRPOINT is not a Democratic Governor but a reconstructed Democrat, and yet FREEMAN CLARKE drove him from his office because he said he did not mean to be taxed to pay the national debt. I think the people of the North mean not only that every dollar of that debt be paid, but that no dollar of the rebel debt be paid. [Applause.] Look at the recently-pardoned, recently-elected Governor of Mississippi; look at Louisiana; she sent a man to Congress who dared attempt to draw his blade on a brother member—a would-be assassin, who has been renominated for Congress. No! This war of ideas is not closed; it must go on until we have not only a reconstructed Union but a regenerated Democracy; I am called a Radical; I want to see no sea of blood; I want those pressed into the rebel army pardoned; I want to see those who stood by the Union honored at the South as well as at the North; I want to see the Southern fields blossom and their ports filled with ships of commerce; I would pardon the great mass of the South, but I confess I want to see at the close of so grand a rebellion some distinguished rebel brought to trial. [Applause.] Such a war should not pass without settling the law of treason, to determine the question of States rights and secession, and Christian mercy herself pleads that our peace should be cemented by the blood of at least one traitor dying at the hands of the law. [Tremendous applause.] If we must do nothing to offend the white people of the South, why, the Democrats should take control of the government. They can persuade the Southerners to come back better than we. It was their PIERCE and BUCHANAN [hisses] who cheered and encouraged them; their BUCHANAN who said you have no right to secede, but if you do, the government has no right to stop you. It was his Cabinet that stripped our Northern arsenals and filled those of the South; his Secretary who scattered our navy—their party who gave the South their army, their party who have always been their friends, and the Democracy should be the ones to take charge. But if we have honor—a rich treasure—if you did right when you encouraged recruiting, pause before you vote. This question must now be settled as to whether we are one or many people. If you believe in the Declaration of Independence you could not travel in the South without leaving yourself at home—this must be settled definitely. What guarantees say you must we have? I say to you I never will vote for the admission of the representative of a rebellious State until he represents a constitution pervaded with American ideas recognizing the sanctity of the national debt. I do not believe the oath of a traitor. I won't trust those who fought under the Confederate flag to the exclusion of those who fought under the flag of my country. When a constitution comes made by a convention, and approved by the people, I'll consider its terms. It's better to let a small sore run, than close it up too soon, and have disease pervade your whole body. The South must interweave her life with the life of the country. I don't think they are any better than we. I don't believe that men whose hands are red with the blood of their fellow-citizens, are so virtuous that we should put temptation in their way. They owe an immense debt and have many disabled soldiers. We owe three thousand millions of dollars, no dollar of which would be owed had it not been for the South. We owe it to ourselves and our friends. Thall we fall in with the Humphreys and Perrys—it is asking too much. The South should, with its own capital, start the National Bank, welcome our Northern soldiers, white or black, and greet a man whenever he appears, no matter what the color of his skin. When they accept the condition, when they have interwoven their daily and practical life with ours, we will consider the propositions she has to make. I don't want to hold them and the rest of VAN BUREN's wayward sisters in subjection. I only want to keep them from tearing out my eyes and pulling my wife's hair. The Democratic party wants to get into power again with a divided North and a united South, but we want a united North and a divided South. When did BEN. or FERNANDO WOOD vote a dollar for the army? Go where you will and you will hear the poor people who have invested in our bonds denounced as the untaxed aristocracy of the country. This war of ideas should be honorably closed; the men in blue shall not apologize to the graybacks for having whipped them, and if concession is to come, it must come from those who were in the wrong. And now, my friends, if you want to encourage us in Pennsylvania, rally on this coming Tuesday, in all your majesty and power, and secure an overwhelming victory for the ticket which supports the Union as it should be, and the President as he is. [Great applause.]

Gen. HIRAM WALBRIDGE then made an elaborate address, quoting freely from early speeches of ANDREW JOHNSON, and tracing his patriotic career through times of trial and battle to the present, and urging all good Union men to stand firmly by him holding him steadfast in his present noble and statesmanlike position.

As Gen. WALBRIDGE closed, Major-Gens.

LOGAN AND KILPATRICK

came upon the platform. Their entrance was the occasion of a tumultuous recognition, after which Gen. KILPATRICK made an elaborate address, substantially the same as that made at the New-York meeting.

SPEECH OF GEN. KILPATRICK.

In the course of his remarks he alluded to the neutrality of Great Britain, saying, "this debt must be paid. [Applause.] If England don't pay it, if she has not learned a lesson by our war of the last four years, if the British lion dares again to roar along our shores, ere the last sound shall die away, Yankee Doodle, [laughter,] Yankee Doodle, with all its variations, will be given, and will swell along the plains of Abraham and echo back from he rocky battlements of Quebec. Shall the helm of our ship of state now be put in the hands of traitors and sympathizers? Never! But rather in the hands of our boys in blue who have stood by the government and never forsaken it in the moment of peril." He ridiculed the claims of those who called themselves Democrats, showing up clearly and humorously the inconsistency of their course during the war with their boastings now. Let the South alone, said they; this calling out of troops is unconstitutional, let the South go and let her have her rights. Well, thank God she's got her rights. [Tremendous applause.] They say the Democrats have all the great Generals of the war. They claim GRANT; if old GRANT had been by when that was said he would have caved that Democrat. They claim DIX; well, DIX was the man who said: "If any man hauls down the American flag shoot him on the spot;" and they claim honest JOHN LOGAN here; and they claim old TECUMSEH SHERMAN, because he wrote a letter to Mr. HASKIN about Gen. SLOCUM. Well, now, Mr. HASKIN wrote the following letter to Gen. SHERMAN, (Gen. KILPATRICK read the letter previously published,) to which the General wrote a letter, in which he said that he would be glad to have SLOCUM elected, because he was a personal friend of his. Well, now, Gen. LOGAN received just such a letter, and I received just such another, but neither of us answered it. I will, however, read you a letter I received yesterday from Old Tecumseh. (The speaker then read a letter from Gen. SHERMAN, in which he ridiculed the class of politicians known as Copperheads, and congratulated Gen. KILPATRICK on the great and good work he was doing in New-Jersey.) But they did have one General, and he was the man who said, "If any one pulls down the American flag, exhaust every resource of statesmanship to induce him to haul it up again." This was GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN, a disgrace and a failure. [Applause.] I want to say one word about that distinguished Democrat, HORATIO SEYMOUR, who I consider as true a sympathizer with the rebel cause as can be found in the whole country. When I came to New-York to suppress the riot which SEYMOUR incited and encouraged, I thought that the first man I should arrest was HORATIO SEYMOUR. [Applause.] Well, the closing scenes of the rebellion are at hand, and as it falls its head should fall. [Applause.] ANDREW JOHNSON won the hearts of the people when he said that henceforth treason should be known as the greatest of crimes. Some people think he has forgotten this, but I tell you JEFFERSON DAVIS must and will be punished. [Applause.] This man must die, because he was the head of the rebellion. This man, who has caused the heart's blood of more than you can know of, who was the head and front of the rebellion, must die upon the scaffold. [Applause, lasting for some time.] Let England protest, [A voice—"to — with England,"] let Italy remonstrate, let the Southern States petition, but let that man die; let treason not be made respectable, but let it be understood, now and forever, that treason is a crime and must and shall be punished. [Applause.]

Gen. KILPATRICK continued at great length, giving advice to Irishmen, to soldiers and to the people generally, to stand by the Union party and secure the victory we deserve.

Although it was nearly 11 o'clock, the people were by no means ready to go. They wanted to hear a word of cheer from the gallant LOGAN, and called loudly for him. He gratified the audience by a sound and carefully considered speech, in which he reviewed the causes and results of the rebellion, tracing directly to the teachings of the Democratic party and its leaders the inception growth and encouragement of treason. Gen. LOGAN was frequently interrupted by applause.

The meeting adjourned at a late hour, after a session of unprecedented interest and enthusiasm.

Petition for the Pardon of Jacob Thompson—The Freedmen's Bureau.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, Nov. 2.

The Mississippi Legislature has appointed a joint committee to petition President JOHNSON to pardon JACOB THOMPSON. The House invited Ex-Gov. CLARKE to address them, but he declined, on the ground of being a paroled prisoner, and says he trusts soon to see Mississippi restored to the full enjoyment of equal political rights with the sister States and under the flag of the Union.

A difficulty of some duration has occurred between Capt. PECK, Provost-Marshal, and of the Freedmen's Bureau of Capiah County, Miss., and Col. DRURY BROWN, Sheriff of the county, in which Gov. SHARKEY and the civil courts had intervened.

PECK was sent to jail by the court. He appealed to Gen. OSTERHAUS, who sent back the negro troops to the county, from which they had been withdrawn, and they took possession of the jail and released PECK. The county was then placed under close military surveillance.

The Mississippi Legislature.

JACKSON, Miss., Friday, Nov. 3.

The bill to abolish the Special Court of Equity established by Provisional Governor SHARKEY has passed the House over the Governor's veto, and will pass the Senate.

The Missouri Legislature—Charge of Fraudulent Voting.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, Nov. 3.

The caucus of the radical members of the Legislature settled the question of Speakership last night. They nominated Mr. A. J. HARLAN, of Andrew County, for that position, and elected him to-day by a vote of 69 to 16.

Gen. BLAIR, in a recent speech at Rolla, having charged the Board of Canvassers with fraudulent counting of votes at the last election, whereby the new State Constitution was declared adopted, the Secretary of the State, Mr. RODMAN, sent a communication to the House asking to have appointed a joint committee to count the votes and decide the matter.

There is no quorum in the Senate.

The South Carolina Legislature.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Thursday, Nov. 2.

The Legislature will continue in session until the middle of December.

From Tennessee—The Case of Dick McCann.

NASHVILLE, Friday, Nov. 3.

Hon. H. HARRISON, Attorney-General of Tennessee, delivered his argument in the United States Circuit Court to-day against granting a writ of habeas corpus in the case of DICK MCCANN. The decision will probably be reached on Monday next.

The cotton market is dull to-day, though there were large arrivals. Prices range from 46c.@47c.; sales of 105 bales were made at 45c. yesterday. Receipts to-day were 516 bales; shipments, 320 bales. Market closed firm.

The river is swelling slightly and is twenty inches deep on the shoals.

Continuance of the Fenian Excitement in Canada.

TORONTO, C. W., Friday, Nov. 3.

The Fenian excitement still continues. Quite a number of private soldiers are under arrest for sympathizing with the Fenians. The city and its approaches are picketed. Many Americans are preparing to leave for the States. Numbers of Orangemen are arriving for the defence of this district.

I have positive information that the Canadian Brotherhood has a fast steamer ready for armament.

It is reported that a number of officials of the government are engaged in the conspiracy.

Great military preparations are going forward.

The Attack on Matamoras.

NEW-ORLEANS, Wednesday, Nov. 1.

The Crescent, of the 31st ult., says: Capt. THUTLES, of the steamer Hancock, from Galveston, reports that advices from Matamoras up to Oct. 26 state that that city was still in the possession of the Imperialists. Several unsuccessful attacks had been made by the Liberals, but they were driven from the field with great slaughter. The Imperial loss was slight.

Arrival of the Europe—No Cholera on Board.

We have received the following communication from Dr. BURDETT, Deputy Health Officer, in relation to the anchoring of the steamship Europe at Quarantine.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Friday, Nov. 3, 1865.

This is to certify that I have visited the French steamship Europe, and discovered no contagious or infectious disease on board. The vessel is merely detained in Quarantine for observation.

A. S. BURDETT, M. D.,
Deputy Health Officer.

Steamer Disabled.

FORTRESS MONROE, Friday, Nov. 3.

The steamer Baltimore, from New-York to Washington, was towed in from Cape Henry to-day, disabled by the breaking of her propeller.

DEATH OF LORD PALMERSTON.

THE MINISTRY.

The Globe, of Oct. 21, announces that Earl RUSSELL had undertaken the duty of reforming the government. The Globe says we have every reason to hope that he will be enabled to make arrangements satisfactory to the country.

The Globe, of Oct. 22, says that it is not in a position to state the precise character of the ministerial arrangements, but that no obstacles prevail in regard to them, and that a satisfactory formation of the ministry is expected.

The Observer says that nothing definite will transpire until after Lord PALMERSTON's funeral. As little changes as possible will be made, at least, before the meeting of Parliament.

The Times thinks that should Earl RUSSELL fail in forming a ministry, a coalition between the different sections of the Liberals will become necessary, and that Lord GRANVILLE will probably be the person under whom the greatest number of men will serve.

Earl RUSSELL had issued a summons for a Cabinet Council at the Foreign Office, to be held on the 26th October, when all the Ministers will be in London.

THE CLOSING SCENES.

From the London Telegraph.

Latterly, as everybody knows, the gout had sadly troubled him, but he was not suffering directly from that when the fatal week began. It was from an inflammatory attack of the bladder that the Premier died. He was driving out on Thursday last, near Brockett Hall, and he had been warned to take great care of himself; but feeling over warm with the precautions adopted, he imprudently exposed himself to a chill, and returned to the house in such a state that collapse ensued, and but for the presence of the physician, it is possible that he would have died within two hours. He recovered, however, from that, but lay in his bed very weak and very much changed, for the affection mounted to the ducts and kidneys, and the secretions being suspended, the blood was becoming poisoned. Still, his superb constitution gave hopes, especially when the difficulty of respiration became less, and on Tuesday afternoon a favorable bulletin was issued; but at night his condition suddenly grew much worse, and it was soon apparent that the end approached. His state of mind up to the last remained unclouded; he was in full possession of his faculties, and suffered very little pain. But there came a lassitude over him which prevented any effort or wish to converse; questions put to him were either disregarded or answered by a look or sign. A silence, half imposed by weariness, half of his own inclination, possessed him. On the day before his death, however, when in a doze preceding the last change, his mind was evidently still amid its old associations; for he was heard to mutter, as in a dream, "The treaty with Belgium! yes, read me that sixth clause again." But at the last a perfectly peaceful demise crowned the long and serene healthfulness of his life; he sank away gently, flickered a little, like an expiring lamp, and then "went out" rather than "died;" and they hardly knew in the death-chamber at what exact moment the great statesman, whose name had been on every page of our history for fifty years, ceased to be among the living. At that supreme moment the dearest to him were about his bed, with the exception of lady PALMERSTON, who had been gently withdrawn. There were present the Minister of Public Works and Mrs. COWPER, the Earl of SHAFTESBURY and the Countess, Viscountess JOCELYN, Mr. EVELYN ASHLEY, and the physicians. The grief of this circle was lessened, so far as it could be, by the spectacle of a quiet and easeful parting, hallowed, before the shades of death came so near to the dim eyes, and the lips grew so slow to move, by faith in the words taught by that Church of which the Premier died a true member. His last act of public business was an instance of his energetic manner of dealing with facts when he had once got hold of them. He received at Brocket Hall the Irish deputation upon the cattle disease, though he was very unwell, and obliged to recline upon the sofa all the time; but he at once acted upon the wishes of his visitants. If he would have kept to that sofa, he might have lived; but he was a constant terror to his doctors by reason of his energy; although, when he once promised to obey them, he kept his word, as if it had been pledged to the House of Commons.

From the same journal we take the following "reminiscences" of the deceased statesman:

"As a rule, he enjoyed superb bodily health, and one of the reasons was, that, be it late or early when he escaped from State affairs, he always insisted upon giving himself seven hours and a half of good sleep. If he could not get away home till 4 A. M., he bade his servants leave him undisturbed till noon. His radiant spirits and easy method with public business were, of course, elements toward his long and unbroken vigor, and he had the faculty of throwing off the gravest cares of State along with his Parliament coat. But he could not do so with personal matters, which is another proof how strong the personal and human nature was in him. He would fret and worry if a member of his family were ill, and be more disquieted than at the impending crash of a throne, until the household was in good case again. These things could break even his regular sleep; but 'affairs' were not his flesh and blood, and he could put them off when they were troublesome till the next day. Such little traits of the great man gone are what were recalled, commented upon, compared. It was remembered, too, how frank and outspoken he appeared, in private as in public. 'I have had a great deal of patronage,' he said once, 'and I am glad that I had no relations to give it to, so I have escaped nepotism.' His meaning was often far deeper and more earnest than his language, and he could feel acutely. But he could not cherish malice; he forgave so completely that he all but forgot; or, if reminded of a sharp attack, he would laugh at it good-humoredly, like a strong gladiator at the memory of a hard and clever hit. When he was reproached for his reply to COBDEN in the House, his characteristic defence was: 'Why, I only did what every Englishman does when he is pitched into—I gave him as good as he brought.' And, by the way, speaking of these two great politicians who are now out of the little dusty division lobby of this world, it was pleasant to recollect how gratified PALMERSTON was by something which reached him from COBDEN's death-bed. The great free-trader and treaty maker was talking with his physician a little while before he died, and said in a low and gentle tone, 'Ah, PALMERSTON was a very generous enemy!' These words came to the Premier's ears, and gave him deep pleasure. Nor will the public be unwilling to know that his last days were gratified by marks of the Queen's earnest and anxious attachment to her illustrious subject. The Queen telegraphed repeatedly to Brocket Hall for intelligence of the Premier's state, and to express her strong solicitude for him. It is needless to say that the sad news that he had breathed his last was instantly conveyed to his royal mistress. There can be no doubt that any sudden and severe illness assaulting such a frame would have produced the same regretted result. Strong as he had been, the Premier remarked shortly before his attack, that he 'felt that he had done more work than any public man in Europe.' Yet his robust and rich nature, it may be perceived, broke at last rather than decayed—heart of oak to the end, there was sound stuff in it when it was time to fall."

THE GRADUAL DECAY OF THE LATE PREMIER.

The Morning Star says in its notice: "It was painfully evident during the last session of Parliament that the health of the noble Lord was beginning to fail him. Formerly he used to enter the House with an elastic step, and to remain until the House rose without leaving his place, but latterly, while he strove to conceal the effects of weakness, the unusual pallor of his face and his early retirement from his seat indicated that he could no longer bear the fatigues which he had formerly borne so easily. Indeed, after Easter, he usually retired immediately after the questions on the paper had been disposed of, and only on a very few occasions did he take part in the ordinary business of the evening. On June 16 he replied to Mr. BERKELEY on the Ballot, taking the old grounds against this improvement which we have so often combated. He was noticed that although his body seemed frail his voice retained all its usual strength, and so clear and firm were the tones that they even startled those who had been familiar with his voice for years. On the same night he replied to Mr. BRIGHT in the debate on Mr. SEELEY's motion with regard to dock-yard inspection, and on June 19th he again spoke on Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH's motion with regard to Col. DAWKINS. On the 27th of June he made a very spirited reply to Mr. LONGFIELD's attack on the Lord Chancellor, and on the 3d of July was present on the occasion of the more formal vote of censure which was moved in regard to the Leeds Bankruptcy Court investigation. With his usual tact he managed to have the vote taken on a motion for adjournment, by this means ascertaining the strength of parties. The government having been defeated, he thereupon accepted Mr. BOUVERIE's amendment, which bore somewhat less hardly on the Chancellor than Mr. WARD HUNT's motion. On the following day it was his duty to announce to the House the resignation of Lord WESTBURY, and this may be considered the last official act of a statesman who had sat in Parliament without a break from 1806 to 1865. To-morrow the noble Lord would have completed the eighty-first year of his age. He had sat in sixteen Parliaments, and been elected to sit in the seventeenth. He served in official positions four monarchs—GEORGE III., GEORGE IV., WILLIAM IV., and Queen VICTORIA. He held important offices under ten different First Lords of the Treasury, viz., the Duke of Portland, Mr. Spencer Perceval, Lord Liverpool, Mr. Canning, Lord Goderich, the Duke of Wellington, Earl Grey, Viscount Melbourne, Lord John Russell, and Lord Aberdeen, and has himself occupied the same position in two different Ministries. When Mr. CANNING died suddenly, after a brief tenure of the high office of Prime Minister of England, Lord PALMERSTON was a member of the Cabinet, and sat with his colleagues in Lord GODERICH's mansion, debating affairs, while they awaited the King's pleasure as to the future. He died at Brocket Hall, the seat of his friend, brother-in-law, and chief—the late Lord MELBOURNE, and where that nobleman himself died. It was the ambition of the lord to die Premier of England, and his wish has been gratified.

ADDITIONAL INCIDENTS.

The Post gives some further information relative to the last illness of the Premier:

"From the time of his going down to Brocket Hall, at the end of July, till the day of his death, Dr. PROTHEROE SMITH, who was passing his vacation, was enabled to give Lord PALMERSTON his unremitting attention and time, in conjunction with the family physician, Dr. DRAGE, of Hatfield—and the case appeared so hopeful, and so much strength was gained, that till within the last week no danger, much less immediate alarm, was felt. The week before last, being called away to a distance professionally, on an urgent errand, Dr. SMITH was absent from Brocket until the morning of Thursday—two days longer than the former periods—and on his return he found that meanwhile Lord PALMERSTON had caught a severe chill whilst out of doors during the sudden change in the temperature of the weather. The result was, an alarming relapse from the ground gained, and very dangerous symptoms occurred during the night of Thursday, yielding only to the persevering efforts of the physician, and to the wonderful elasticity and vital energy of the noble Lord. So much did he rally that it was not till Saturday evening that it was thought advisable to convey by telegraph to the Queen at Balmoral the anxiety that was felt by his relatives. In the meantime he was visited by Mr. PAGET and Dr. BURROWS, in consultation with Dr. PROTHEROE SMITH and Dr. WATSON, who had been telegraphed for to Penzance, and who arrived early on Monday morning. Up to Tuesday afternoon the marked improvement continued, and Lord PALMERSTON evinced that cheerful pluck and equanimity which won for him in his political career the affection as well as the confidence of his fellow-countrymen. But, alas, it was to be of short duration. Drs. WATSON and PROTHEROE SMITH, who were constantly watching by his Lordship's couch, about half-past three on Tuesday afternoon saw a return of the collapse which had given so much alarm on the Saturday, and from that time till his death he never rallied, but gradually sank, expiring at a quarter before eleven on Wednesday, in the presence of Lady PALMERSTON, Lord and Lady SHAFTESBURY, Mr. and Mrs. WILLIAM COWPER, Lady JOCELYN and Mr. EVELYN ASHLEY. He retained his consciousness till the end. His manner was calm and resigned, and his death was apparently unattended by suffering.

The London Globe says:

"It appears that Lord PALMERSTON caught a severe chill while out of town during the recent sudden change in the temperature. The result was an alarming relapse, and very dangerous symptoms occurred during the night of Thursday, yielding only to the persevering efforts of the physician, and to the wonderful elasticity and vital energy of the noble Lord. So much did he rally that it was not till Saturday evening, when another relapse had occurred, that it was thought advisable to convey by telegraph to the Queen at Balmoral the anxiety that was felt by the noble Lord's relatives. In the meantime he was visited by Dr. BURROWS, in consultation with Dr. SMITH and Dr. WATSON, who had been telegraphed to to Penzance, and who arrived early on Monday morning. Up to Tuesday afternoon the marked improvement continued, and Lord PALMERSTON evinced that cheerful equanimity which won for him in his political career the affection as well as the confidence of his fellow-countrymen. But, alas, it was to be of short duration. Drs. WATSON and PROTHEROE SMITH, who were constantly watching by his Lordship's couch, about 3½ o'clock on Tuesday afternoon saw a return of the symptoms which had given so much alarm on the Saturday, and from that time till his death he never rallied, but gradually sank, expiring at 9.45 o'clock on Wednesday, in the presence of Lady PALMERSTON, Lord and Lady SHAFTESBURY, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. WILLIAM COWPER, Lady JOCELYN and Mr. EVELYN ASHLEY. He retained his consciousness till the end. His manner was calm and resigned, and his death was apparently unattended with suffering."

A correspondent of the Herald writes:

"His Lordship partook of a little tea during the night, and about 10 o'clock yesterday it became too evident that his end was rapidly approaching. The doctors were suddenly summoned to his chamber, a circumstance that gave rise to much alarm on the part of the visitors, who at the time were seated at breakfast. They instantly rose and followed the medical gentlemen to the bedside of the dying statesman, and in their presence he breathed a long-drawn breath, and his spirit calmly passed away."

The Advertiser has a characteristic paragraph. At the close of one of its leading articles it says:

"We will only add—and we make our closing remark with greater pleasure than we can express—that we are enabled to state, on the authority of one who attended Lord PALMERSTON's bedside during the last few days of his illness, 'that his end was peace,' and that it was 'the firm belief of the friend to whom we allude, that this peace was the result of his 'knowing wherein to trust.'"

THE MAN CHARACTERIZED.

The London Times publishes a carefully prepared sketch occupying nine columns, and the Star gives more space still to an account of the life and services of the late Premier. The Times says:

He worked hard for success even in extreme old age. As a young man he did less than his friends expected of him; as an old one he did far more. It was amazing to see how he could sit out the whole House of Commons in its longest sittings. At three or four o'clock in the morning he was the freshest and liveliest man there, ready with his joke or a clever explanation to appease the irritability of a worn assembly. Besides the toil of debate and incessant watching in the House of Commons, his office work was enormous. His dispatches, all written in that fine bold hand which he desired to engraft upon the Foreign Office, are innumerable. His minutes upon every conceivable subject of interest in the last fifty years would fill many volumes, and it is to be hoped that some of them will be published. Moreover, in private, he was always ready to write for the information of his friends, and he always wrote well. We may add, in a parenthesis, that generally he wrote standing. To get through this immense amount of work he lived during the session what most men would regard as an unwholesome life. Four days a week, when the House sat at night, he dined at 3 o'clock; on other days at 8:30. When his dinner was late he took no lunch; when it was early he seldom took any supper. While young men went off from a debate to enjoy a comfortable meal, he sat on the Treasury Bench all night and never budged from it except to get a cup of tea in the tea-room, where he liked a gossip with whoever was there. For, with all his official labors, he kept his hold on society and enjoyed life like a youth. Lord PALMERSTON—and in this Lady PALMERSTON resembled him—was in his very nature genial and social. They loved society—not necessarily their own society, but all men and women. In the country, as in town, their hospitality was unbounded. A large family circle continually gathered about them, reinforced by whoever was remarkable for political, or literary, or artistic eminence, for sport, for travel, for military or naval exploits. All were welcome, and all found in both host and hostess a sympathizing audience. Yet they were never rich until latterly, and even at last their means were as nothing when compared with the opulence of many who never open their doors except to the members of a coterie. All this was the result of a prodigious vitality. Any doubts on that score might be settled by seeing Lord PALMERSTON at a public dinner—he sat down to it with the zest of an Eton boy; or by seeing him on horseback, when nearly an octogenarian, he would ride some fifteen miles to cover and think nothing of it. His mind never lost its interest in whatever was new. He was as keen as any young man about the coming Derby, and would rather have won it than any political triumph. These things are worth mentioning, for they are elements of political success. Great as PITT was, he was said to have lost much through deficient sociability. Lord PALMERSTON lost nothing in this way, but gained a great deal. He owed, indeed, so much to his social tact, that superficial observers have seen in it the whole secret of his power.

POLITICAL BEARINGS OF THE EVENT.

WHOM THE PEOPLE LOOK TO TO SUCCEED THE PREMIER.

From the London Times, Oct. 21.

We have now to inquire what statesmen there are who may hope to combine the requisite Parliamentary support with those qualities of ability, experience and position which are essential to the due discharge of the office of first minister of the Crown. The first candidate in age and experience is undoubtedly Lord RUSSELL, to whom, we believe, Her Majesty has intrusted the task of reconstructing the Cabinet. He has himself held the office of Prime Minister for six years, and has served the crown in a number of important and difficult offices. He is one of the last of those who took part in passing the first Reform Bill, for death has been very busy among these for the last few years; he was at one time the acknowledged head of the Whig party, and has an European reputation second to no other British statesman. With so many recommendations, it may be thought that we need look no further than Lord RUSSELL, and that his task would be comparatively easy. These great recommendations are, however, cancelled by still greater defects. Lord RUSSELL is a member of the House of Lords, and it is a source of weakness to any government to separate the office of Prime Minister from the leadership of the House of Commons. The two positions mutually strengthen each other. The Minister is more powerful from his influence over the House, and the Leader has more authority from his position as Minister. To separate the two is a waste of power. Lord RUSSELL is, besides, considerably past seventy years of age, and though we have been recently governed with vigor and success by a Minister of upward of eighty, it may not, perhaps, be wise to give to this preference for antiquity the strength of two successive precedents. The accession of Lord RUSSELL to power will weaken the government by detaching from it a considerable number of Irish supporters. The Ecclesiastical Titles Bill has not yet been forgotten, and the same cause which has expelled from Parliament almost every Irish Liberal member who supported that measure, would deprive the government of a considerable part of the support which it now expects from Ireland. But there is more to be said. A new generation has arisen since Lord RUSSELL was Prime Minister, his name has lost much of its influence, and the association connected with it are becoming obsolete. The reputation gained by one Reform Bill has been somewhat impaired by three futile attempts to pass another. Nobody knows what Lord RUSSELL's present position with regard to reform is. Besides, it cannot be denied that the unfortunate events of the year 1855 would prevent Lord RUSSELL from rallying round him the full support which a leader of the Liberal party ought to count on. The declaration by which he broke up the government of Lord ABERDEEN, and the unfortunate circumstances connected with his mission to Vienna, which occasioned his resignation of the seals of the Colonial-office, have not been forgotten, and may probably be found to tell unfavorably in the reconstruction of the Ministry under his auspices.

The second candidate to whom everybody's mind has pointed is Mr. GLADSTONE. He has sat more than thirty years in the House of Commons, where he is unrivaled and unapproached in eloquence. He is now the leader of the House of Commons, and, as the late Sir GEORGE LEWIS well said, "Tell me who leads the House of Commons, and I will tell you who is destined to be Premier." He has won great popularity by the masterly manner in which he has completed the commercial reform, which was left to him in a half-finished state. He has great popularity and support in the manufacturing districts, which his measures have signally benefited, and has a large party in the Church of England, which views him with sympathy and admiration. The drawbacks to these brilliant qualities are only too well known. With all his splendid talents, Mr. GLADSTONE has failed to conciliate to himself the good will and attachment of that very House of Commons in which he is the principal figure, and of which, in any case, he must be the leader. He is deficient in tact and temper, and has an unhappy faculty of getting up debates when there need not be any discussion, and arguing rather for the satisfaction of his own mind than for his audience. He has got himself into trouble by a very eloquent, but very ill-considered, declaration on the subject of parliamentary reform which he delivered last year, and which has been explained, indeed, but not excused. The Radical party still profess to look to him as their future chief. If he verifies their confidence, he will become the chief of a small minority instead of the representative of the great majority of the House; if he puts the qestion of reform aside he will incur their most bitter animosity. He has done enough to inspire distrust in the more Conservative portion of his party, without having enlisted any corresponding support in any other quarter. No one doubts his honesty or ability, but there is a strong distrust in his judgment and moderation. He is believed to be one with whom others find it difficult to act, and more likely to diminish and divide than to unite and cement his followers. It seems hardly possible that a Liberal Government can be formed without him; he is too great for the second place in it, and yet seems scarcely to be possessed of the qualities that entitle him to the first.

A third candidate was understood to be possessed of the good-will of the Sovereign; he has tact, shrewdness, considerable knowledge of business, and great power of attaching friends and conciliating enemies. But Lord GRANVILLE—whom every one will recognize under this description—could scarcely be said, at the present moment, to occupy a position sufficiently strong to entitle him to take the direction of a government in the same sense in which government was directed by Sir ROBERT PEEL or Lord PALMERSTON. He, too, like Lord RUSSELL, would have the disadvantage of being a member of the House of Lords. He is, however, uncommitted to any very strong views in any direction, and should Earl RUSSELL's mission fail, and it be found necessary to effect a coalition among the different sections and ambitions of the Liberal party, Lord GRANVILLE is probably the person under whom the greatest number of men might be induced to serve with the least offence to their pride, and with the best chance of harmony and cooperation. Such are the candidates which the Liberal party presented for the choice of the Sovereign, and though that choice is supposed to have fallen on Lord RUSSELL, the result of our examination seems to be that none of them are, from what we know already, wholly satisfactory. We await, therefore, with some anxiety, the result of the mission with which Lord RUSSELL has been charged. We must always remember, however, that it has almost uniformly been the good fortune of this country to find the men she wanted when her need was the greatest and her prospects the most discouraging.

HIS LAST ADMINISTRATION.

From the London News.

Although, however, Lord PALMERSTON has died in the very fullness of his popularity, his removal is not to be confounded with those untimely losses which seem to hurry to a confused and unintended conclusion a whole chapter in a people's history. The very peculiarity of the position which he occupied depended on the fact that it could be held only for a short time. His accession to office ushered in a kind of political Sabbath. His tenure of power depended less on his connection with his own party than on his hold of the nation at large, and in the presence of that exceptional popularity, partisans on either side were forced to sheathe their swords and accept a compulsory truce. It is well that there should come at times such a pause in the national annals; well that in the contemplation of a character which appealed in an unusual degree to the characteristic strength and the characteristic weaknesses of Englishmen, we should put aside all thought of the principles which divide us, and agree for a while to remember only the sympathies which unite us. But it is of the very essence of such a silent compact that there should be underlying it a consciousness that it is only temporary, and therefore when it comes to an end it finds no one either surprised or unprepared. Lord PALMERSTON's last administration was less a separate act in the national drama than an interlude between the acts. It stood apart by itself; it was generated by distinct causes; it is to be judged by a distinct standard. His death interferes with the solution of no political problem; it only removes an influence which prevented their solution being attempted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Daily News says it is everywhere assumed that the Administration will undergo reconstruction only to the extent rendered necessary by the appointment of a Premier.

The Times remarks that perhaps there never was a time when augury was more difficult. A new Parliament, complications that may lead to war and the sudden termination of an interregnum, as, with truth, the Administration had been called, constitute a new and inscrutable state of affairs. How far there may be coming defaults at home can only be known at the meeting of our new Legislature.

The Daily News, in alluding to the claims of Mr. GLADSTONE, says:

"We cannot for a moment admit that the appointment of Earl RUSSELL to the Premiership would in the least imply a doubt of the fitness of Mr. GLADSTONE. There is no liberal government possible without Mr. GLADSTONE, and in any liberal Cabinet he would enjoy authority second to none.

There may be a question which of the Earls shall lead the House of Peers, but there is no question as to who shall lead the House of Commons. There is no reason why Earl RUSSELL and Mr. GLADSTONE should not work harmoniously together, the one representing the highest authority of the government in the Lords and the other doing the like in the Commons."

The British journals continue to discuss the character of Lord PALMERSTON. The corporations of London, Liverpool, and the public bodies of many towns had adopted unanimously motions testifying their universal admiration of the man, and acknowledging the great services he had rendered the country.

Gen. LA MARMORA has directed the Italian Minister in London to express to the British Government the profound regret felt by the King, the government and the Italian nation at the death of Lord PALMERSTON.

The Morning Post says the House of Commons loses its leader, whose voice its oldest members have listened to always with respect. Lord PALMERSTON would never go to the Lords. He loved the sharp contests and anxious debates of the Commons.

The Morning Herald expresses the same feeling of regret as its cotemporaries. Adverting to the political aspect, it remarks that of late years confidence in the noble Lord has even done the duty of a political creed; and as to the consequences of the noble Lord's death, adds it is enough to say that the bond of union between the different sections of the Cabinet is removed, and that no one is left to whom by equal consent the chieftainship of the party can be given.

The Morning Star remarks on the event as the closing of a whole era in the history of England, "It would be useless and disingenuous on our part," says the Star, "to attempt to ignore, even at such a moment as this, the fact that on many recent occasions his policy found in this journal a conscientious and earnest opponent. But we have no wish whatever to conceal our appreciation of the truth that the great majority of Englishmen will regard his death, even at so advanced an age, as a profound national calamity."

THE FUNERAL.

From the London Globe.

There will be no public funeral. The remains of Lord PALMERSTON will be conveyed early on Monday morning from Brocket Hall to Broadlands. At the funeral on Tuesday there will be a simple hearse, which will be drawn by four horses. Following these will be the mourners, but the manner in which they will be arranged has not yet been decided upon. The coffin will be unadorned even by black cloth, and no invitations to the funeral have been issued, except one that is general to his Lordship's tenantry. Lord PALMERSTON will be buried, not in the Abbey Church of Romsey, but in the quiet cemetery near the town, in which the noble Lord selected his own grave. There will be no lying in state.

UTTERANCES OF THE FRENCH PRESS.

The national calamity which has befallen England finds in France a generous sympathy. The Debats says:

"Entering on public life still quite young, at the commencement of the century, he had not since then ceased to take an active part in the affairs of his country. We shall devote a special article to that long political career, so brilliant at times, so often contradictory as to principle and means, but unchangeable in its inspiration, which was the service at any cost of the interests of England. It is here, without speaking of the remarkable talents of Lord PALMERSTON, that we find the explanation of the popularity which he enjoyed to the last with Englishmen; and certainly, if there has been anything sincere in the world, they are the regrets which the English press unanimously expresses—most faithful echo in this respect of public opinion. It is not that, in our opinion at least, the policy of Lord PALMERSTON could not be considered as having had its day, and as no longer responding to the ideas and wants of the time; but the famous Minister, among other merits, had, above all, that of being English; he was that in heart, instinct and intelligence; he loved England passionately, and we ought to add in praise of our neighbors that like temperaments are not rare among them."

The Patrie says:

"England has lost her ablest Minister, her greatest man since FOX and PITT. Lord PALMERSTON's death is the heaviest blow that could have fallen upon the Queen's Government. When England lost Sir ROBERT PEEL the path before his successor was clear. But Lord PALMERSTON carries with him to the grave the secret of a policy, open no doubt to criticism, but which must be admitted to have been often the mainstay and the great resource of Great Britain. It was, however, less by his acts than by the prestige of his name, his old experience, and his connection with all the leading men of the age, that Lord PALMERSTON was a power in his country. Over his tomb England may well weep a widow's tears."

The Gazette de France is of opinion that "the great news of the day will produce considerable consequences, in England first of all, and afterward, probably, in Europe." La France attributes to Lord PALMERSTON's personal acquaintance with LOUIS NAPOLEON the speedy recognition by England of the government of the coup d'etat, and it considers that act as a great service to humanity, and a timely check to demagogy in Europe, which was becoming dangerous:

"Nevertheless in his relations with France, Lord PALMERSTON appeared to be alternately actuated by sentiments of sympathy and mistrust. His reason urged him toward a cordial understanding, but the impressions imbibed in his early political life often made him stand aloof. Hence a see-saw policy and inconsistent action which frequently seemed unaccountable."

The Presse, anticipating speedy reforms as a consequence of the Premier's death, says:

"The old policy of England will be interred in Lord PALMERSTON's tomb, and the hour of democracy will soon strike in Liberal England. The statesman who would succeed to the heritage of Lord PALMERSTON must have the courage to become the Robert Peel of 'universal suffrage.'"

M. GUEROULT, deputy for Paris, writes in the Opinion Nationale:

"This death will probably be the signal for a new classification of parties, and, if the foreign policy of England is not likely to be greatly changed, internal questions, and especially electoral reform, are likely to demand a large share of attention. France does not lose a friend in Lord PALMERSTON. But we cannot announce his death without paying the tribute of a last homage to the eminent statesman who, whether our ally or our adversary, was always the type of an accomplished English gentleman."

AMERICAN TOPICS.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY AND THE BRITISH PORTS.

From the Shipping Gazette.

The following communication has been received by the Mayor of Bristol:

WHITEHALL, Oct. 16, 1865.

SIR: With reference to the letter from this department of the 6th of June last respecting the measures to be adopted in consequence of the civil war in the United States of North America being at an end, I am directed by Secretary Sir GEORGE GREY to transmit to you the inclosed copy of a further letter from Earl RUSSELL directing that all measures of a restrictive nature on vessels of war of the United States in British ports, harbors or waters are now to be considered at an end. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

The MAYOR OF BRISTOL. T. G BARING.

EARL RUSSELL TO THE LORDS COMMISSIONERS OF THE ADMIRALTY.

FOREIGN OFFICE, Oct. 13, 1864.

MY LORDS: With reference to my letter of the 2d of June last, prescribing the course to be taken by Her Majesty's several authorities in all ports, harbors, and waters belonging to Her Majesty, whether in the United Kingdom or beyond the seas, in consequence of the recognition by Her Majesty's Government that peace was restored within the whole territory of which the United States of North America before the commencement of the war were in undisturbed possession; and with reference more particularly to that passage in my letter, in which was laid down that Confederate vessels departing, in pursuance of requisitions to be made by Her Majesty's authorities, from any ports, harbors, or waters belonging to Her Majesty, in which, at the time of the receipt by those authorities, of the fresh orders, such vessels might be found, should then, and for the last time, have the full benefit of the prohibition theretofore enforced against pursuit of them within 24 hours by a cruiser of the United States, lying at the time within any such ports, harbors, or waters; I have the honor to state to your Lordships that Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that it is desirable that Her Majesty's naval and other authorities at home, and in Her Majesty's possessions abroad, should be formally apprised that, as full time has now elapsed since my letter of the 2d of June for giving effect to the provisions of that letter, all measures of a restrictive nature on vessels of war of the United States in British ports, harbors, or waters, are now to be considered as at an end, and that it is the desire and intention of Her Majesty's Government that unrestricted hospitality and friendship should be shown to vessels of war of the United States in all Her Majesty's ports, whether at home or abroad.

I have addressed a similar letter to the Secretaries of State for the Colonial, Home, and Indian Offices, and also to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury. I am, &c., RUSSELL.

THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

AN EXPLANATION—REPORTED INSTRUCTIONS TO MR. BIGELOW.

The rumor concerning the United States and France, sent to the London Times by its New-York correspondent, and made the occasion of excited comment in England, takes a new phase. The following statement is made prominently by the London Daily News of Oct. 20:

"The story published in this country, that Mr. SEWARD had sent an ultimatum to Paris, declaring that President JOHNSON would 'not permit the dispatch of more French troops to Mexico,' has at length dwindled to the statement, which is not improbable, that the American Secretary of State had written to Mr. BIGELOW, expressing the earnest desire of the United States Government to remain at peace with France and all the world, but intimating that it is feared Congress will demand extreme measures if additional troops are sent into Mexico."

On this subject the Paris Patrie says:

"The Cabinet at Washington, being uneasy on account of the project attributed to France of recruiting in Egypt and sending to Mexico a new corps of black troops, has submitted to the Imperial Government in the most reserved terms the objections which such a measure might give rise to, but the communication of the American Secretary being exclusively upon this one particular fact, necessarily abstained from all reflections upon French intervention, properly so called. This communication is, moreover, now unimportant, because the plan which was for an instant on the tapis has since been given up."

The London Morning Post says: "It is mentioned that a few days since Mr. BIGELOW had an interview with M. DROUYN DE L'HUYS on the Mexican question, when the explanations given by the former were deemed satisfactory."

The correspondent of the London Globe also says that Mr. BIGELOW had called at the French Foreign Office to contradict the sensation telegram.

THE CONFEDERATE COTTON LOAN.

THE STOCKHOLDERS FEELING COMFORTABLY.

An adjourned meeting of the holders of the Confederate loan was held in London on the 18th, for the purpose of receiving a report from the committee appointed on the 4th September last. Admiral Sir PROVO WALLIS occupied the chair. Mr. J. M. CHAMBERLAIN submitted the report, which was designed to inform the bondholders of the steps which had been taken to place their interests on a firm and legal basis. In the course of a long correspondence with various parties, the committee ascertained from Messrs. SCHRODER & Co. that the amount of bonds in circulation at present was £2,418,800. The committee had thought it their duty to ascertain precisely the legal status of the bondholders, and therefore had submitted a case to Mr. FLEMING, Queen's counsel, and a report of The United States vs. PRIOLEAU. Mr. FLEMING was requested to consider the rights and liabilities of the contractors and agents of the board, and whether any and what means could be adopted to force them to disclose what funds, if any, they had on hand belonging to the late government, and to compel their application in part liquidation of the claims of the bondholders. Mr. FLEMING gave a long and elaborate opinion, in which he enters fully into the doctrine of State Rights, and argues that if the Confederate States had not lost their existence as independent States before the contraction of the loan, and he thinks not, there is no ground on which the original validity can be successfully called in question. If his view is correct, then the United States have taken the property of the Confederate States subject to the charge of the loan, and that which has become the property of the United States, continues liable to the charge. He has no doubt that if the contractor has any property or fund fowarded by the Confederate Government to meet any liabilities on account of the loan, that the contractor is liable to the contractors, and that it would be prudent to file a bill in equity against the contractor.

On this opinion the committee remark that the opinion of Mr. FLEMING on the case leaves no doubt that sooner or later, either the United States or the States which formed the confederation, will recognize and pay the loan. After some desultory conversation, the report was received but not adopted, and the meeting stands adjourned until the 18th of January next.

A STORY FROM FRANKFORT.

The Europe, of Frankfort, publishes a communication announcing that the correspondence of Messrs. SCHROEDER & Co., relative to the Confederate Cotton Loan, will shortly be published in that city, with a list of payments made to English journalists for writing articles in the Confederate interest. In the same communication it is asserted that the "forged list" was regarded as authentic, not only at New-York, but at Richmond, where it was found among other official papers of the late government. These assertions are not accompanied by any signature, and the Europe does not venture to vouch for them.

THE ALABAMA CORRESPONDENCE.

OPINIONS OF THE FRENCH PRESS.

Several of the Paris journals publish comments on the dispatches exchanged between Mr. ADAMS and Earl RUSSELL, and seem to look on them as mere diplomatic sparring, and nothing more. The Presse declares that all idea of hostilities between America and England on such a futile cause is simply preposterous, and that the rapidity with which the Cabinet of Washington has disbanded its troops, and restored its peace establishment, proves that it has not the slightest intention of assuming a belligerent attitude. The writer adds: "Mr. SEWARD and Mr. ADAMS are too intelligent not to comprehend that although their complaints are serious, although their demand possesses an incontestable character of equity, if considered in the strict point of view of the existing right of nations, still there has not been on the part of the British Government any precise material violation of national and international law. It is certain, on the other hand, that the said Cabinet has not acted, with respect to the Union, in a straightforward and friendly manner—has observed a neutrality more apparent than real." Our cotemporary believes that the Government of the United States has a more elevated object in view than any pecuniary reparation, namely, to call the attention of the civilized world, and of all the governments concerned, to the omissions and imperfections of the present law of nations, and to provoke from general good sense, and the force of public opinion, a legislation on the subject of a more extended and equitable character, and more in conformity with the progress of civilization.

The Monde, on the same subject, remarks: "The American Government has not yet arrived at a satisfactory arrangement with the Cabinet of St. James in regard to the question of maritime indemnities, and the recognition of the Confederates. A commission, however, is spoken of. That comedy might very well be called after that of SHAKESPEARE, 'Much Ado About Nothing.' Doubtless the government of Washington only wishes to get rid of its responsibility toward the American shipowners plundered by the Confederate corsairs. It often requires a much less serious affair to bring about a war; and if one sets aside the grandiloquent causes to which were attributed the Mexican expedition, the indemnities demanded from JUAREZ were not more worth speaking of than those demanded from Lord RUSSELL. Under the present circumstances, however, such an eventuality is not to be dreaded, and the notes of Mr. SEWARD will merely be made use of as a matter of reference, should the relations between England and America assume an unfriendly tone at some future period."

CONTINENTAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

THE CHOLERA IN PARIS.

PARIS, Thursday, Oct. 19.

The Moniteur at last breaks the silence it has hitherto kept on the prevailing malady. It does not, indeed, give precise accounts of the numbers attacked, those that are cured and those to whom it has proved fatal. It merely copies an article from the Moniteur du Soir, referring to the measures proposed by the Imperial Government with a view to prevent its recurrence hereafter. It mentions the fact of Marseilles, Toulon, Arles, and some secondary towns of the south of France that were most severely visited, being now relieved from it, and that in other parts of the country there are only a few isolated cases. The government ought to be best informed of the real state of the case, particularly as regards the capital, and it is encouraging to learn from its official organ that—

"Paris in particular has been, relatively speaking, but very slightly affected by it, since the number of cholera patients admitted into the hospital, or attacked while in them during the day, is now (yesterday) 110, and there is every indication that the epidemic will pass off without any serious development."

The Moniteur considers it very satisfactory that the mass of the population are by no means disquieted, and that there is no necessity, as on former occasions, to seek to reassure them. They perfectly understand that the evil conditions which in other times made epidemics chiefly dangerous and promoted their development, no longer exist, but have made way for a very different state of things. It is not Paris only that is transformed. Great ameliorations have taken place in many other respects. Employment widely sustained, wages greatly raised, and, above all, education more extended, have made the whole of France almost a new country, in which the misery and maladies of former times are not to be found. Employment, wellbeing, instruction, are, in point of fact, the conservative agents, par excellence, of the public health, and the best remedy against epidemics. While every confidence should be placed in so improved a state of things, "owing," as the Moniteur justly observes, "to the personal initiation of the Emperor," it is yet incumbent on every one, in order to secure the advantages of them, to observe certain precautions of which experience has demonstrated the efficacy. The Prefects have in their possession the instructions drawn up in 1854 by the Board of Health, which leave nothing to be desired, and which, in case of need, are the best guide to follow. The same may be said of those drawn up by the Academy of Medicine in 1849, which are a model of precision and clearness. Indeed, the counsels with regard to the cholera are reduced to very simple precepts, dictated as well by common sense as by science. These are—scrupulous personal cleanliness, warm clothing, cleanliness in habitations, removal of filth of every kind, ventilation, ordinary regimen, the usual food, provided it be not prejudicial to health, and the absence of all excess. But what should above all be shunned is the abuse of strong liquors, bad eau-de-vie, and especially absinthe—the abuse of which is at present so general.

An excellent precaution consists in taking in the morning, before going out into the open air, particularly when the day is cold, moist or foggy, a warm and aromatic infusion, such as camomile, light tea, or, still better, a little coffee. The last, recommended by our military doctors, was of great service in Algeria and the Crimea, and is still so to the men employed in the Custom-house service on the coast. This cannot be too highly recommended.

It is a great mistake to suppose that the malady shows itself all of a sudden. On the contrary, its approach is indicated one, two, even eight days beforehand. There is generally a derangement of the bodily functions, more or less marked, such as diarrhea. This premonitory symptom should not be neglected. It should be treated promptly, and stopped, and this will cut short the malady. The most precise observations have been made on this point in France as well as abroad, "and particularly in England, where it is made a general system of preservation." The Moniteur repeats the instruction for proper treatment in such cases (and which are most simple) already issued in 1854. It concludes:

"The observance of these precautions, and a certain tranquillity of mind, are the best chances, in the present circumstances of salubrity, cleanliness and relative comfort of our populations, of the public being preserved from the epidemic, and, in case of attack, of arresting its effects."

At the sitting of the Academy of Sciences on Tuesday, M. COSTA, the Secretary, mentioned that he had received a mass of letters announcing what were called "infallible receipts" for the cholera, more or less absurd—one, for instance, that "the patient should be enveloped in a blanket of new wool, and made to swallow the wing of a fowl very hot," &c.

Dr. BONNAFOND read a paper on the same subject. He stated that the condition of climate, geology, &c., of a country engendered distinct maladies. Thus the cholera is peculiar to India, the yellow fever to America, the intermittent fever to Africa, and so forth. He did not think that the carcases of the animals sacrificed by the pilgrims to Mecca could account for the epidemic. Africa should on these grounds be constantly ravaged; and the plains of La Plata, where thousands of cattle were slaughtered, should be likewise infected. He was of opinion that the malady should be combated in the very place of its origin—namely, India. The cause of it in India is found perhaps in the mud of the rivers, "and it would suffice to modify their régime to avoid the morbid effluvia. The measures which the French Government recently suggested should not be limited to Cairo or Constantinople, but be extended to India."

M. LE VERRIER, the well-known astronomer, complained that the time of the academy was taken up in condemning remedies without indicating those which were more capable of arresting the evil. The newspapers publish receipts every day which contradict each other. Every medical man had his own system. What was necessary was to point out at least what should be first done in the absence of the doctor. In a word, he wanted positive indications, instead of negative discussions.

These remarks called up the celebrated surgeon, Dr. VELPEAU, who said:

"M. LE VERRIER appears desirous that I should answer him. To indicate efficacious remedies is easy to say, but difficult to realize. The cholera is a malady, as yet really little known, and which, like other maladies, is often cured without remedies. Many maladies, gentlemen, are cured without remedies. The truth should be told. In 1839 we tried all the means which are this day again so much spoken of. In some instances they were successful; in others they failed. Was it because the patient cured himself alone, or was it the remedy that cured him? We do not know. How many persons are sure of their remedy? They speak of it confidently, and yet the patient is lost. It is probable that in the first case he cured himself, and that the remedy did not do much. This does not prevent every one from believing that his own receipt is infallible. Every doctor, like every other mortal, has his remedy. There is nothing so difficult as to indicate remedies where every one meddles in the matter."

Dr. VELPEAU then related an anecdote of LOUIS XIV. and his physician, FAGON, exemplifying what he had just said, and continued:

"I am obliged to avow that it is not always in our power to point out an efficacious remedy. The cholera is no doubt caused by the introduction of a poison into the organism. If the poisonous element is in small quantity, and the organism strong, it makes no ravages; if the contrary be the case, the danger is real. Also when the patient absorbs what is administered to him, his cure is probable. But sometimes the stomach refuses to absorb anything; and in this case recourse should be had to external means, which are often insufficient. In a word, the malady almost always commences by characteristic symptoms, such as premonitory diarrhœa. The preventive treatment is easy, and it is for each person to guard himself. Excess of every kind should be carefully avoided, and the rules of salubrity attentively observed. The means of arresting the malady at its outset are very simple. My advice is this—pour from three to four drops of laudanum on a lump of sugar and swallow it. Repeat in two hours afterward, and so on, until the cholic and vomiting pass away. Take also very small injections of starch, poppy flowers with 6, 7, 8, or 10 drops of laudanum. This treatment will almost always suffice to stop the diarrhœa, and guarantee against the malady."

Dr. MONTANIER writes to the papers to say that he visited on Tuesday the Hotel Dieu, the most important and the most central hospital of Paris. He found that there were admitted on Saturday from 30 to 35 patients. On Sunday there were only 10 or 12. On Monday but five or six, and up to 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning not one. He was informed that the same proportions were observed in the other Paris hospitals; and, moreover, that the Hotel Dieu may at this moment be considered as the indicator of the public health. He adds that, while the cases diminished in number on Sunday and Monday, their gravity always diminished; that sudden cases are rare, and that the cures are proportionately more numerous than on previous days. He has every reason to hope that, with the cold weather which is coming on, the epidemic will continue to decrease, and soon disappear; but at the same time it is right to guard against the effects of so sudden a change in the temperature.

The Union Médicale contains the statement that the cholera is exceedingly light in Paris. It says:

"The number of admissions to the hospitals diminished sensibly in the course of Sunday. Another reassuring sign is that the patients admitted have a better aspect, and that the cases are becoming more accessible to the resources of art. The epidemic doubtless makes its influence felt in nearly all the quarters of Paris, but it may be said in extending its range to decrease in gravity. On the other hand, if the number of admissions into the hospitals still continues high, that of the departures, in consequence of cure, augments every day. The general opinion of the doctors is that the malady within the last few days has reached its maximum of intensity, and that it has now entered on a period of decline. The lowering of the temperature cannot but favor that tendency."

THE DISEASE REMAINS STATIONARY.

Paris medical papers state that the cholera remains stationary.

The Emperor NAPOLEON visited the Hotel Dieu to satisfy himself that proper care and attention was bestowed on the cholera patients.

AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE.

The English Government had given its adhesion to the proposal of France that an International Sanitary Conference should assemble at Constantinople with the object of devising measures for preventing the spread of cholera from Asia into Europe, and removing as far as possible the causes which lead to outbreaks of this epidemic. The proposal had been favorably received by most of the European governments.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Paris Bourse closed firm Oct. 21, at 67f. 97c. for the Rentes.

It is stated that M. MIRODE, the Papal Minister of War has not resigned, but has obtained leave of absence.

It is reported that the Papal army is much disorganized.

ITALY.

GARIBALDI had declined a nomination to the Italian Parliament, offered by Turin.

GERMANY.

Prussia and Austria had addressed a note to the Senate of the free town of Frankfort in reference to a recent meeting in that town of delegates from the German Diets.

The Wiener Zetung publishes an article on the subject, in which it says by assembling at Frankfort the deputies had exceeded their privileges, and the attempt to organize the committee of December, 1836, as a permanent political institution was entirely illegal. Prussia and Austria were so much the more justified in protesting against such a meeting, since, during the debates, disparaging remarks were made in reference to both the great powers.

The note sent to Frankfort was a preliminary warning to the Senate that in case it should prove inefficacious, other measures were contemplated.

SWEDEN.

Certain journals of Stockholm recently published articles having for object the formation of a Scandinavian State, to defend the Swedish and Danish nationalities against the invasions of foreign powers. The official journal of the Stockholm Cabinet having itself produced an article written in the same sense, the government had hastened to disavow it, and to disclaim any share in a Scandinavian manifestation.

SPAIN.

The cholera had almost disappeared from Madrid. The number of inhabitants who had left the city on account of the cholera is said to have been 80,000.

MADAGASCAR.

Intelligence from Madagascar states that a serious disturbance had taken place there, on account of the payment of the indemnity to the French Government. The populace assembled under the windows of the Queen's palace, where they raised loud cries for the expulsion of the French Consul and all the Catholic mission. The nobles then interfered and promised the people that they should receive satisfaction. The French Consul declared that he would not leave without an order from his government.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

The discount demand at the Bank of England, on the 20th, was moderate, and in the Stock Exchange advances continue to be offered at 5½@6 ℔ cent. An improved tone prevailed, owing to the more favorable bank statement.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday, Oct. 21.

COTTON—The Brokers' Circular says: "The market opened with an active demand, and in the early part of the week a large business was done, at advancing rates; but since Tuesday the inquiry has fallen off, and the sales have been comparatively limited, with a downward tendency in prices, buyers seeming disposed to wait for the increased choice the large import will afford. The death of Lord PALMERSTON has tended in some degree to unsettle the prevailing feeling of confidence both here and throughout the manufacturing districts. In Sea Island an extensive business has again been effected at full prices. American continues in demand, particularly for export and on speculation, but is freely offered, and has declined ¾d.@1d. ℔ ℔., and some considerable sales have been made from the quay at a greater reduction. Brazils advanced ¾d.@1d. ℔ ℔., but closed only ¼d.@½d. over last week's rates. Egyptians also were active, and fully 1d. dearer, but the advance has been almost lost. The sales of the week amount to 86,460 bales, including 32,260 bales on speculation, and 19,610 bales for export. The quotations are:

The sales yesterday (Friday) were 10,000 bales, of which 5,000 bales were on speculation and for export, market closing steadier. The stock on hand is estimated at 280,370 bales, of which 37,350 are American.

MANCHESTER TRADE.

Business had been almost suspended during the last few days, and a dull feeling prevailed with prices in favor of buyers, closing without improvement as regards cloth and little or none as regards yarns.

BREADSTUFFS.—Messrs. RICHARDSON, SPENCE & Co., WAKEFIELD, NASH & Co., report Flour in good demand at an advance of 6d. ℔ barrel on week. Wheat active and 2d. per cental dearer owing to scarcity. Meeting at Faneuil Hall in Aid of the New Labor Movement.

BOSTON, Friday, Nov. 3.

There was a large meeting of working men in Faneuil Hall last night to help forward the movement for establishing an eight-hour system of labor. Resolutions were adopted, and speeches made by WENDELL PHILLIPS, Major MOHEN and others, advocating the movement; and letters were read from Hon. A. H. BULLOCK and Gens. COUCH and BUTLER, expressing an interest in whatever may permanently benefit the working men of the country.

THE CHOLERA ON SHIPBOARD.

Arrival of the Steamship Atalanta with Emigrants—Nineteen Deaths Among the Passengers—The Vessel Placed in Strict Quarantine—Special Meeting of the Commissioners of Health—Important Sanitary Measures Recommended—No Occasion for Alarm or Excitement.

About 7 o'clock on Thursday evening the steamship Atalanta arrived at this port from London and Havre with a number of cases of cholera on board. The vessel sailed from London with about 180 passengers, and on arriving at Havre received about 400 more, most of whom were Germans. On the second day out a child of one of the passengers shipped at Havre died from exhaustion produced by diarrhea, as was supposed, and shortly afterward several other persons were attacked, fifteen of whom died. The disease, the nature of which was then unknown to the passengers, was confined entirely to the steerage, none of those in the cabin, suffering in the least.

The physician on board of course knew that the cases were cholera, but fearing that a statement of the fact would create great excitement among his patients, he prudently withheld the knowledge from them. The cabin passengers, who became aware very early in the voyage that cholera was on the vessel, adopted the plan not only of making themselves as comfortable as possible, but of diverting their minds from the subject by amusements of various kinds. They were careful concerning their diet, but in other respects they lived without any apparent regard to consequences. Some of the steerage passengers decided towards the close of the voyage to follow the example of the cabin passengers; and they too occupied their time in the manner most likely to banish melancholy thoughts.

The dead were buried as speedily as possible, none of the bodies being kept on board more than an hour.

ARRIVAL OF THE ATALANTA AT NEW-YORK.

On the arrival of the vessel in the upper bay, she was anchored at Quarantine, and Capt. PINKHAM made a signal by burning a rocket that he wished to communicate with the Health Officer. The signal was not, however, observed, the duties of the Health Officer ceasing at sunset. At a later hour the Captain dispatched a messenger on shore with the statement that cholera was among his passengers, that the physician who had charge of them had exhausted his strength, and asking for help immediately. The Assistant Health Officer went on board and was met by the surgeon of the Atalanta, a German who explained the facts, and gave an account of the manner in which he had treated the passengers, of whom he said about one-quarter that had been attacked had died.

The Assistant Health Officer proceeded to the steerage of the vessel and found ten sick persons, who were lying in their berths. Two were in a state of collapse; others were in the first stages of the disease. The officer then communicated the fact to Dr. SWINBURNE, Health Officer of the Port, who was spending the night in New-York, and at an early hour in the morning he ordered the Atalanta to proceed to the lower bay. Dr. SAYRE, Resident Physician, was also made aware of the facts and communicated them to the Mayor, who yesterday morning called a which was held in the Mayor's office, and at which were present the Mayors of Brooklyn and Jersey City, the Health Officer of Brooklyn, Police Commissioner ACTON, Drs. SWINBURNE, SAYRE and MURPHY, and the Presidents of the Boards of Aldermen and Councilmen.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the commission to frame a memorial to the General Government, praying for a suitable site for the erection of a quarantine station for cholera patients, presented the following report:

At a meeting of the Health Commissioners of the City of New-York, held Oct. 26, there were present by special invitation the Mayors of the several adjacent cities, the Health Officer of the Port of New-York, and the Health Officers and Physicians of the cities of New-York and Brooklyn. The subject of the communication of the Secretary of the United States to the Governors of the several States recommending the establishment of prompt and rigid quarantine regulations for the protection of the people of this country against the introduction of cholera, received from them due and very careful consideration, and a special committee was appointed to draft a memorial in order to obtain a suitable site for the detention of cholera patients and passengers from vessels infected with cholera arriving at this port.

They beg respectfully to represent that they concur in the opinions expressed by the governmental authorities in reference to the necessity of establishing proper quarantine regulations at the several ports of the country, to guard, if possible, against the introduction among us from foreign countries, of this terrible scourge, cholera.

They respectfully represent to the government that the City of New-York, being the great commercial emporium of the country, its port is the most liable to receive the first and greatest visitation of this disease, and consequently the most prompt and rigid quarantine should pertain here above all other ports in the country, if by that means the advent of this disease can be prevented.

They further represent that the authorities of the port of New-York, are without a proper place to establish a quarantine ground to meet this anticipated emergency, their quarantine accommodations for the reception and care of other quarantinable diseases are only tolerably efficient, but for a disease of this character they are very unsuitable. Humanity demands that the afflicted should receive from us every effort and means conducive to their recovery. This disease, above all others of a pestilential character, requires of those whom it attacks the most absolute rest for their recovery. This they cannot obtain on board of our floating hospitals. To land them upon Staten or Long Island, their proximity to the several cities would be such as would practically ignore quarantine restrictions altogether. In this dilemma we, the authorities, whose names are hereunto subscribed, most earnestly and respectfully request the United States Government to grant for the purpose of a temporary quarantine ground, in case the emergency arises by a visitation of the cholera at the port of New-York, the lands, or so much or such part thereof, as may be deemed necessary and suitable, now owned or possessed by the government, situated at Sandy Hook, in the lower bay of this port, the same to be selected and set apart for such temporary use, by a committee or some officer of the government, in conjunction with a committee of your petitioners, at the earliest moment possible.

This locality, on account of its distance from the cities; its remoteness from the great lines of travel, its facilities for anchorage and landing the sick; its isolation, and many other advantages, renders it the most suitable and eligible place to be found anywhere, and the only suitable one in the bay and harbor of New-York that can be effectively used in this anticipated emergency.

ORESTES CLEVELAND,
Mayor of Jersey City.
J. B. JONES, M. D.,
Health Officer, Brooklyn.
JOHN SWINBURNE, M. D.,
Health Officer, Port New-York.
LEWIS A. SAYRE,
Resident Physician, New-York City.

The report was unanimously adopted, and ORESTES CLEVELAND, Esq., Mayor of Jersey City; Dr. SAYRE, Resident Physician at this port, and Dr. ANDERSON, of Staten Island, one of the Commissioners of Quarantine, were appointed a committee to proceed to Washington to present a memorial to the President.

A resolution was then offered by Dr. SAYRE, and adopted, inviting all medical men skilled in the treatment of cholera and kindred diseases to meet the Commissioners of Health and afford them such information as they may be in possession of in regard to the disease and its treatment, and advise with them on the proper sanitary measures to be adopted to prevent the spread of the cholera.

Dr. SWINBURNE, Health Officer, said that the Florence Nightingale, the floating hospital which was now lying in the upper bay, would at once be towed down to the lower bay to receive the cholera patients from the Atalanta; that a most strict and rigid quarantine would be enforced, and that all communication with the shore would be cut off.

The Commissioners then adjourned to meet again at the call of the chair.

The Commissioners of Health will probably issue an address to the public in a few days. In the meantime they say that, charged with the all-important duty of protecting the public health, they have to announce that the cholera has appeared on our shores. They deem it their duty to apprise the public of the approach of danger, and pledge themselves to make known all such facts connected with the spread or diminution of the disease as may come to their knowledge. They warn the community to disregard all rumors, and to rely on the facts as made public from time to time by the Commissioners themselves. No case of cholera has yet occurred within the city. The Commissioners pledge themselves that so far as a rigid quarantine is of avail they will prevent the introduction of the disease within the city. All proper arrangements are being made to guard the city against the spread of cholera should it be introduced, and they call on all citizens to join with them in the work in which all have a common stake. They urge on every one the importance of attending to the cleanliness of their houses and yards, and their own persons, of avoiding all excesses, of seeing that their apartments are properly ventilated, of refraining from excessive exercise, and of maintaining mental quietude; and on the approach of the disease—the presence of which is always indicated by diarrhea and lassitude—of immediately assuming a horizontal position, of keeping the body warm, and of freeing the mind from all anxiety.

NUMBER OF DEATHS.

The whole number of cases of cholera which occurred on the Atalanta during the voyage was between fifty and sixty. Of these, fifteen died. Four have died since arriving in port, and there are now about twenty cases in different stages of development.

THE VESSEL.

The Atalanta is consigned to HOWLAND & ASPINWALL, of this city. She is said to have been used in the Mediterranean grain trade, and is totally unfit for the conveyance of passengers, having neither the proper accommodations nor proper ventilation.

The ship Rhine, which arrived here at about the same time as the Atalanta, had no case of cholera on board.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE DISEASE.

The apparent certainty that the cholera has, at all events, been brought to our shores, in the manner we have described, renders some account of its history and peculiarities of no small importance. It is no new, nor newly-discovered, disease. Of Asiatic origin, it has been at times terribly fatal in that quarter of the globe. It is even said that 30,000 lives were lost in Upper Hindostan by its ravages just 100 years ago. And the first great epidemic of the kind which traveled over the world in 1817 originated about 100 miles north of Calcutta, in the delta of the Ganges. It was at this period that its character appears to have been recognized in Europe. More than probably, however, many of the visitations which had before decimated the population of various countries were in reality caused by the same influences and with similar symptoms and results. Bad drainage, filthy habits, streets choked with putrid refuse matter, inefficient domestic sanitary arrangements, were in many parts of Europe more common a century ago than at present, and these produced a rate of mortality which was unnoticed because the rule rather than the exception.

The attack of 1817, in India, was terribly fatal in its character. It broke out north of Calcutta, and in a month the city itself was attacked, and for a year was under its influence. Traveling southward, Madras, Ceylon and Malacca were successively visited; and in 1819, the Burmese Empire and the country eastward were reached. Bombay was next (1820) the chief seat of the disease, and no less than 150,000 persons fell victims. In this year, Borneo, China and the Philippine Islands became affected, and in 1821 Persia, Arabia and Asia Minor. After a brief lull, it reappeared in Central Asia, with disastrous results. Europe began to suffer in 1829, first in Southern Russia and next in Moscow. In 1831, Central Europe was overspread, and Sunderland, England, began to be infected in October of the same year. The next year, in January, Edinburgh, and in February, London, were overspread, the number of deaths being, however, comparatively small. One month later, Paris and the whole of France were visited.

The cholera paid this continent its first visit on June 8, 1832, at Quebec, six months after its appearance at Sunderland. Thirteen days afterward this city began to suffer, losing, during the whole visitation, 3,513 lives, and the disease traveled in various directions, attacking Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, and many other towns—in October spreading from Cincinnati to New-Orleans.

We give the course traced by the ravages of cholera as showing its steady advance and apparent inevitability. The subsequent occasions upon which that course has taken, are, in the main, similar in Europe, and it will be remembered that cholera was distinctly present in India last year. The virulence of the attacks has varied considerably, both as to number and locality. Although there were relapses in Europe in 1835, 1836 and 1837, the mortality on this side the Atlantic was hardly of an epidemic nature. The visitation of 1849 cost this city 5,071 lives, and that of 1854, 2,509 lives. In 1834, 971 persons died, and in 1852 374. There may be added to these figures 137 deaths scattered over other periods. The total number of victims to cholera in New-York since 1832, has been 12,575.

Our foreign news has shown the progress of cholera in Europe during the present year. The same regions as on former occasions appear to have been reached, gone through their course of the disease and left behind. But although the presumption is fair that we may be subjected to a new attack, yet it would be folly to regard it as certain that we shall be so. The fact of cholera existing in a foreign vessel at quarantine is not of the least general importance as indicating probabilities either way. Not a year passes, as is stated by the quarantine authorities, in which such vessels do not arrive, without detriment to the health of any on shore. Not only this, but several of the cholera epidemics which have appeared in Europe have not crossed the ocean, and the present may not do so. Of course, precautions will be necessary. Officials must look to the cleanliness of the city; landlords, the landlords of the filthy dens called lodging-houses, must sacrifice a few dollars, though it break their sordid hearts; and individuals, heads of families, must so regulate their households that habits of order and decency are the rule.

The symptoms of cholera are well defined and easily recognized. Diarrhea, and a general feeling of weakness and depression, are the first. The sufferer should at once go to bed and be at rest, not allowing himself to feel alarm. A surgeon is the next requisite. Opiates, combined with camphor and stimulants, are generally considered most effective.

The market for Money worked rather easier to the Brokers than on Thursday, at 7 ⅌ cent. It has not been a difficult market, indeed, to borrow on at call any time this week. Merchant paper in fair request at from 7½ to 9 ⅌ cent. for first-class names. Exchange appeared a little stiff early in the day for Saturday's steamers, but closed quiet and steady at 108⅞@109 for standard bills on London, and 5 francs 18¾ centimes to 5 francs 17½ centimes to the dollar on Paris. There is no export demand for Gold. The Customs demand also fell off to-day. The receipts into the Treasury from this source were $316,000; the payments out for Gold Interest, $174,000. The price of Gold, in the Gold Room, was 146⅜@146⅞ ⅌ cent. The firmness is attributed in part to the rumored moderate stock of Gold held among the Bullion Brokers in the Bank of New-York.

The late European news by the Java, this morning, is financially satisfactory. The condition of the Bank of England reported easier, and no prospect of a further rise in interest. There is also less disturbance to the movement of the Bank of France. Money 6¾@7 per cent. for discounts in London, and on the Stock Exchange 5½@6 per cent. American Stocks were steady in prices on a very considerable business in 5-20s, Eries and Illinois Centrals. Government Stocks in our own market were steady to-day on the 7-30 Currency Loans; a trifle lower on 5-20s, old issue.

The Railway speculation continues under considerable excitement, and one or two fresh movements were made to-day on the Western list, such as Wabash and Toledo, and a further large rise on Prairie du Chien. The latter sold as high as 93 per cent. at one moment, and this before any signs of making the Stock very scarce for delivery. The price subsequently fell back to 88, as against 82½ last evening at 4 o'clock. Erie sold up to 94, and New-York Central to 102 per cent. Fort Wayne, North West and Michigan Southern in less favor for the moment, while Pittsburgh was again tending upward. Reading steady. The Coal tonnage of the Road this week is 82,700 tons.

The Miscellaneous shares are generally firm. The bidding for Pacific Mail, both on Scrip and full shares, has advanced upon the establishment of through trips three times per month, all from New-York to San Francisco, now under the single and very greatly improved management of the Pacific Company. Their new first-class steamer Henry Chauncy sailed on Wednesday for Aspinwall, full of passengers and freight, all embarked with less confusion and more comfort to passengers than was ever before known in clearing from this port for California. The police of the occasion was equal to the best regulated New-York and European passenger lines.

At the close of business on Broad-street, (Open Board of Brokers,) the following quotations were made. The Railways were feverish, though generally tending to firmness. Erie was about 94; New-York Central, 102; Prairie du Chien, 90; and Pittsburgh, 82. Gold left off 146⅝ ⅌ cent.:

Prosperity of First National Bank.

From the New-York Tribune.

The First National Bank of this city made today its fifth semi-annual dividend of ten per cent., payable on Tuesday, Nov. 7.

The institution has been so preëminently successful, that a brief history of its organization and progress becomes quite interesting.

It is the first and oldest National Bank in this city. Its articles of association are dated July 3, 1863. On the same day the first Board of Directors were elected, and $60,000, the first installment of the capital, paid in; and on the 22d of August, by another installment of $40,000—making $100,000 paid-up capital—the Bank commenced business. On the 23d of September, $100,000 more capital was paid in, and on the 2d of December, $100,000 more; and on the 13th of April, 1864, $200,000 additional capital were subscribed and paid up, making the capital $500,000.

During the two years, 1864 and 1865, the bank has paid five dividends of 10 ⅌ cent. each, and has $200,000 surplus and about $50,000 to the credit of profit and loss, after paying the recent dividend and every expense. There is not a dollar of bad or doubtful asset in the bank. This unprecedented success is, to a large degree, attributable to the fact that no loans are made except on United States securities as collateral. On the 23d of November, 1864, the Board of Directors unanimously adopted the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, Owing to the large amount of Government Securities in the hands of the people, many of whom will desire temporary loans on such securities, which will in the aggregate employ the money of the Bank at fair interest, thus keeping its means active on United States Stocks as a collateral with a margin; therefore,

Resolved, That this Bank confine its discounts to collateral loans on United States Securities on call or at short dates.

Resolved, That this Bank issue to depositors, when so desired, deposit receipts instead of the ordinary bank pass-book; such deposit receipts to be payable on demand, and to bear interest not exceeding 4 ⅌ cent. per annum, but no interest shall be allowed on deposit receipts paid within fifteen days from the date of issue.

This bank was appointed Fiscal Agent of the Treasury and Government Depository in November, 1863, and since then has received and disbursed over $100,000,000 of government money. It has always proclaimed national currency par money, and saved it from being discredited.

On the 4th of last month this bank became a member of the Clearing-house Association.

The banking house of the First National Bank, No. 140 Broadway, is the most magnificent in the country, and the bank in its business keeps actively employed about 25 officers and clerks, its receipts and disbursements being about $2,000,000 per day. The chief officers are SAMUEL C. THOMPSON, President; GEORGE F. BAKER, Cashier; EBEN SCOFIELD, Assistant Cashier, and N. D. HARE, Chief Clerk of Government Department.

Opening of the New Merchants' Exchange, Chicago.

On last Tuesday evening an institution new to Chicago, and the result of individual enterprise, was formally inaugurated. The mercantile community had long felt the need of some local habitation, where those interested in various business enterprises could meet to interchange views on the all-absorbing topic of their several pursuits, untrammeled by rules as to time, and Mr. EDGAR W. MORSE has gratified them, and given to the local habitation his name. The room is situated in the centre of SMITH & NIXON'S new building, next to the Chamber of Commerce, and only separated therefrom by the intervening court. Going up the rear stairs to the left of the passage we arrive on the second floor, on which is some sixty feet square. This is MORSE'S Merchants' News-room—and a splendid and spacious apartment it is, lighted by eleven stately windows. They have a very brilliant and airy look. The room itself is not yet furnished, but it will be thoroughly frescoed, ornamented, and provided with every necessary accommodation. At present the whole of its furniture consists of a long and narrow kind of desk, on which are placed all the chief papers in the United States and in Europe, with the name of each State and county labeled in printed characters over them, and a number of business cards. Over the main door is a ship in full rig, sail and color—a steamer—a screw propeller—very nicely modeled and executed. We have never seen more delightful rooms. The main hall is large, roomy, and admirably ventilated. The speaker's desk and telegraph office are opposite the desk on which the newspapers and circulars are filed; over the speaker's desk is hung a three-quarter length portrait of the projector and manager—E. W. MORSE, Esq. The centre of the north end is festooned with two large American flags, surmounted by the "screaming bird of Jove."

The inaugural ceremonies attendant upon the opening of the room took place this evening, and passed off with great credit to all concerned. The room was filled at an early hour with an assemblage of some five or six hundred gentlemen, representing the various business interests of this city, and the opinion expressed was an unanimous one, that the Exchange might be in every sense considered a perfect success. VAAS & DEAN'S Light Guard Orchestra was present, and treated the assemblage to a choice selection of operatic gems. Mr. MORSE made a few introductory remarks. He thanked those present for the honor they had done him by their full attendance, and trusted that it would be but a harbinger of future patronage. He welcomed them to the room, and stated that its rules and regulations would be found suspended on the walls. He again thanked them, and concluded by stating that his purposes and views would be more fully unfolded by Mr. GEORGE C. BATES, of this city, who would address them. Hon. GEORGE C. BATES was then introduced. He gave a racy and picturesque sketch of Chicago as it was some thirty years ago, contrasting it with what it now is; and delivered a beautiful eulogy on the business men of Chicago, who are known all over the land for their enterprise and energy. Mr. BATES closed with a brief view of Chicago at present, the Merchants' Exchange and News-room, its objects and purposes, invoking in its behalf the patronage of the business men of Chicago. Upon the conclusion of Mr. BATES' admirable speech, the band struck up "Hail Columbia," and the audience by degrees vacated the hall.—Chicago Papers, Nov. 1.

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Friday, Nov. 3, 1865.

The receipts of the principal kinds of Produce, since our last, have been as follows: 6 bbls. Ashes, 24,902 bbls. Flour, 2,038 bbls., and 1,600 bags Corn Meal, 91,348 bushels Wheat, 97,980 bushels Corn, 23,243 bushels Rye, 44,225 bushels Barley, 6,488 bushels Malt, 263 pkgs. Provisions, and 288 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Continue in limited demand, at $8 25 for Pots, and $8 50 for Pearls, ⅌ 100 ℔s.

BEESWAX—Has been quiet at former prices.

CANDLES—Have been in moderate demand at unchanged rates.

COCOA—Some sales of Guayaquil transpired to-day at old rates.

COFFEE—Has been inactive yet steady, including Java, at 28c.@32c.; Rio, at 18½c.@22½c.; Maracaibo, at 21c.@24½c.; Laguayra, at 21c.@23½c.; St. Domingo, at 18c.@19½c., in gold, ⅌ ℔.

COTTON—Is quiet, to-day, at about former figures. Middling Upland 56c.@57½c. ⅌ ℔. Sales and resales since our last, 1,400 bales. Messrs. J. H. DRAPER & Co. sold by auction to-day 2,167 bales Mobile Cotton, on government account, at from 42c. for low ordinary to 60c. for middling fair, 18c.@19½c. for pickings, and 71c. for (16 bales) Sea Island, ⅌ ℔. The receipts at this port, thus far this week, have averaged 4,529 bales a day, making 128,105 bales since the 1st of October, and 238,989 bales since the 1st of September. In a circular for the Scotia, Messrs. NEILL BROTHERS & Co. say: "The comparatively large receipts of cotton at the ports have surprised the very short-supply men. With 710,000 bales received at the chief ports since July 1, some 40,000 bales at the Florida, Texas and other smaller ports, not counted in the above, and 250,000 bales generally admitted to remain in Georgia, we count up a total already of 1,000,000 bales. Add to this 450,000 bales for nine tenths of the new crop, (assuming it, according to the estimate generally accepted, at half a million bales, of which not more than one-tenth is included in the above,) and we have an aggregate of 1,450,000 bales, or as much as the short-supply men promised us for the whole season. We submit, then, although some of these figures are only estimates, that those gentlemen are already put quite "out of court." We may reasonably expect large receipts for a few months to come, creating at least the appearance of an ample supply, and, at present high prices, pressing severely upon the money market. The stocks now held in the ports amount, in value, to about £14,000,000 sterling; and the value of the weekly receipts averages £2,500,000. The bulk of the further receipts will probably be exported; and as they will meet liberal supplies in the European markets, from Egypt, Brazil, &c., and probably increased shipments from India, and all with a stringent money market, we do not see why prices should not be allowed to subside to a lower level, and a safer basis be thus attained for business during the latter half of the season. Manufacturers may now make contracts for future delivery of their goods without the least apprehension of a scarcity of the raw material during the early Winter months.

The following is a statement of the movements of cotton for the week ending 21st instant, at the Southern ports, and 31st instant, at New-York; also, the total receipts of all ports since 1st September compared with the last four years preceding the war:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Atalanta, Capt. PINKHAM, arrived at this port on Thursday night with several cases of cholera on board. She left Havre with 452 passengers, mostly German, of whom fifteen died on the voyage, and four after reaching this port. She was sent by the Health Officer to the lower bay, and the floating hospital ship Florence Nightingale was dispatched to receive the patients, of whom there are now about twenty. A meeting of the Commissioners of Health was held yesterday, and a committee was dispatched to Washington with a memorial to the government asking that a suitable site may be set apart at Sandy Hook for the detention of vessels arriving here with cholera patients on board.

The Treasury department is preparing to immediately issue United States bonds amounting to $640,000 to the Union Pacific Railroad Company, Eastern Division, or at the rate of $16,000 per mile, in accordance with the law of Congress, forty miles of the road having been completed. In addition to this aid by the government, certain quantities of land are to be given as the surveys proceed, and the road progresses.

A dispatch from Milledgeville, Ga., dated Oct. 28, says Gov. JOHNSON has sent a message to the convention strongly urging repudiation of the State war debt.

The pigeon match for $1,000, between TAYLOR, of New-Jersey, and NEWELL, of Buffalo, at 100 double birds, was won by the former. TAYLOR scored 98, NEWELL 94.

It is reported that the South Carolina Legislature will continue in session until the middle of December.

FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Java arrived at this port yesterday morning with three days later intelligence from Europe. The English journals are almost entirely occupied with the late Lord PALMERSTON, and speculations in regard to his successor. No choice had been made when the Java left. An adjourned meeting of the holders of the Confederated bonds was held in London on the 18th, at which a report was submitted encouraging the bondholders to believe thot the United States must eventually adopt the loan and pay it! President JOHNSON'S dispatch to Gov. JOHNSON, of Georgia, will be very cold comfort to these forlorn gentlemen. The cholera was abating in Paris.

LOCAL NEWS.

A mass meeting was held last evening under the auspices of Council No. 1, Union League of America, at their rooms, corner of Eighth-avenue and Forty-sixth-street. Many ladies were present. The meeting was addressed by Rev. W. H. BOOLE, HIRAM W. BARNEY, Lieut. WILSON BERRYMAN, candidate for Assembly; JAMES H. AIKMAN and Rev. THOMAS LODGE. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the State and county ticket, and THOMAS MURPHY for Senator, and WILSON BERRYMAN for Assembly.

A large Union mass meeting was held in and around the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, last evening. The meeting was called to order by Mr. STEPHEN M. GRISWOLD. Addresses were made by Hon. WM. D. KELLY, Hon. HIRAM WALBRIDGE, Gen. KILPATRICK and Gen. JOHN A. LOGAN. A number of outside stands were erected, from which addresses were made by Dr. BENNETT and Messrs. SANDERSON, DUTCHER and PANGBORN.

A large and enthusiastic meeting, called to ratify the nomination of THOMAS C. MURPHY, Esq., for Senator, in the Seventh Senatorial District, was held last evening at the Everett Rooms, corner Broadway and Thirty-fourth-street. Speeches were made by Gen. SWIFT, Mr. OLIVER, Hon. RUFUS ANDREWS, Col. LEE, of Michigan, Judge DITTENHOEFER, and Rev. WM. H. BOOLE.

A fire occurred yesterday afternoon in Mr. CONRAD KRAUS' apartments, on the fourth floor of No. 114 East Fourth-street, and the machinery of the Metropolitan Fire Department reached the spot in season to extinguish the flames before they had extended beyond Mr. KRAUS' rooms.

At Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday, GEORGE GOODWIN BAKER, whom the police describe as one of the swell mob, was committed to await examination on a charge which Mr. MICHAEL B. CLINE had preferred, alleging that BAKER had robbed him of $3,883 38.

The arrivals of immigrants at the port of New-York numbered 9,814 during the week ending last evening, as follows: Oct. 28, 1,612; 29th, 959; 30th, 761; 31st, 2,284; Nov. 1, 1,228; 2d, 1,250; 3d, 1,770.

In the Superior Court, yesterday, a motion was made in the suit of Col. ALLEN against the Mexican General ORTEGA, to discharge the latter from arrest. The decision of the court was reserved.

Produce and Merchandise were moderately active yesterday. Flour and Wheat were dearer. Pork was lower. Corn and Barley favored buyers. Cotton was less buoyant. Limited freight engagements were reported.

The Customs revenue of the government, through the port of New-York, during the week ending last evening, amounted to $2,805,000, or a daily average of $467,500.

The Stock Market was again excited on the allways yesterday, and generally upward. Government stocks steady. Money in easy supply, at 7 ℔ cent. Exchange 109. Gold 146⅜.

The internal revenue of the government this week has averaged $1,684,580 a day, or equal to a weekly aggregate of $10,107,480.

The Copperhead Party in the Great Struggle.

The party which generated and nourished copperheadism is before the people for judgment, and it is well to refresh our memories a little by taking a backward glance upon its line of conduct through the war. Now that the struggle is finished, we are in a far better position than before to get a connected and just view of the manner in which this faction operated.

The Secessionists, it is known, relied with the utmost confidence, at the outset, upon the opposition of the Northern Democracy to all attempts of the government to resist them by force. In that absolute faith they opened their fire upon Sumter. That act, in a way they did not anticipate, electrified the North. Old party bonds in an instant melted away and disappeared. Patriotic devotion became the all-dominating feeling of the people; and the whole North, from the St. Croix to the St. Peter's, was transformed into one broad scene of moving soldiery. But the leading journals of the Democratic party felt no touch of this sacred fire. The echoes of Sumter's cannon had not died away before they were found apologizing for, and even justifying armed resistance to the authority of the government, and demanding that the government should yield. Not a Democratic journal of this city displayed the flag until compelled by the gathering crowds of an incensed people. For a time these prints were thus awed into the display of a tolerable degree of patriotic spirit; but as soon as they dared, they again began to find fault with the government, and to labor to revive the old party discords. We could, if necessary, reproduce from their columns scores of articles of this import, issued in the three months' interval between the fall of Sumter, in April, and the defeat at Bull Run, in July. Yet they had so little effect that when Congress met in extra session in this last month to provide for the war, only five members of the House voted against the appropriations to carry it on—of which five two were VALLANDIGHAM and BEN WOOD, and the other three were Border State men, who afterward went over to the Confederacy. Yet the effort to renew party strife was not relaxed, and by the next month it had made such an impression that the Democratic State Committee rejected overtures made by the Republican State Committee for the union of the parties at the coming Fall election. The consolidation of the public sentiment of the Empire State at that time into one vast compact vote, would have had an immense moral effect upon the Southern mind, which was deluded with the idea that the Northern uprising was nothing but a paroxysm of excitement that must quickly run its course. The Democratic leaders would not allow any such manifestation of settled purpose. They held their convention in September, nominated a separate ticket, and opened their first regular fire in the rear by a resolution censuring the administration for the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, and for its other measures which were indispensable to the effective prosecution of the war. They were of course heavily defeated at the polls.

The next month brought the Trent affair, and the English demand for the surrender of MASON and SLIDELL. The government made that surrender in strict conformity, it is believed, with the requirements of international law, as an irregularity had unquestionably been committed in not bringing the ship into port for trial. The factionists did everything in their power to prevent any settlement of the case. They courted a war with England, and for no other object than to compel us to make peace with JEFF. DAVIS on his own terms.

Time flowed on. MCCLELLAN, who had with universal consent been raised to the chief military command after the reverse at Bull Run on the strength of successes in Western Virginia, small in themselves, yet at that time deemed of great account, held the Army of the Potomac in check for eight months. Though all true men chafed under that protracted inaction, the Democratic leaders and journals kept up a constant praise of it. They clamored against the final order of President LINCOLN for a general movement. The inefficient generalship of MCCLELLAN brought a train of disasters; and these were made the most of to excite hatred of the Administration, and to undermine the faith of the people in the possibility of subduing the rebellion.

These reverses, instead of overwhelming the people with despair, had the effect of giving them a juster conception of the magnitude of the struggle, and bracing them to a firmer determination. The public mind began to be penetrated with the conviction that, if the nation were to be saved, slavery must be sacrificed. The rebel sympathizers of the North were early on the alert to prevent this resort. On the Tuesday of the very week that MCCLELLAN was conducting his awful retreat through the swamps of the Chickahominy, they made a great demonstration at the Cooper Institute, "against," (to use the language of their call,) "the further agitation of the negro question, and in favor of the restoration of the Union as it was, and the maintenance of the constitution as it is." WICKLIFFE, of Kentucky, was the principal speaker of that meeting. He went into a most furious tirade against Congress and the government for their incipient action against slavery, and was applauded to the echo. On the same week, ANDREW JOHNSON, now President of the United States, then Military Governor of Tennessee, made a speech in Nashville, in which he said: "If you persist in forcing the issue of slavery upon this government, I say in the face of Heaven, give me my government, and let the negroes go." In September, the President issued his preliminary proclamation, warning the South that if they did not return to their allegiance within one hundred days, he would, by virtue of the war power, issue a proclamation of universal emancipation.

The Democratic party held their convention the same month, and organized a most determined campaign against the government by the nomination of HORATIO SEYMOUR for Governor, who had never, so far as was known, contributed a cent from his wealth to the support of the war, and who had opposed it in open speech. Yet the convention did not declare against the war. It contented itself with selecting a man for the executive head of the State, who, it knew, would use his utmost power to embarrass the government. To win the favor of the people it professed to be for the more vigorous prosecution of the war. It had the face even to make the slow progress of the war the most prominent count in its indictment against the Administration, though at the very time the war was under the unrestricted management of MCCLELLAN, the special Democratic and rebel favorite. Care was taken in the other issues which were made—the suspension of the habeas corpus, the emancipation proclamation, and confiscation—to avoid all appearance of opposition to the war, and to present them solely as promotive of the salvation of the Union. By the skillful playing upon the war spirit, a great number of votes were secured to the party from the sincerest war men, and SEYMOUR was elected by ten thousand majority in a vote of six hundred and fifty thousand.

This control of the Empire State for two years was no sooner effected in this surreptitious way, than the mask was thrown off. Within a week after the election, FERNANDO WOOD and JOHN VAN BUREN made speeches to the Democratic Union Association of this city in which the one said that "for the Federal Government to impose its authority upon this State would be a violation of our rights to which the State would never submit," and the other declared in favor of an armistice and a national convention to amend the constitution. SEYMOUR was inaugurated on the first of January, and with him was inaugurated a systematic plan in the State, and throughout the breadth of the land, to break down the war. He sent into the Legislature a message of six columns, of which four were devoted to reproaches against the Administration of President LINCOLN, and to an effort to embitter the larger against the smaller States by holding out that the latter were the cause of the war, and that they had an undue representation in the Senate of the United States. The message was surcharged with the spirit of faction and alienation. Simultaneously, resolutions were introduced into the New-Jersey and the Illinois Legislatures for an armistice. Quickly after began the agitation for "leaving New-England out in the cold." Cox of Ohio, and JAMES BROOKS made fierce speeches before the revolutionary "Democratic Association" of this city for that end. VALLANDIGHAM was also brought on, whose specialty it was to vituperate the government without measure or scruple. In his speech, he declared that "nothing was wanting to make this government a complete and absolute despotism, as iron and inexorable as the worst despotisms of the Old World." He denounced the draft and defied the government to "send forth its minions, and lay its hands on the people of this country." He was applauded with vehemence. Resolutions were introduced into Congress about this period declaring that no foreign intervention or mediation could be allowed, and all the Copperheads either promptly voted against them, or dodged. In March came out the famous dispatch of Lord LYONS, in which he informed his government that soon after the Fall elections some of the Democratic leaders of New-York sought interviews with him, in which they stated that "if their own party were in power, or virtually controlled the administration, they would rather, if possible, obtain an armistice without the aid of foreign governments, but they would be disposed to accept an offer of mediation, if it appeared to be the only means of putting a stop to hostilities."

The elections up to that time had been conducted by the party on the issue that the war had been mismanaged; it was now resolved to try the issue of its abandonment outright. The ball was opened in Connecticut by the nomination of THOMAS H. SEYMOUR for Governor, a non-coercionist from the start, and with a platform unequivocally declaring for an immediate cessation of hostilities. SEYMOUR was badly defeated, and this had the effect to make the Copperhead leaders in the other States for a time more cautious in that line. The policy of balking the war indirectly was resumed; and the great rally was made against the enforcement of the Conscription Law. In May VALLANDIGHAM was arrested for his attempts to instigate violent resistance to that law. An indignation meeting of the Copperheads was immediately held in Albany, to which Gov. SEYMOUR sent a letter declaring that unless VALLANDIGHAM was released the majority of the North would go for abandoning the war. This letter was placarded throughout our city, and an indignation meeting was held here, in which the most inflammatory and revolutionary sentiments received public applause. VALLANDIGHAM was not released, and in the next month was nominated for Governor of Ohio. In the same month LEE commenced his great Northern invasion with an army brought up to the fullest possible force and highest discipline. The Copperheads applied themselves with greater vigor than ever to the discouragement of enlistments and the hindrance of the draft. On the Fourth of July, Gov. SEYMOUR addressed an immense crowd at the Academy of Music, in an elaborately prepared speech, the whole burden of which was in denunciation of the government as an insufferable tyranny, and the averment that the war as conducted was a dead failure. His language on the occasion seemed to be specially shaped to demoralize and depress the public mind to the greatest degree possible, and to fit it for a favorable reception of such terms of peace as LEE—then in Pennsylvania, and as was generally supposed by the Copperheads, destined to overwhelm the Federal army—might soon proffer. Nine days afterward came on the fearful insurrection in this city against the draft; the direct, and we may say necessary, effect of the teachings and instigations of the Copperhead leaders, though none of them personally participated in it. The horrors of that climax of Copperhead madness are burned indelibly upon the public memory. In Pennsylvania, Judge WOODWARD was nominated for Governor—a strong opponent of the Conscription Law, and who afterward decided formally on the bench that it was unconstitutional and void. In the Northwestern States, the opposition was carried on mainly by secret associations, which finally took the shape of the gigantic Northwestern conspiracy. Notwithstanding these hostile demonstrations the people remained firm. VALLANDIGHAM was defeated by over a hundred thousand majority, WOODWARD by over twenty thousand. In the November election in New-York, the Union ticket was elected by about thirty-five thousand majority; and in all the other Fall elections, almost without exception, the government received heavy majorities.

The Copperhead doings of the next year, 1864—the factious speeches and votes in Congress, the seditious public meetings, the operations of the secret societies, the peace machinations in Canada, the Chicago platform pronouncing the war a failure and demanding its abandonment and a national convention—are all fresh in recollection. It might have been supposed that the overwhelming declaration of the people in the Autumn of that year, by the reelection of President LINCOLN, for the continuance of the war, until the rebellion should make an unconditional surrender, would have intimidated or shamed the Copperheads into a passive acquiescence. It had no such effect. To the very last day of the struggle, Copperheadism continued its active hostility to the war, and to the government which was prosecuting it. After peace came, and President LINCOLN was assassinated, it sought to placate the people toward it by professing particular devotion to President JOHNSON and his reconstruction policy. But this characteristic shift has not deceived the people. In every election thus far, they have again visited upon it their heavy condemnation—resolved to make it a warning, for all time to come, against faction and sedition when the republic is in danger. It remains to be seen whether New-York has the same patriotic indignation and exalted purpose.

The Health Bill.

There is no one public matter which can come before the consideration of our citizens this Winter, half so important for their interests or lives, as the Health Bill to be presented to the next Legislature. We say their interests as well as their health, for an epidemic of cholera in New-York would produce a frightful loss in business as well as human lives. Had the bill passed last Winter, we should now be in a proper state of defence against the approaching enemy, and, without doubt, could lessen his ravages greatly, if not entirely drive him away. The experience of next Summer will not unlikely show that thousands of lives and millions of property would have been saved, if some of the members of the last Legislature had been less corrupt or less negligent of public interests.

Sanitary provisions are now reduced to a science, and one can say almost exactly how far the ordinary average of death will be raised or lowered, according as certain well-known conditions of health are established or not. Still more is this true of the effects of a pestilence; they will be slight or terrible exactly as our sanitary preventives are perfected or neglected.

The Health Bill secures a thorough sanitary administration of our city, under gentlemen whose character, professional position and income save them from all suspicion, even of corrupt or selfish purposes, and whose experience would furnish at once all the results of the highest science to the work of improving the health of the city. Street cleaning would be put under the charge of men who really mean the city to be clean; tenement-houses would be inspected and cleaned; overcrowding could be abated; habitations unfit for human use and prejudicial to the public health could be closed; nuisances removed and slaughter-houses and bone-boilers placed under strict police; "fever-nests" broken up, and typhoid, dysentery, diphtheria and cholera—the old enemies of the city—met at every point and opposed with all the arms which modern science can furnish, and all the persistency which the best character of this community can apply.

And yet this bill, the most reasonable and the most humane ever put before a legislative body, which would have saved thousands of human lives and millions of property, was quietly shelved last Winter.

It has often occurred to us that the ruling class of this city, the Democratic politicians and their ignorant followers, must look on the intelligent and scientific and well-to-do classes with something of the same contempt with which the ancient Romans regarded the Greeks.

We are the talking or the thinking class; they are the doing. We trust in ideas or reason; they know the power of money and numbers. They rather like to see newspaper articles directed against abuses, and sanitary tracts and sermons, and "meetings of prominent citizens," and "councils of hygiene." They know all this will go off in talk.

As the arbitrary powers in Europe always allow their subjects full license in amusements, so these men allow us full liberty of talk. It is a good vent for our excitement. We may present the enormity of our abuses until they are rank to the whole heaven; we may fill columns of journals with earnest leaders against them—they don't care.

When the time comes for action, they are ready. You will find the Street Department, or the Commissioners of Health, or the ward politicians, in Albany with a hundred thousand dollars in their pockets, and then the bill, which has been moving successfully on, amid the sympathy of all the best classes, suddenly falls and dies, no one knows how.

It is believed by persons well informed that the expenses now of certain country candidates are entirely paid by the parties who support the present unsanitary condition of the city, with the distinct purpose of having the Health Bill referred to them and its dying in committee, or its being delayed till too late to pass. We desire to have this whole matter in the next session clear as the light of day. Let us know who the members are who will vote against a measure of such immense importance to the whole State. For it must be remembered it is not entirely a local bill. The health of New-York affects the whole country. Pestilence here would scatter over the land by every highway of trade and travel. Let us know who the absentees are. Let the action of the committee to whom it is referred be watched by thousands of eyes.

It must be borne in mind that the patronage involved in the present iniquitous system is worth hundreds of thousands. The supporters of it could afford to pay small fortunes to each of the few members who would be needed to kill the act. They are familiar with every dodge to delay and finally squelch a bill. An army of lobby agents from the low Democracy of New-York will be in Albany to save the present incumbents.

Let the whole community be warned in time.

THE LAST DITCH.—New-Jersey is confessedly the last ditch of the enemy now in the field. The prospect of our carrying that work is not only hopeful, but morally certain. Let the other States, whose elections come off next Tuesday, as far outdo their own achievements in the past as New-Jersey is about to do in hers, and the Opposition party may be regarded as annihilated. Its recovery is an impossibility. Its leaders, and even the rank and file will perceive the folly of attempting to thwart manifest destiny, and will give up the attempt, resigning themselves as gracefully as possible to the dissolution which awaits them. On the other hand, let Unionists be apathetic, and they prolong this controversy until the next year and the year following, and possibly till the next Presidential contest, when another "era of good feeling" should have set in for the more full development of our nation's industry and the restoration of its currency to the specie standard.

For the sake of the Democrats themselves, then, we say, let the ax be sharp, the headsman's aim be accurate, and the blow be immediate! Finish the organization now and have done with it. Death claims the body; and knowing this, let the claim be enforced without unnecessary delay. Why prolong its writhings, its unutterable groanings, its contortions, its madness?

It has already entered on the last stage of insanity, and actually believes itself to be the individual whose life it sought for the past four years! Let it die the death now, and save its miserable carcass from undergoing similar torture in 1866. Let North and South, let the anti-slavery States and New-Jersey alike resolve to send it to its long home next Tuesday.

That accomplished, the American people can afford to let partisan politics alone for a generation, and address themselves to devising the best system of finance ever instituted—a system which shall make them not only first in war and first in peace, but first in carrying out the highest principles of political economy.

GEN. SLOCUM'S LEGISLATIVE RECORD.—We have availed ourselves of Gen. SLOCUM'S invitation to examine his Legislative records, without, however, finding it as clean as he supposes, or as was assumed by the Tribune.

The Health Bill, then as recently, was a test question. It had been defeated. On the question of reconsideration Mr. SLOCUM voted in the affirmative, but immediately afterward he dodged the vote on the final passage of the bill, and it was lost.

Mr. SLOCUM voted for a bill introduced by Mr. TOMLINSON to license and legalize houses of prostitution.

Mr. SLOCUM dodged the vote on the suffrage amendment of the constitution.

Mr. SLOCUM dodged the vote on Gov. MORGAN'S veto of the Susquehanna Railroad bills.

Mr. SLOCUM dodged the vote on most of the New-York City Railroad bills. His vote is only found against one (Broadway and Seventh-avenue) of these bills. He voted for a bill authorizing the Harlem Railroad Company to run a railroad through Madison-avenue, though all the property-holders remonstrated.

Mr. SLOCUM voted to override Gov. MORGAN'S veto of the bill requiring the payment of interest, by the State, on canal drafts.

We say that he dodged the votes on the Health and City Railroad Bills, because immediately before and after such questions his name is recorded upon other bills.

A NECESSARY CODE.—Gov. PERRY, of South Carolina, states in his message that he has appointed a commission for the purpose of preparing and submitting to the Legislature for their adoption, a code of laws for the protection and government of the freedmen and colored persons. The idea of establishing such a measure is a good one; and we cannot doubt that under this system the blacks will be allowed to give their testimony before the courts of justice. The necessity for such a measure arises from the fact that the present laws of the State relating to negroes are all based on the doctrines of slavery, and still more from the peculiar circumstances and antecedents of the great body of the negroes. For example, the laws made for the whites in regard to the marriage and family relations, their duties and responsibilities, cannot at once, in their entirety, be applied to the blacks, for the reason that the marriage and family relations of the latter, have heretofore been, and still are, in the greatest uncertainty and confusion. So with the laws relating to their holding of property and many other laws. We hope to see a code bearing upon all these matters, of such justice and humanity, established in South Carolina, as to be a model for all the other States of the South.

THE CHOLERA.—We give some space to-day to a report of the appearance of cholera in the harbor—brought hither by the steamship Atalanta, from London via Havre. There is good reason at all times to be on guard against imported pestilence. But we see nothing whatever to cause even momentary alarm in the cases of ship cholera thus far reported. Overcrowding is the usual agency at work on shipboard. And looking to the number of steerage passengers crowded into the holds of the ocean steamers, it is altogether marvelous that epidemics on board do not rage ceaselessly from land to land. We have far more to fear, in New-York every day from typhoid and other fevers, than from Asiatic cholera. We think, therefore, that the officials are making quite as much fuss as the occasion calls for. Passenger vessels that come here overcrowded must have disease on board.

ANDERSONVILLE.—The Andersonville obituary record, which we publish to-day, is one of the saddest ever published. It is well enough to forget the past, when forgetting is not a crime against the memory of the martyred dead. The story of Andersonville can never be forgotten. Here, in this bald list of names and dates, we have that story. There is no other such infamy in the times of civilization. While we were feeding, clothing and nursing hordes of ragamuffins captured in DAVIS' service, here were our poor loyal soldiers murdered by the thousand. These things ought not to be forgotten—until we know that hereafter it shall be impossible for men bearing the American name to be participants in such crimes.

THE SEVENTH SENATE DISTRICT.—The Seventh Senate District is being sharply canvassed, and as the relative strength of the candidates develops, there is every reason to anticipate the election of the Union candidate. Mr. MURPHY is decidedly and deservedly popular. He has never been a candidate for office, nor does he seek it. With a large Democratic majority in the district, nobody supposed that a Republican could win. But the Democratic vote is to be divided between two strong men. In this aspect of the question, by an active, vigorous effort, all Republicans taking the field zealously, Mr. MURPHY can be chosen. And such a result would be one that the district and the city might well rejoice over.

DEMOCRATIC LAUGHTER.—We notice in a Democratic paper the report of a Democratic speech, which was interrupted by "laughter" thirty times. As we judge by the length of the speech that about half an hour was occupied in its delivery, there was just a "laugh" a minute. As a peal of laughter from a "large audience," such as we are told was present at this meeting, occupies about a minute, the cachinnatory exercise of the multitude must have been kept up continuously from the beginning to the end of the speech. The scene must have been a very lively one. We advise the Democracy to keep up this sort of entertainment until next Tuesday, for it will then surely be brought to a close.

PERSONAL.—Secretary STANTON has intimated his intention to make Lieut.-Col. WHITE, of the Sixth New-York Cavalry, a full Colonel by brevet. Col. WHITE commanded the Sixth all the time in the field during SHERIDAN'S last three campaigns, and was distinguished for gallantry on several well-contested fields, and was officially noticed. The regiment, as well as the Colonel, have well earned the proposed honor. Moreover, Col. WHITE deserves credit for maintaining his self-respect in the field and exerting the influence of a Christian gentleman.

It is understood that the officers of the Sixth will be allowed pay from the time the men were discharged until they (the officers) were mustered out—about six weeks. The officers were retained in service to await an investigation of certain charges preferred, when they were acquitted of all blame.

Mr. HENRY F. RANNEY is the Union candidate for the Ninth Assembly District, comprising the Sixteenth Ward of this city, and has also received the nomination of the United Service Society of this district. Mr. RANNEY is a lawyer by profession, a worthy man, an able speaker, and will make a capable, upright and fearless representative of the people, and will be elected as Member of Assembly on Tuesday next if the Union men of this district do their duty.

MR. DEPEW AND JOHN VAN BUREN.—BARNUM has not returned from Washington, but as soon as he gets back he will offer an "engagement" to the man who believes that Mr. DEPEW did not state his conversation with JOHN VAN BUREN accurately.

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS.—The address of the Union Committee on judicial nominations, together with the ticket which they present, will be found on the eighth page of this morning's issue of the TIMES.

CORRECTION.—The name of the Union candidate for Comptroller is THOMAS HILLHOUSE, not THOMAS J. HILLHOUSE, as inadvertently printed in a recent number of the TIMES.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The revival of a great work like "Robert le Diable" has fortunately such significance that it commands at once the attention of the public. The attendance last night was in consequence all that could be desired. Mr. MARETZEK'S cast of this fine opera was exceedingly good. It introduced Mme. ZUCCHI, Mme. ORTOLANI, Signor IRFRE and Signor ANTONUCCI in the principal parts. These artists have rarely been heard to greater advantage. The orchestra, under Mr. BERGMANN, was very good. The acceptance of the work was so favorable that many pieces were encored, and the representation extended almost to midnight.

At the matinee to-day "Crispino e la Comare" will be performed.

IRVING HALL.—The brothers FORMES, assisted by our great resident pianist, Mr. S. B. MILLS, gave a very agreeable concert here last evening. We have rarely heard Herr CARL FORMES to better advantage. His voice has gained prodigiously in strength and quality. Herr WILHELM FORMES achieved a positive success in his very agreeable ballad singing. Of Herr THEODORE FORMES we can scarcely speak. The gentleman evidently has not recovered from his recent indisposition. The trio from "Wm. Tell," although given with fine dramatic breadth, was almost spoilt by the false intonation of the tenor.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The first concert of the present season takes place to-night. When we say that it is under the direction of Mr. Carl BERGMANN, it is almost unnecessary to add another word. LISZT'S "Mazeppa" Symphony is the principal attraction. Mr. MILLS is the piano soloist.

MATINEE AT THE BROADWAY.—Lives there a man with heart so dead who has not seen Laura and Sam at the Broadway Theatre? Sam, with his eye-glass and whiskers, and all that sort of thing, you know, is very amusing, not to say instructive; Laura, MISS OLIVE LOGAN, the bright particular star, is simply charming, and as for that boy Dick he should no longer hide his talent under a bushel, nor conceal his cultivated limbs behind the curtain of a theatre, but should join at once a first-class troupe of gymnasts, where he would make a decided sensation. Sam, with all his absurdities and intricacies, Laura, with all herself, will appear at the matinée to-day.

A Contradiction.

UNITED STATES TREASURY,
NEW-YORK, Nov. 3, 1865.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I find in your issue of this morning amongst the items of city intelligence, the following:

OFFICIAL SWINDLING.—A green-looking man, apparently from the country, presented himself yesterday at the U. S. Sub-Treasury, in Wall-street, and going up to one of the desks offered a compound interest note for $100, on which $3 interest had accumulated, and said he was told he could get the money for it there. The clerk handed him a one-hundred greenback for it in exchange, and the man was about to take it, when a gentleman standing by protested against the swindle and prevented it.

The interest on the compound notes is not payable until three years from the date of issue. They are "legal tender" only for the face, and are daily received from banks and individuals without regard to the accrued interest. The $100 note has been so perfectly counterfeited that it can be passed only with great difficulty. Hence, persons are in the daily habit of applying to have the $100 compound interest notes exchanged for legal tender. Persons are not required or requested to make the exchange, but are accommodated as they may desire, and the case above alluded to was one of this character. I shall, therefore, be pleased to learn where the "official swindling" comes in. Respectfully,

H. H. VAN DYCK,
Assistant Treasurer.

Reasons:

1. Its simplicity and great range of work.
2. Its making four different stitches, viz.: the lock, knot, double lock and double knot.
3. The reversible feed motion, operated by simply turning a thumb-screw, enabling the operator to run the work from right to left or left to right, and perfectly self-fastening to the end of the seam.
4. The perfect finish and substantial manner in which the machine is made.
5. The rapidity of its working, and the quality of the work done.
6. Its self-adjusting tension.—New-York World.

A RICH PERFUME.—We clip the following from the Buffalo Courier: "There is no article in the toilet of a refined gentleman or lady that in purity of ingredients, delicate fragrance or endurance, that can equal the American perfume styled "PHALON'S NIGHT-BLOOMING CEREUS." With most of the foreign perfumes, one becomes disgusted with the offensive odor produced by the evaporation of the essential oils. The "NIGHT-BLOOMING CEREUS" has the advantage of growing more exquisite in odor as it becomes fainter, and thus its user is relieved from any imputation of vulgarism by the too free use of an impure and offensive perfume."

Among the recent achievements of science is the production of an exquisite perfume, extracted from the Night-Blooming Cereus, a plant whose magnificence is the theme of song and story. That a flower of such delicious fragrance should have been permitted to waste its sweetness on the air, may well excite marvel. Intelligent readers are aware that the Messrs. Phalon have made this charming ornament of the parterre contribute largely to the pleasure of society. The perfume has already attained a great celebrity, its sale having been very rapid. The enterprising manufacturers deserve the patronage of all who wish to see a justly-famed extract, distilled from one of America's lovliest plants, take the place of costly foreign products whose virtues are far surpassed by this new candidate for popular favor.—*New-Jersey Journal, Elizabeth, N. ☞ First in peace, as it has been during the war, and first in the estimation of the American people among all the perfumes of the world, Phalon's "Night-Blooming Cereus" is a great staple of commerce in all parts of the United States. Its sale during the past year has been literally colossal.—Canandaigua Repository.

The verdict of public taste, like the political vote of the country, settles many delicate questions, and the immense demand for PHALON'S "NIGHT-BLOOMING CEREUS" shows that verdict to be overwhelming in favor of the article as the finest perfume on this continent.—Greenport Times.

IMPORTANT TO THE PUBLIC!
DR. VON EISENBERG'S
ÆSTHETICO-NEURALGICON,
THE CELEBRATED APPARATUS.

From the New-York Express.

So many able and earnest men are devoting themselves to medical investigation, that it would be strange if new discoveries were not made. Among the most brillant of these—we may indeed say the most brilliant of all—is that of Dr. VON EISENBERG, in regard to the Etherealization of Medicines; we may properly call it the "Spiritualization," since the Latin Spiritus, whence comes our word "Spiritual," signifies primarily, simply "the air."

Many of the most important and vital organs of the human frame cannot be reached by medicines in a solid or even in a liquid form. Thus the lungs are shut up in a bony chest to which access can be had only through the wind-pipe, the opening of which is closed by a valve, called the "epiglottis," so sensitive and so delicately constructed, that it will not allow the passage, except by main force, of the most minute crumb, or the smallest drop of liquid. Every person who has "swallowed the wrong way" the smallest substance, whether of liquid or solid, knows the feeling of strangulation thereby occasioned. A man cannot, if he would, voluntarily swallow any liquid or solid into the lungs, or the passage leading to them. Herein lies the true reason why Consumption has been so incurable.

As to the entire apparatus, we have no hesitation in saying that we regard it as a wonderful invention—one that, were it not so costly, we have little doubt would be adopted by every hospital and medical college in the country. We are satisfied it would well repay, even if he had to journey all the way from Europe, the scientific man to see and examine it. It is a marvel of mechanical complexity, and yet, when its multiform uses are considered, of extreme simplicity and great beauty. That it will in every respect fulfill the expectations of the inventor, we have every reason to believe. It has been constructed with an accurate knowledge of its ultimate uses. One so experienced in the specialities for which it is particularly intended as is Dr. Von Eisenberg, and for which he has long felt the necessity in his practice, could make no failure. With it he is enabled to surmount obstacles that were hitherto deemed all but impossible to control. He can now approach with certainty and diagnose thoroughly every disease that, in the course of his extended practice, he aims to master. To those, therefore, who are in any way afflicted with loss of sight or hearing, with catarrh, bronchitis, chest or lung diseases, we earnestly suggest a visit to the consulting apartments of Dr. VON EISENBERG. There he will be speedily made to know the possibility of a cure in even complicated cases. We hereto observe that the apparatus is intended also to bring the ethereatized medicines into direct action upon the nerves. The nervous system is the source of many diseases. All physicians admit this, and all profess at least to be able to apply a remedy. The Allopathic, Homeopathic and Hydropathic, by prescribing opiates, anodynes, &c., may, and do, alleviate the pain arising from impaired or diseased nerves; but this does not restore the nerve, it is only temporary relief—a relief, too, to some one nerve at the expense of the entire system. The Æsthetico-Neuralgicon of Dr. Von Eisenberg not merely allays the irritation, but restores the nerve to its normal condition. The Doctor's theory is, that each nerve has a specific office, and has its own peculiar susceptibility. Thus, for example, the nerve of vision is insensible to touch; and, on the other hand, the nerve of touch is insensible to light, and so on through the whole system.

From the Journal of Commerce.

We think it is but just to Dr. Von Eisenberg to call public attention to him. There are hundreds in the community suffering from catarrh, if not actually praying for death, who are ready to accept of anything that promises to relieve them from their distresses. To such we would say, trifle not with inexperienced men, but consult, without unnecessary delay, Dr. Von Eisenberg, who, at least, has the honesty to assure his patients whether it is in his power to make them whole or not.

HEARING RESTORED BY A SINGLE APPLICATION OF THE ÆSTHETICO-NEURALGICON. READ! READ!

NEW-YORK, May 4, 1865.

I have been induced, by the great number of certificates continually published in favor of Dr. Von Eisenberg's skill, to apply to him for advice concerning my deafness of many years' standing. I placed myself under his care, and to my utmost delight he made me hear perfectly well by a single painless application of Dr. Von Eisenberg's "Æsthetico-Neuralgicon." I have great pleasure in being able to state that his skill in restoring hearing surpasses anything I ever saw or heard of. His attention to the patient is highly commendable.

JOHN WAKELY, No. 104 Monroe-st.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF THE CHRONIC CATARRH, ASSUMING THE FORM OF CONSUMPTION.

I have been suffering for a long time from a severe Catarrh, with a continual dullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, and a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery, and very painful. My nostrils were continually obstructed with a pouring of fluid. I had frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, generally attended with spitting of blood. I have been treated by many eminent physicians without success. Recently the Catarrh became so offensive that I could not go into society. Hearing of DR. VON EISENBERG'S new invention, I thought I would apply to him as a last resource. Having been satisfied with his diagnosis, I submitted to his treatment, and have every reason to be abundantly satisfied, as I am completely cured, and my health so much renovated that I feel better than I felt for the last fifteen years. It is a blessing that experience gives the Doctor the power to restore such a shattered constitution to perfect vigor. I now feel very happy to be able to give this testimonial in favor of Dr. Von Eisenberg's inimitable skill.

FREDERICK DOUGLAS,
Meserole-av.,
Greenpoint, Long Island.

RESTORATION OF SIGHT.

I, Lawrence Grenna, No. 186 East 36th-st., New-York City, have been suffering from blindness of the left eye for a considerable period. The eye was continually in a state of great inflammation, from which the good eye became affected, and, indeed, my general health was greatly injured by it. Hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great reputation, and as every one said mine was a hopeless case, I called on the Doctor, who, after examining me, undertook my case, and within a fortnight I found myself almost completely cured. It is now a month since I placed myself under Dr. Von Eisenberg's treatment, and I am happy to be able to state that the inflammation is entirely gone, so that I see perfectly, with both eyes, added to which I am in good health—a blessing I have not enjoyed since I was blind. I do conscientiously and gratefully swear to the above statement, in a court of justice, at the City Hall of the City of New-York, the 10th day of October, 1864.

LAWRENCE GRENNA.

Sworn before me this 10th day of October, 1864.

C. GODFREY GUNTHER, Mayor.

{The Grand seal of the New-York Mayoralty.}

Thousands of testimonials similar to the above can be seen at Dr VON EISENBERG'S office,

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.
SPINAL AFFECTIONS CURED.
HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 11, 1864.

Messrs. Thos. Allcock & Co.:

Please send, with dispatch, twelve dozen Allcock's Porous Plasters. Our daily experience confirms their very superior excellence. At this moment of writing, a man applies for one, who, by entanglement in the shaft of machinery, had both his legs broken, spine severely injured, and was for nearly a year entirely helpless. This man found relief very soon by the application of a plaster to his spine. He was soon enabled to work, and now he labors as well as ever. He would cheerfully pay $5 for a single plaster if they could not be had at a lower rate. I am surprised that surgeons do not make use of these perforated plasters, to the exclusion of all others, as their flexibility and adhesiveness are greatly in advance of all other plasters with which I am acquainted; while the perforations peculiar to them render them greatly superior to all others for ordinary surgical uses. Knowing the plasters to be so useful, I have no scruples that my sentiments should be known.

WE WILL PUBLISH
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8,
SHERMAN'S MARCH THROUGH THE SOUTH.
WITH
SKETCHES AND INCIDENTS OF HIS CAMPAIGNS.
By Capt. DAVID C. CONYNGHAM,
Of the New-York Herald.
One vol. 12mo. Price $1 75.

This is the only full and complete account of Sherman's wonderful campaign, from the time of his assuming command of the Army of the West, down to the final surrender of Johnston.

It contains vivid descriptions of all the battles fought from Chattanooga to Atlanta; also, a full account of the wonderful march through Georgia and the final surrender of Gen. Johnston.

Also, Gen. Sherman's testimony in full before the "Committee on the War" in regard to the negotiations with Gen. Johnston.

This book is no mere collection of letters written to newspapers on the war; but it is the result of months of diligent labor on the part of the author.

The object is to give in one volume a full account of the "Army of the West" under Gen Sherman, its great fights and long marches.

It contains interesting sketches of the officers, and in many cases amusing accounts of their peculiarities, &c., &c.

THE LOSS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Safety of the Missing Boat—Arrival at This Port of the Passengers.

The missing boat which put off from the wreck of the steamship Republic, was picked up on Sunday last by the schooner Harper, of Roxbury There were eleven men on board, as follows: Edward Ryan, second mate; Capt. Ryer and Maj. Sauvenant, United States Volunteers; John Fleming, Charles Conway, James Crellan, James Nash and James Quinn, seamen; Patrick Maloney, officers' mess-man; a fireman named Charley, and Joseph Willis, saloon-steward, our informant. The boat was picked up twenty-five miles from Cape Romain. Her occupants had not tasted food since the 25th ult., the date of the wreck up to the time of their rescue, being of course thoroughly exhausted and in considerable suffering. The clothing of most of them was left on board and they were scantily clad.

They had seen only two vessels (steamers going southward,) during the whole of their perilous voyage. These they sighted on Saturday evening, but in spite of every effort, displaying their clothes on the end of oars, &c., were unable to attract attention, the vessels being at full speed and a very heavy sea running at the time. The men were brought to this city last night by the Empire City from Port Royal.

Capt. B. F. RYER, late Captain of the Twentieth New-York Battery, one of the rescued, states that he left the vessel together with ten others, on the 25th of October, at 3 o'clock P. M., in the Captain's gig—a small four-oared boat—and in company with three other larger boats; but when darkness set in they separated from the other three boats, and in the morning found themselves completely alone, and at the mercy of the winds and waves. At times the boat would be half full of water. In this fearful situation they remained 3 days and 4 nights, without food or water, as in the hurry to leave the sinking ship, provisions or water were totally forgotten. Their sufferings were terrible, and they were about giving up all hopes of being rescued from a watery grave, when a welcome sail hove in sight. It proved to be the schooner Harper, Capt. COOMBS, from Bucksport, Me. They were all taken on board the schooner in an exhausted state, and much swollen. By the careful attention of Capt. COOMBS and the inhabitants of Hilton Head, they are all doing well.

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS.

Address of the Committee.

To the Electors of the City of New-York:

The undersigned committee were charged by the Union Republican Judicial Convention with the duty of announcing the Judicial ticket which it presents, and of calling your attention to some of the grounds entitling it to your support. Some were at first inclined to renominate, in whole or in part, the Democratic ticket, but upon fuller reflection, that idea was with great unanimity discarded. The Convention believe that, in the interest of a wise public policy and the impartial administration of justice, judicial honor and responsibility should not, if it can be avoided, be limited to men of one political party only. It believes these views deserving of special consideration at this time. With the close of the war of the rebellion the country enters upon a new future. In that future we see that grave questions of great national and political consequence (we use the word political in its enlarged sense) must come up for judicial determination—questions growing out of the war and the legislation consequent thereupon, both State and national—questions of constitutional construction, as well also as the varied and complicated questions arising from commercial relations and contracts existing before, created during or affected by the war, and the different positions the parties thereto occupied to the Federal Government and the rebellion—questions, too, arising out of the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, proclamation of martial law, and arrests thereunder—other questions, too, affecting the finances of the country—all rendering it desirable that no one political party should furnish the sole judicial exponents of these questions.

Experience teaches that in solving questions of political significance the previous habits of thought and political leanings of the Judge are apt to control both his logic and conclusions. The great object of multiplicity of Judges in Courts of Review, is the more perfect safety secured in the result by the varied learning and logic of different minds viewing the questions before them from various standpoints of view, and this is particularly desirable when political questions require judicial determination. We need not point for illustration to determinations of various questions like the Metropolitan Police bill and others, having a political bearing. We mean no imputation upon any of the Judges, nor to suggest even the absence of judicial purity in the decision of those cases. Nor is it any imputation upon the integrity of any Judge who acted in the solution of the question, if we ask where our Government in the darkest hour of the war would have found itself drifting had judges looked at the question from the generally received Democratic stand-point of view only, been the only ones to determine at that critical moment the constitutionality of the Legal-tender Act of Congress. And the suggestions implied in that inquiry might be illustrated by a variety of other questions showing that political leanings and convictions, in the higher sense of that term, are not to be overlooked or disregarded in making selections for the Bench. Unmistakably the Democracy, as a party, seem rapidly drifting toward a determined effort to tax our national securities, in spite of their exemption therefrom by Congress. Such is the general tendency of the whole Democratic mind east and west. It is not in harmony with this general drifting partyward that they have nominated for Comptroller and Judge of the Court of Appeals—places where the most injurious blows may be struck at our financial prosperity—candidates who have ostentatiously proclaimed their zeal for that national bad faith which, after borrowing so many millions on the undertaking that the public debt should not be liable to taxation, would now in effect repudiate that undertaking with the public creditors. We need not suggest what would have been the consequences to the government and the country if in this city and State, where it was so important that the credit and the strength of the government and the prosperity of the people should be maintained, there had been united judicial decisions that the draft, the suspension of the habeas corpus and the legal tender currency were unconstitutional, and that all payments and transactions were required to be made in gold, results which would have been none the less fatal because they might have been brought upon us by Judges of ability, integrity and conscientious but mistaken and pernicious convictions. Is it said that this is invoking political considerations to control in the election of Judges? We admit and justify it, and insist that you have no more moral right to elect a repudiating Judge to your court of last resort—than has your President to appoint to the Federal Bench one who would hold, with the whole body of the New-Jersey Democracy, that the Emancipation Amendment of the constitution is unconstitutional. These and various other suggestions brought the convention to the conclusion that the bench should be represented not only by our ablest and best men, but by men of different political affiliations and leanings, and we submit to all candid Democrats whether these views are not right, and entitled to be supported by their votes. We find, however, that there are nineteen judges of higher courts in this city, to wit: In the Supreme Court, five; in the Superior Court, six; in the Court of Common Pleas, three; in the Marine Court, three, with one Recorder and one City Judge, every one of whom is a Democrat. Why is this so? We reply, since the judiciary became elective, the former Whig and present Union parties have repeatedly joined in supporting Democratic nominees then on the bench, while not in one instance have the Democracy, or any organized section of it, supported a Whig or Union nominee. This generous discarding of party considerations on one hand, and of strict and invariable adherence to them on the other, has enabled Tammany and Mozart Halls at last to absorb the entire bench of this city. With their own strict party nominations now in the field, the Democracy call on Union men to discard politics and vote their ticket. As Mozart and Tammany hold every judgeship, the Union party have only to accept the invitation of Tammany and Mozart, to put in operation a close corporation system of voting for judges, under which all Democratic judges will, as their terms expire, be inevitably reelected, while men of the Union party will be thereby rendered ineligible to the bench forever.

We believe this state of things should cease. The Democracy are under no temptation to effect a change; they never have and never will reciprocate our past generosity, and the Union party, as represented in this convention, is determined to cease being longer the mere tender or waiter upon Mozart or Tammany Hall, either by adopting their joint nominations, or, what has been a more exceptionable practice still, by settling the rival and conflicting nominations of those two rival sections of the Democratic party by throwing the weight of the Union organization and votes into either the one scale or the other.

The Union party possesses men as capable and upright as does the Democracy. If there is anything of value in the character and aims of the Union party, it must, if it would succeed, conform to those established usages which long experience has taught to be the only successful mode of embodying and consolidating political strength, and that is by presenting for places of honor and trust, whether municipal or judicial, its own representative men. To a contrary practice is to be attributed, in part at least, those heavy majorities of the party which has so long dominated in this city and brought upon it its present almost crushing weight of debt and taxation.

We feel pride in announcing the judicial ticket our Convention has presented.

LEWIS B. WOODRUFF, presented for the Supreme Court, served for twelve years or more as one of your judges, and enjoys a reputation for judicial learning, ability and uprightness second to that of no man on the bench.

ISAAC DAYTON and HOOPER C. VAN VORST will, if elected, fill with ability and dignity positions on the bench of the Superior Court. For character, bearing and ability they rank among the most respectable members of profession in this city.

JOHN J. TOWNSEND, the nominee for the Common Pleas, though still a young man, is a sound and able lawyer of elevated character, and of much experience in public affairs, having several times represented the city in the State Legislature, where he filled with marked ability and satisfaction the position of Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

For the Marine Court Col. JOHN D. MCGREGOR and ABRAM J. DITTENHOFFER are peculiarly well fitted. Every Union man in the city knows the untiring fidelity and unselfish devotion of Mr. DITTENHOFFER. Under an appointment of Gov. FENTON he is filling the position rendered vacant by the death of Justice MCCARTHY, in whose favor he generously retired from the contest two years since. Col. MCGREGOR is fresh from the stirring fields of contest to which he went forth early in the war, and from which he returns with distinguished reputation for fortitude, good conduct and soldierly bearing.

Through him we seek to show something of the gratitude due to the heroic defenders of the republic in its hour of peril, and his comrades in arms will remember him on the day of election.

We make no attack upon the nominees of Tammany and Mozart, but cheerfully concede their high character and general ability.

We claim, nevertheless, for the Union ticket an equally high, or even higher, reputation for that soundness of views, varied learning and judicial ability—so requisite for the Bench, and we call upon all, and particularly upon the Union men, to give to it that earnest and cordial support to which it is so eminently entitled.

THE POLICE COURTS.

Jefferson Market—Before Justice Dodge.

HOW THEY CONTRIVE TO LIVE

is shown in the affidavit of Mr. MICHAEL B. CLINE, of No. 107 Waverley-place, against GEORGE GOODWIN BAKER, one of the statues that adorned the sidewalks at the intersection of Broadway and Houston-street until the police authorities made an order clearing thieves and prostitutes off the street-corners. It appears that on the evening of Sept. 17, Mr. CLINE and a friend went on a tour of bibulous recreation, and in their travels took up BAKER, and with him drove about town until a late hour, when, helpless from over-indulgence, CLINE was taken into the St. Charles Hotel, and bundled off to bed by BAKER. Having disposed of Mr. CLINE, BAKER took, for safe keeping, his wallet, containing $3,883 38 in Treasury notes and fractional currency; but he failed to report in the morning, and was not again seen by Mr. CLINE until yesterday morning, when he was taken into custody by Detective Officer RALPH P. BARKER, and taken to Jefferson Market Police Court. The court clerks and officers recognized the prisoner as an old offender against whom many charges are on record, and who has many aliases under which he has registered himself at our largest hotels. The police describe him as the smoothest-tongued, best dressed and smartest of the thieves that infest the neighborhood of Houston-street and Broadway. Mr. CHARLES S. SPENCER appeared for the accused, and demanded a preliminary examination at 10 o'clock this morning, and BAKER was committed thereto. It is needless to add that Mr. CLINE has not recovered his money.

The Tombs—Before Justice Hogan.

FOUR YOUTHFUL THIEVES

were arrested by Detective Officers TIEMANN and VAUGHAN, yesterday morning, for stealing a note for $500, made payable at the Bull's Head Bank to the order of Mr. JOHN BORNHOEFT, of No. 90 Walker-street. The accused rendered their names at court as SAMUEL WALKER, GEORGE TICE, GABRIEL MARKS and EMIL STRAUSS, and confessed that WALKER, who had been in Mr. BORNHOEFT's employ, stole the note from his desk, collected the money at the bank, and gave them each a share. The detective officers found $419 in the prisoners' possession. They were committed for examination.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the managers was held at the Bible House, Astor-place, on Thursday, the 2d inst., at 3:30 P. M., WILLIAM WHITLOCK, Jr., Esq., Vice-President, in the chair, assisted by NORMAN WHITE and FREDERICK S. WINSTON, Esqs., Vice-Presidents. The decease of Rev. LOT JONES, D. D., being announced, Rev. Dr. KREBS was called on to open the meeting by reading the 90th psalm and offering prayer. One new auxiliary was recognized in Missouri. Interesting communications were received from Rev. JAMES HICKEY, Monterey, with gratifying accounts of the demand for the Scriptures in Mexico, and his success in his work; from Rev. A. G. SIMONTON, Rio de Janeiro, and Rev. A. L. BLACKFORD, Sao Paulo, with encouraging reports from Brazil, and asking further aid, which was granted; from Rev. DAVID TRUMBULL, Valparaiso, in regard to an agency in Chili; from Rev. I. G. BLISS, Constantinople, with interesting and pleasing accounts of the work in his field, especially in Anotalia (Ancient Phrygia;) from Rev. S. H. CALHOUN, Abieh, with an account of the translations of the Scriptures into Arabic, showing the necessity of the recent version by Drs. SMITH and VAN DYCK, and sending a contribution from native Christians toward making the electro plates for it. Encouraging accounts were received of the resumption of the work in the Southern States, the reorganization of old societies, and the formation of new ones, and the organization of a Bible society by the colored people at Knoxville, Tenn. Grants of books were made to the Presbyterian Board of Publication; to the American Seamen's Friend Society; numerous grants to Bible societies and committees at the South; to soldiers and freedmen; liberal grants for Mexico and South America, and Liberia, with many of smaller amount, including four volumes in raised letters for the blind; making the entire number of books granted, 11,052. The number is much smaller than during the war, but the proportion of the larger books, and especially of Bibles, is very much greater. To the Presbyterian Board of Missions were granted $1,000 for electrotyping the pocket Chinese Testament in China. The board requested the Committee on Versions to prepare a suitable memorial in reference to Rev. Dr. JONES, to be presented at the next meeting. The board adjourned to meet on the last Thursday in November, when the regular business will come up.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

BILLIARDS—THE CARME-KAVANAGH MATCHES.—The second of this series of matches is announced to come off at Irving Hall this evening. This game is 1,500 points up, with 2 5-16-inch balls, on a second-sized Phelan & Collender carom table, the push shot barred. It is understood that Mr. CARME has been out of health since his last match, and therefore has had little time to practice for the four-ball game, which is an entirely new one to him, and on receiving his physician's certificate, Mr. PHELAN desired to have the match postponed. This proposition was, however, refused, as CARME must play or forfeit this evening.

FIRE IN EAST FOURTH-STREET.—Between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. CONRAD KRAUS' apartments, on the fourth floor of the tenement dwelling No. 114 East Fourth-street, were destroyed by fire from a match with which his little child had been playing. Mrs. MARGARETTA KRAUS, who was sick in bed at the time of the fire, was severely burned before the neighbors could remove her. The building, which is owned by Mr. HENRY KNEBEL, is insured for $3,500 in the Manhattan office. The officers of the Paid Fire Department claim no little credit for their men for extinguishing the flames without damage to the other occupants of the building.

FOR EUROPE.—Among the passengers to-day for Europe by the Helvetia, is Rev. Dr. D. QUACKENBUSH, Pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church, Yorkville, who had obtained an indefinite leave of absence for his health. A number of the Doctor's friends raised quite a large sum of money, intending to take him by surprise, and make him a handsome presentation as a parting memento, but learning of their proposed kindness, he begged to decline the favor.

BOLD ROBBERY.—On Monday evening last, just after dark, a young gentleman residing at No. 10 East Twenty-third-street, heard the sound of music attached to a target excursion, and went to the door of the basement to see the show. He was there met by three men, one of whom wrested from him his gold watch, valued at $100, and fled. The rascal was not arrested.

PROTRACTED MEETING.—A protracted meeting is going on in the new Christian Church in Twenty-eighth-street, near Broadway. Rev. D. P. HENDERSON, of Louisville, Ky., is preaching a series of sermons on the cardinal features of Christianity. Services every evening.

NO MORE MUSIC AT THE PARK THIS SEASON.—The Commissioners of the Central Park announce that the musical entertainments at the Park have closed for the season. There will therefore be no music to-day.

NEW-ENGLAND SOCIETY.—Hon. ALEXANDER H. BULLOCK, Governor elect of Massachusetts, will deliver an oration in this city on Thursday evening, Dec. 21, in commemoration of the 245th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims.

The Incurable Insane—Suggestions Regarding the New State Asylum.

EAST NEW-YORK, L. I., Monday, Oct. 16, 1865.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Thanks to Almighty God, the Legislature of this State has passed an act to authorize the establishment of a State Asylum for the chronic insane, and for the better care of the insane poor. The report (1857) of Senators MARK SPENCER, Dr. G. W. BRADFORT and LINDLEY LEE, as well as the recent one of the late Dr. WILLARD, have at last brought forth their well-deserved fruit. The incurable insane will henceforth be humanely treated.

But now, another important question has risen. It is asked publicly whether it is not an economical and moral blunder to neglect recent cases, and only afford relief to the insane poor when they have become perpetual burdens to society. If this was true, instead of one big asylum for incurables, two small hospitals for the cure of insanity would certainly better meet the necessities of the State. These propositions have been the subject of an anonymous pamphlet, and remarking that the paper alluded to is patronized by the intelligent editors of the American Journal of Insanity, I beg your leave to review some of its arguments. First, the distance of our public institutions is a great objection to most of the people of this extensive State. The necessity of proximity to an asylum being a question of life and death for patients, it is evident that the Utica State Asylum wants two adjuncts, one east and the other west, to contend successfully with the greatest calamity of our species. What is the scale of value of any hospital? The amount of cured patients. Well, experience has shown that the greatest percentage is only obtained through the exertions of a sufficient staff of physicians. "Now," says the pamphlet, "how could one medical officer acquire that intimate knowledge of the various and varying mental and physical symptoms of three hundred patients? Three minutes of attention given to each involves fifteen hours of labor. After which the physician has to prescribe, give his directions, keep the clinical records, conduct the voluminous correspondence with the friends of patients, follow and forward the incessant progress of science, &c. I assert, Sir, that such herculean task is beyond our strength and power, and have declared that it could not be done in large asylums; consequently, that any deficiency in the treatment of a patient was similar to a public denial of justice. And really, Sir, it is well worth our while to pay a meritorious and numerically sufficient staff of medical officers, "for," says the honorable pamphleteer, "the magnitude of the returns, both financial and curative, to the community, are set forth by numbers." In a retrospect of thirty years' operations of the Worcester Hospital for Lunatics, (Massachusetts,) 6,663 insane patients were admitted, out of which 3,131 were cured, and of the remaining number, 1,200 went home improved. Now, according to life-tables, and omitting the improved patients that were able to enjoy a family life and many of them the blessings of society, the cured patients alone lived or will live 84,886 years. Again, if the malady of these same individuals had not been removed, they would have only lived 54,911 years, during which shorter period the State, towns and people must have cared for and supported them. At the rate of three dollars per week, still leaving out of consideration interest of buildings, grounds, furniture, &c., the expense would have been $8,566,116! According to these rules of experience what is the prospect of the future asylum for incurables? "Truly," says the anonymous writer, "over the gateway to such institution Dante's inscription for Hell might be written—

'All hope abandon, ye who enter here.'"

Let us add that the tax-payer will also feel its inconvenience and unworthiness. The main object of the pamphlet appears to be to call the attention of the general public to some of the fundamental principles of proper provision for the insane, and to show, inferentially, that the recent law fails to meet the necessity for which it has been enacted.

I wish, Sir, before ending this letter, to present a few observations on the above-cited memoir, which deserves the attention of the Legislature and of every friend of humanity. The author mentions the various European methods presented for the solution of the ominous problem of providing for an increasing number of insane poor. The first is the actual asylum system—none disputes its efficacy, providing it be a thoroughly curative institution. The second system is the self-paying agricultural colonies. In such establishments made in view of profits obtained by the labor of the improved and chronic patients, the insane pauper is a tool, a slave. The pain-relieving system of the Swedish pastor LYNDBACH, for his incurables, has nearly the same moral value. The third system is that of the free-air liberty and family life as it is practiced in a Belgian village. Now, though it may be doubted whether there exists an American psychopathist who, since the reform of that institution, has himself examined or studied its mechanism and practical value, there is no ground to question its practicability in this country. The writer to whom I allude, is the first who admits that some good might be taken from a system which respects human conscience even in its half-lighted state. He appears to incline toward an eclectic combination of the meritorious results of the three systems. In philosophy, eclecticism has proved a failure to help us in discovering truth, and I believe that in the concrete form of the vexed question it would show its unworthiness also. Supposing I was asked to give an opinion, I would beg our law-makers—first, to keep Utica as a central hospital for the treatment of mental diseases, and establish there a regular course of phychiatric medicine. Second, to erect an hospital in the east of the State for the treatment and cure of recent cases, and third, to form a free-air colony for both recent or so-called incurable cases in some remote district of the West. It would be an experiment worthy of the Empire State, and would show who is right or wrong.

Now, Sir, whilst expressing the wishes of an old friend to the insane (some may say building air-castles,) I have a last and respectful observation to make to the Legislature: Not to forget the names of celebrated American psychopathists who earned a world's reputation, when a new asylum is to be christened. If none of these great men were born in the State, choose one in the neighborhood, on the principle that scientific State rights have never existed.

I remain, Dear Sir, with much respect, faithfully yours,

DR. T. PARIGOT.

Before Justice Garvin.

Wm. H. Allen vs. Jesus Gonzalez Ortega.—This is a suit by Col. Allen, formerly of the United States volunteers, against Gen. Ortega, the Vice-President and President-elect of the Mexican Republic, for about $7,000, which the plaintiff claims is due for services rendered and money advanced by him. An order of arrest was obtained by the plaintiff on an affidavit setting forth that he was employed, not officially, by Gen. Ortega to procure enlistments of Mexican emigrants, pay sub-agents and expenses, and was to receive, besides his expenses, not less than $240 per month.

This service he avers he rendered until the amount due him was upward of $6,700, when he demanded satisfaction of his claims from Gen. Ortega, and was refused. He alleges that he was induced to spend this and other sums upon the representations of the defendant, which representations he says were false and untrue. Part of the alleged agreement was that the defendant should employ no other agent, and the plaintiff should so conduct matters as not to violate the neutrality laws, and not involve the Mexican Republic in trouble with the United States Government. The latter condition, Col. Allen alleges that he fulfilled; the former he says was violated by Gen. Ortega. He further averred that the defendant had a large amount in bank for the purposes of this business, and that he intends to remove himself and his property secretly from this country with intent to defraud the plaintiff.

This affidavit was confirmed by the affidavits of Patrick J. Kiernan and William McNally.

The defendant moved to vacate this order on affidavits. On the first return day, the plaintiff obtained ten days to prepare rebutting affidavits, and on the expiration of that period, the Judge adjourned it to yesterday. Meanwhile, Gen. Ortega is at large on his parole.

Yesterday, after the reading of the original affidavits, Mr. Parsons, for the defendant, stated that the order, in his opinion, was not sufficient, in not stating the grounds of the arrest, but, in justice to Gen. Ortega, he desired to read affidavits.

The affidavit of Gen. Ortega was then read setting up that he came here on business of his government in April last; that the only intercourse between himself and the plaintiff arose from the fact that the newspapers stated the object of his visit to be to recruit men to go to Mexico, and that he found that Allen was advertising under such an idea. That he was shocked and astonished, having never before heard of Allen; that soon after Allen introduced himself to him, when he remonstrated with him in the strongest terms for the use he was making of his name, and told him if he did not immediately make an acknowledgment in the papers of the falsity he would do it himself; that Allen did so in a letter signed E. Wilson, Secretary Mexican Emigration Company, (Allen's supposed company,) and on this the defendant refrained from appearing in the papers; that Allen then requested an authorization, but the defendant emphatically refused any, and told the plaintiff if he did anything it would be on his own responsibility under the Mexican law of August, 1864, and that the whole business was foolish and would prove a failure, involving Allen in expense, for which he would have no one to look to for reimbursement.

Then, or a few days after, he requested Allen to please not call on him unless deponent called on him, to which Allen assented; but afterward sent several letters, to which defendant paid no other attention than to destroy them.

The defendant pronounces the proceeding a wicked conspiracy to extort money from him, a stranger, far from home.

Francisco Guiliozu and Col. Juan Togne, the General's interpreters, confirm his statement as to what transpired between the plaintiff and defendant.

Juan N. Navarro, Mexican Consul-General, and Francisco Zarco, a former Secretary of State in Mexico, testify to the plaintiff's admissions that he had no authorization from Gen. Ortega to enroll men for this scheme, the latter testifying that he went at Col. Allen's request to solicit such an authorization, but was refused.

Several others testify to having made inquiries from the defendant as to whether Allen had received any authorization, and that Gen. Ortega emphatically denied any such power, and denied that he had the power to give such authorization.

John S. Sheffrey, a soldier who had lost an arm in the United States service, made affidavit that he was induced to become Secretary of the Mexican company by the plaintiff's promises of pay and service in Mexico; that Allen never paid any money to emigrants, and none of any consequence to any connected with the business—only twenty-five cents to witness; Allen's character for veracity was bad, and he had deceived the deponent; that the characters of McNally and Kiernan for veracity were decidedly bad, and that they had been arrested as bounty-brokers and sent to Fort Lafayette, when Col. Baker made his raid in Hoboken.

Col. William Wilson called on Gen. Ortega to inquire about Allen's authority, and was informed by the General that he had given none, and that he was much annoyed by his proceedings; that his government and people were confident of final success, and waited patiently with implicit confidence for the open, friendly and active assistance of the United States. When that time came they would be prepared and glad to receive volunteers.

Col. Allen's reputation for veracity was bad; deponent would not believe him under oath; he had been dismissed the service for improper behavior in disgrace.

Col. Addison Farnsworth gave a bad character to Allen; he had been dismissed the service in disgrace, and, as deponent believed, also dismissed from the Police Department for disreputable conduct, and deponent knew of one instance of his swearing falsely.

Mr. Holmes, to oppose the motion, read a large number of affidavits.

Col. Allen's affidavit denied the statements of Gen. Ortega, that he was here on public business, adducing the letters of the Mexican Minister in support of it. He avers that he acted in strict conformity with his arrangements with Gen. Ortega, carrying his compliance with his wishes not to appear in the matter so far as sometimes to deny the connection. He does not claim he had an official authorization.

He charges Sheffrey with being of bad character, discharged by him as a thief, and says that he often gave him $1 or $2 at a time, with which he would get drunk. Col. Wilson's enmity arose from his interference as an inspecting officer with his very disorderly regiment, (Billy Wilson's Zouaves.) Deponent had never associated with Col. Wilson, owing to his well-known character. Farnsworth had once tried to assassinate deponent, and a charge had been made against him, but deponent had afterward been induced to withdraw it.

His connection with the Police Department was that of drill-master, and he had withdrawn of his own accord. His dismissal from the service was caused by Gen. Butler's malevolence; the President had not approved of it, but had authorized him to raise a fresh regiment.

Mr. McNally made a further affidavit, stating that he had repeatedly taken reports to Juan Tugno, who received them, and told him of Gen. Ortega's satisfaction with plaintiff's proceedings, and promised him money at an early day; that he told him of the discovery that several sub-agents were enrolling men for the Maximilian Government, and was thanked and desired to have them arrested, and that nearly 12,000 men had been enrolled here through Col. Allen's agency. He stated that the arrest in Hoboken was an entire mistake, and that shortly after he was discharged by Col. Baker.

Antonio Leichtenkuse and Emanuel Coula testified to the defendant's speaking of plaintiff in a friendly way, and the former to having carried many letters to the General.

Quite a number of the sub-agents of Allen swore to having been directed by the defendant to hold themselves subject to Allen's direction.

Kiernan and some others attacked the character of Sheffrey and alleged that he was discharged by Allen for stealing and had been discharged by others for drunkenness.

Frederick A. Tallmadge, formerly Superintendent of Police, Horatio N. Wild, ex-Councilman, and David C. Meschutt testified to the good character of Col. Allen. George A. Lynes, F. Frazer, Geo. D. Moya and George Dolan to the good character of Kiernan, and Edward H. Plum and others to the good character of McNally.

Mr. Parsons then summed up for defendant. He had not supposed but what the co-conspirators in this fillibustering scheme would come to the support of their head. The defendant occupied a high position, and would soon in his own country occupy a still higher one. If the plaintiff really made out a case, of course he would be entitled to his right. But he had not. The affidavits nowhere made out fraud in the contracting of the debt now on plaintiff's own showing. The affidavit of an intent to escape from the country fraudulently was only on information and belief, not one fact stated from which the court might form an opinion. He would not take up the time of the court by analyzing the improbable story.

Mr. Holmes argued at some length that the affidavits were ample to sustain the arrest.

The court, after some discussion on the legal points involved, took the papers and reserved its decision.

MEDICAL.

JUST PUBLISHED—SEMINALIA, A NEW work on sexual abuses, excesses and irregularities in either sex; the symptoms, consequences, causes, signs, nature and treatment; including stricture, nervousness, seminal gleet, depressed spirits, palpitations, gonorrhea, deranged menses, loss of beauty, &c., &c. It is written by a regular practising physician of great experience, and is intended to counteract the effects of the pseudo-medical trash so extensively urged on such sufferers. Price $1. Sold at No. 1 Vesey-st., or No. 80 Amity-st. Contents table mailed free.

THOUSANDS ARE TIMELY SAVED BY Dr. KENNEDY'S skillful and improved treatment.—Private diseases cured in the shortest possible time by Dr. KENNEDY & CO., No. 195 Elm-st., New-York, without the use of mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. KENNEDY, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. KENNEDY, No. 195 Elm-st. Call, send or write.

DR. DURANT INSURES THE LADIES a speedy relief from all special irregularities and obstructions at one interview. No. 7 Beach-st., New-York.

GENTLEMEN CAN, WITH CONFIDENCE, consult Dr. LEWIS, at his old-established office, No. 7 Beach-st., three doors from West Broadway, New-York.

MANY THOUSANDS ARE RUINED BEYOND REDEMPTION in this life by not calling on Dr. HUNTER sooner or later. He can cure the worst cases of secret disease in a shorter time than any other physician, or no pay taken. Skeptics and doubters will please call and read lists of reliable certificates of cures made within the last thirty years of almost hopeless cases, that had the benefit of dozens of our most eminent physicians and surgeons. Dr. Hunter is in constant attendance from 8 in the morning till 9 at night, at his old office, No. 3 Division-st., New-York City, since 1834. Charges moderate, and a cure guaranteed. Separate rooms, so that the patient sees no one but the Doctor himself. His wonderful medical discovery, DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures private diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, and possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. $2 per vial. Book, 50 pages, gratis, on nervous debility, causes of impotency, marasmus, &c.

THE REGISTRY YESTERDAY.

Total Number of Electors Registered Thus Far.

As was anticipated, in the wards where rival candidates have been most active in calling out their friends registering was quite brisk yesterday, in many of the districts more names being recorded than were taken on the first two days of the registry. But in other wards the apathy that was manifested in October was still observable, the record of the day's doings in some districts showing an addition of only from two or three to a score of names.

We publish a statement below of the total number of electors who have registered thus far, (excepting the figures of the Twenty-second Ward, which are imperfect,) with tables, also, giving the vote at the last Presidential election. The result of the first two days of registering gave a total of 52,024 names registered throughout the city; the total at the closing of the registry offices last night, as reported by the Police Telegraph, is 74,685, showing that 22,661 names were registered yesterday:

THOMAS MURPHY,

THE UNION CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR IN THE SEVENTH DISTRICT, embracing the 12th, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22d Wards of the City of New-York.

In old times, the office of State Senator was regarded as one of the most honorable and responsible in the government. Latterly, New-York City has been disgraced in the halls of the State capital by men who neither respected themselves or their constituents—by men reeking in debauchery and corruption. It is high time that the voters of New-York took an interest in reforming this disgraceful state of affairs. A government of the people cannot last long when its official representatives fail to respect themselves, and to honestly discharge the responsible duties of the offices to which they are elevated by their fellow-citizens. No man should be elected to the Legislature of the State whose necessities or whose past life are not a guarantee that he is above the reach of the robbers and jobbers who swarm around the State capital every Winter. What we require is, that only men of unswerving enterprise shall be elected. Office-seekers—men who are the paid agents of "rings," corporations or legislative speculators—ought to be avoided by honest voters, as they would contact with the plague or the small-pox. This is a duty the people owe to themselves. No rogue can ever misrepresent any of the Senatorial or Assembly Districts if the people do their duty.

In this connection we have a word to say of THOMAS MURPHY, the Union candidate for Senator in the Seventh Senatorial District of this city. Mr. MURPHY is a man of the people. By his indomitable will and perseverance he has worked his way up to a position of wealth and influence. Forced into the position of a candidate for the office of State Senator against his will by his fellow-citizens, he to-day stands before the people as an embodiment of the glorious results of our form of government. All he has of this world's goods, the blessings of a practical education which fits him to discharge intelligently the duties of citizenship, he owes to the free and liberal Government of the United States. There is not a man in the Empire State to-day who has a higher appreciation of the necessity of perpetuating in all its integrity the Government of the United States than

THOMAS MURPHY.—True, he may now and then cast a longing wish back to the Green Isle, or utter a silent prayer that he may yet live to see Ireland blessed with as free and liberal a form of government as that under which he rose to wealth and position in life; but still he is a true and loyal American citizen—one who glories in the title, and who was always willing and ready to give his last dollar for the preservation of what he regarded as the "promised land" for the oppressed people of the world. Such a man would make a worthy representative of the people. He is the sort of man who could be relied on in any emergency to discharge his duty fearlessly and honestly in the Senate of the State or elsewhere.]

Having sprung from the people, THOMAS MURPHY is emphatically a representative of the masses. He knows the wants and feelings of the toiling millions, and has always been regarded as their friend. As a workingman himself, or as an employer, he has always acted on the principle of "doing as he would be done by." His best friends are among those with whom he has done business as an employer or as a merchant. If the canvass could be decided by these men, he would get nine-tenths of the votes of the district. As it is, they are among his most active supporters, and everywhere give the most flattering testimony in his behalf.

Mr. MURPHY came to the City of New-York while quite a young man, and began life's struggle in the great city. At this time his whole worldly capital consisted of the clothes on his back and two dollars in money. A stranger among strangers, he spent his first dollar for a day's food, and a promise of employment from an intelligence office. But he possessed a brave heart and a resolute spirit, and resolved to hew his way to fortune as others had done before him. The result is that at the age of forty-two, while he is still in the prime of life, Mr. MURPHY has earned an honorable independence, which he freely uses in aid of any and every enterprise that commends itself to his judgment. No call for aid on behalf of patriotism, religion or suffering humanity has ever left his door unanswered. The poor boy who is struggling to get a foothold in life never appealed to "TOM MURPHY" for help in vain, and in this canvass he will find many a devoted advocate among the young men whom he has on different occasions lent his aid to in helping them up the ladder of better fortune. His generosity will meet with its own reward, even though he may never know that grateful hearts are now actively at work to confer on him the honors which his fellow-citizens seek to bestow.

THOMAS MURPHY is not a politician in the ordinary acceptation of the word. Previous to the unhappy repeal of the Missouri Compromise he took but little interest in party politics. That iniquity, however, aroused him to a sense of duty as it did thousands of other liberal-minded and just men. From that time to the present he has not only been a faithful worker for the cause of his country but has been one of the largest contributors of pecuniary means in aid of what he regarded to be the cause of truth and justice. As a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, he was a decided supporter of his Administration. Since the death of that great and good man he has ranked himself on the side of his successor, Andrew Johnson, in support of the policy which that wise President has laid down as the basis for a reconstruction of the Union of the States. But he is not a partisan in any sense. Mr. MURPHY regards every man as a political brother who faithfully and loyally supported the flag of his country during the war. During that trying period he was opposed to using party names at all, and even now he insists that every man who took up arms in defence of his country is orthodox in his politics.

Mr. MURPHY is not an office-seeker. He never held an office in his life. The nomination for the office of State Senator was forced on him. We know that he would have gladly declined the nomination tendered to him, and, indeed, offered to contribute $1,000 to the election of any other man than himself, who might be selected by the Union Convention; but he has finally submitted to considerations of duty in accepting the candidacy, and will be actuated by the same motives in filling the office to which he will undoubtedly be chosen. But it is as a citizen of unblemished integrity, and as a man above all blandishments or temptations of any nature, that Mr. THOMAS MURPHY is now presented for the State Senate by his fellow-citizens. Elected to the position for which he is a candidate, he will do honor to the district in which he resides.

UNION MEN OF THE SEVENTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT,

Take notice that George B. McLean, a candidate for the Senate, and now soliciting your votes, was one of the most active and ardent supporters of the Chicago Platform, and an unrelenting enemy of the Administration which triumphantly crushed out the rebellion, while THOMAS MURPHY, by his means and time worked unceasingly to sustain the government and the credit of the country. Friends of Andrew Johnson stand by THOMAS MURPHY.

THE RAILROAD COMBINATION.

Friends of good government, remember that the corrupt railroad combinations are moving Heaven and earth against THOS. MURPHY, the Union candidate for Senator in the Seventh Senatorial District, the enemy of venal legislation. It is well understood that both his opponents, Thos. C. Fields and George B. McLean are in league with the two opposing railroad factions who hope to carry through the Legislature next Winter their unrighteous schemes. They know they cannot use Mr. MURPHY; that he will not be made the tool to rob the citizens of New-York out of their rights. Vote, then, for Mr. MURPHY, who will oppose all the railroad plundering schemes.

THE NEXT UNITED STATES SENATE.

Friends of freedom in the Seventh Senatorial District, remember that the State Senator elected this Fall has a vote to cast for the next United States Senator to be elected. Mr. MURPHY is the friend and advocate of the policy enunciated by the people in the last Presidential election. His vote may decide whether a friend of freedom shall represent you in the Senate of the United States, or a sympathizer with Seymour, Fernando Wood & Co.

FERNANDO WOOD

is working like a beaver for Tom Fields for State Senator in the upper wards of the city. The leaders of Mozart and Tammany are as loving as turtle doves in the Seventh Senatorial District. They have fixed everything to suit themselves. But they seem to forget that the people have something to say on this subject. That great tribunal has decreed that THOMAS MURPHY is to be the next Senator from that district.

FRIENDS OF THOMAS MURPHY

and City Reform are your names registered? Let every friend of good government who resides in the Seventh Senatorial District see to it that his name is duly registered so that he may be able to vote for THOMAS MURPHY for Senator, on Tuesday next. It is also important to see that every name is erased that does not belong on the registry. Vigilance will be sure to result in victory.

WORKINGMEN,

by voting for THOMAS MURPHY for Senator of the Seventh District, you pay a just tribute to honest toil. Like yourselves, when TOM MURPHY started in life, his only capital was a clear intellect and his strong arms—the gift of his Maker. By perseverance and prudence he amassed wealth. While others were idle, he was storing his mind with knowledge which now enables him to take his place among the foremost men of his adopted country. The same career is open to every son of toil. In elevating him to the State Senate by your votes, you do honor to yourselves as well as to him.

MANY OF OUR BEST CITIZENS,

those most deeply interested in the welfare of our city—too often neglect the highest duty they owe to society, by failing to vote at our elections. When citizens of the high character of THOMAS MURPHY, at the urgent solicitation of their fellow citizens, accept nominations for Legislative positions, every good citizen should go to the polls and work for their election. We want this class of men to represent New-York City at Albany in this hour of peril. It is only by a concentrated effort of our taxpayers that we can hope for a reform of the abuses that now threaten to overwhelm us. So long as the better class of our people neglect this important duty, the taxeaters and ruffians must remain in power. To allow such candidates as THOMAS MURPHY to be defeated by the apathy of those most deeply interested in good government is to deter good men, for all time, from allowing their names to be used. In this way we give the city over to the undisturbed possession of the thieves and rowdies who have so long ruled and robbed us. Think of this, merchants and business men of the Seventh Senatorial District, and do your whole duty on Tuesday next. A united effort on the part of the friends of reform will make THOMAS MURPHY the next State Senator from that district. The election of an honest, upright and intelligent citizen ought to be a sufficient inducement to call out the full vote of the district.

A MEAN TRICK.

A circular has been sent to many prominent members of the Protestant Churches of the Seventh Senatorial District, appealing to them not to vote for THOS. MURPHY, the Union candidate for Senator in that district, on the ground that he is "a member of the Roman Catholic Church!" The man who got up that circular would steal a sheep. We had supposed that the race of politicians who made war on candidates for office on the ground of their religion was extinct in this part of the world. It appears that we were mistaken. All we have to say to the candidate who got up this mean attempt to drag a man's religion into the arena of politics is: Much good may it do him.

DANGER AHEAD.

The cholera is now sweeping over Europe, leaving death and desolation in its track. We dare not hope to escape an early visit from this dread scourge. Our great city is therefore on the very brink of a volcano which threatens its destruction. Cold weather may save us till Spring. In the meantime it should be the duty of every citizen who values his life, to labor to secure such legislation at Albany as will enable the intelligent and scientific men of New-York to make such preparations as will mitigate the horrors of a pestilence they cannot entirely prevent. Under these circumstances, what is our duty? We hold that the first thing to be looked after is the election of honest and intelligent Senators and Assemmen from the city. In the Seventh Senatorial District the contest lies between THOMAS MURPHY, the Union candidate, and Thomas C. Fields, the candidate of Tammany Hall. Every Union vote for McLean is one for Fields, while a vote for MURPHY is a vote to save New-York and protect the lives of its people. Men of New-York to the rescue. The question of life and death is pending in this contest.

AT A MEETING of the citizens of the Nineteenth Ward, held at Landman's Hamilton Park, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we congratulate the Union party of the Seventh Senatorial District upon the nomination of THOMAS MURPHY for Senator, and we hereby indorse and ratify the same, as one eminently proper. In Mr. MURPHY we recognize a self-made man of unsullied character and reputation, who has never held or sought a political position, and who, landing upon our shores upward of thirty years ago a poor emigrant, without a friend to aid or assist him, has, by his own indomitable will and perseverance, not only acquired an education which qualifies him for any position in life, but has by honest toil arisen to wealth and independence—a man who, in the days of his prosperity, does not forget those in adversity, but is ever ready to assist with his purse and to greet with his smiles of encouragement his less fortunate fellow-citizens of every nationality, who are struggling for a livelihood. Mr. MURPHY has shown by his unlimited acts of generosity that he is entitled to be called the poor man's friend and benefactor; and it is such men as he who should be elected to represent us in our legislative halls, and make laws for the government and protection of the people, and we do hereby earnestly call upon every voter of the district, without distinction of party, to rally to his support.

Resolved, That we heartily respond to the nomination of Adolf Levinger, Esq., a lawyer by profession, and a man of incorruptible honesty and integrity, as our candidate for Member of Assembly; and while we feel assured that no better selection could have been made, and express to him our gratification at his acceptance of that nomination, we urge upon all citizens of the district who are opposed to legislative corruption, to give to him their undivided support.

THOMAS MURPHY,

the Union candidate for State Senator in the Seventh District, respectfully declines having anything to do with the dirty personalities that too often disgrace a political canvass. One of his friends, the other day, sent him a letter, giving him some ugly items about one of the rival candidates. Mr. MURPHY promptly wrote back: "While I am obliged to you for the kind interest you take in my success as a candidate for the office of State Senator, I must nevertheless differ with you as to the course you suggest of assailing my opponents. I can have nothing to do with personalities. I do not seek the office, and am perfectly willing to leave the whole question in the hands of my fellow-citizens. If it is their will that I should represent them, they will say so at the polls. If not, I will be equally satisfied. But I must come out of the contest feeling that I have done nothing inconsistent with the character I have always labored to maintain among gentlemen."

VOTE EARLY!

Every friend of THOMAS MURPHY and honest legislation will be sure to vote before he goes to his place of business on Tuesday next. Intelligent citizens will not only discharge this duty for themselves, but, so far as they are able, will see that their neighbors are brought out also. A full Union vote will give THOMAS MURPHY from one to two thousand majority in the district.

MEN OF NEW-YORK!

The time has come when you must either acknowledge yourselves the slaves and vassals of the corrupt "Rings" that now control our City Government, or prove, by your acts, that you are capable of self-government and worthy of its blessings. It is in your power to hurl from power every obnoxious office-holder, and to fill his place with an honest citizen. Will you do it? If so, let your answer be felt and heard through the ballot-box on Tuesday next. The mighty tramp of an indignant people should make Manhattan Island tremble from one end to the other on that day. Every rough who has insulted and outraged the people should be sent reeling into everlasting obscurity. It can be done. All that is necessary to secure this result, is for the people to concentrate their strength and unite their votes for honest and upright men for the offices to be filled in November. We are glad to perceive that the honest masses in the Seventh Senatorial District are alive to the importance of making a united effort to elect an upright and incorruptible Senator. Men of all parties in the five upper wards are combining to secure the triumphant election of THOMAS MURPHY as a representative of the honest vote of that district. Unless the signs of the times are woefully at fault, this movement will be triumphantly successful. What can be done in the Seventh Senatorial District ought to be done in the whole city. Is not the prize worth the effort it will cost?

FRIENDS OF SANITARY REFORM,

look to your Senators and Assemblymen. On your representatives to the next Legislature will devolve the duty of passing such laws as will protect our city from desolation during the coming Summer. THOS. MURPHY, the Union candidate for Senator in the Seventh District, will do his whole duty if elected. Hence he will be supported by every citizen who realizes the importance of the question at issue. The friends of sanitary reform should see that no man is elected this year whose position is doubtful on this all-important matter.

THE MERCHANTS

who have done business with THOMAS MURPHY, the Union candidate for Senator in the Seventh Senatorial District, have published the following card to the voters of the upper wards of the city. This paper tells its own story. The signers represent all parties:

The undersigned most cordially recommend THOMAS MURPHY to the Electors in the Seventh Senatorial District for Representative of the District in the Legislature.

He is a merchant of long standing in the community, in the same line of business with ourselves; of sterling integrity, and one of our most popular and esteemed citizens.

Having had intimate business relations with him for a long series of years, we take pleasure in testifying to his worth as a merchant and a citizen. He is eminently worthy of the warmest support of the District.

EVERY UNION MAN

who casts a vote for McLean, in the Seventh Senatorial District, indirectly helps Fields. Our friends generally are beginning to realize that THOMAS MURPHY can be elected, and we feel quite confident that the Union men of the District will not be cheated out of their votes, by being led to go for any candidate, when they have such a man as MURPHY as their standard-bearer.

THE PHYSICIANS

are taking an active part in aiding the election of THOMAS MURPHY as the next State Senator from the Seventh Senatorial District. They appreciate the necessity of having an honest and intelligent representative to grapple with the grave and serious questions that will come before that body during the coming Winter. Hence we are not surprised at the zeal and activity they manifest in this canvass.

OUR TAXES.

New-York is groaning over the weight of the taxation put on its people by the extravagance and corruption of the heads of departments and their political partisans. It is quite natural that these office-holders should be anxious to secure the election of Senators and Assemblymen favorable to the perpetuation of this state of things. The people, however, are interested in breaking up this whole system, root and branch. To make sure work of it, they propose to elect such men as THOMAS MURPHY to represent them in the State Legislature.

THE FIREMEN,

who live in the Seventh Senatorial District, are actually supporting the cause of THOMAS MURPHY for Senator in the Seventh District. Some of the strongest Democrats among them are out for him openly. Indeed, from what we can gather, Mr. MURPHY will get a very large vote outside of the political party whose distinctive candidate he is. The people have confidence in his ability and integrity, and they regard it as a piece of good fortune to be able to secure such a man to represent them at Albany.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

would be saved to the tax-payers of New-York, if we could send four State Senators to Albany of the character of THOMAS MURPHY, to say nothing of the other benefits that would result from having only that class of representatives at the State Capital. The business men of the Seventh Senatorial District seem to be alive to their own interests in this matter. They are working with a will to secure MURPHY'S election.

AS THE ELECTION APPROACHES

It becomes every voter to know well what constitutes duty and action. Know your men—the candidates—know them well. Look into their antecedents, and weigh well the responsibility about to be vested in them. You want good and honest men to represent your interests in the legislative councils—those who will dethrone corruption and throw knavery overboard. The State of New-York has had too much of it already, and now it is full time to awake to a sense of justice on the part of a tax-paying community. Among the many nominations made, that of THOMAS MURPHY stands forth in shining character, like gold, fresh from the mint. He has been nominated for State Senator, and a more honest, upright man does not exist. The Seventh District, comprising the 12th, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22d Wards of our city, have done honor to THOMAS MURPHY, and he must be elected. Let the voters of the Seventh District stand by THOMAS MURPHY on the 7th of November, and victory will be sure to crown their efforts.

REV. DANIEL T. WOOD, Middletown, N. Y., writes: "By the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Hair Dressing the hair has greatly thickened upon my head, and put on a very healthy appearance. The same is true of my daughter; her hair had become thin and came out constantly, until we thought the head would be almost bare; her hair has handsomely thickened up, and also has a healthful appearance."

Renewed his Age.

REV. M. THATCHER, of New-York, in a letter, says: "My age is sixty. One year ago my hair was very gray and falling. I used Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer according to directions, and now my hair is restored to its natural color, and has ceased to fall.

The Zylobalsamum I have found the best and most agreeable hair dressing I have ever used."

Valuable Testimony.

REV. A. WEBSTER, Boston, Mass., writes: "I have used, through the advice of personal friends, Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum, for several months past, with great effect and entire satisfaction. I am now neither bald nor gray; my hair was dry and brittle, but has regained the softness of its earlier years."

For Children's Hair.

MRS. CLARK, wife of Rev. D. W. Clark, Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "I have used Mrs. S. A. Allen's Zylobalsamum with much satisfaction in dressing my own and children's hair. After trying various articles, I feel no hesitation in recommending yours as the best I have ever used. It gives the hair a soft, glossy appearance, and retains it in any position desired."

His Wife Approves.

REV. I. MOORE, late agent American Bible Union, writes: "I have used Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Hair Dressing, and it has also been used by my wife. We unqualifiedly pronounced them the best preparations we have ever used—in which declaration many friends join us."

A Fine Head of Hair.

REV. J. H. CORNELL, New-York City, says in a letter: "I procured Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum for a relative. I am happy to say it prevented the falling off of the hair, and restored it from being gray to its natural glossy and beautiful black."

Get the Best.

REV. C. A. BUCKBEE, Treasurer of the American Bible Union, New-York, writes: "I very cheerfully add my testimony to that of numerous other friends, to Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum. The latter I have found superior to anything I have ever used."

Valuable Articles.

REV. J. WEST, No. 6 Washington-place, Pacific-st., Brooklyn, L. I., says, in a letter: "I am happy to bear my testimony to the value and efficacy of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and World's Hair Dressing, in the most liberal sense. They have restored my hair where it was bald, and where gray, to its original color."

The Loomis Murder.

FULL PARTICULARS.

The Utica Herald of the 1st inst. contains full details of the murder of George W. Loomis by a mob at Sangerville, in this State:

"The old homestead of the Loomis's, and the house where the murder was committed, is a subst ntial appearing two-story structure, situated in the town of Sangerfield, five miles south of the village of Waterville, and four miles from Sangerfield Centre. The house is one in which the family have resided for some forty years, and is upon a valuable farm of from three to four hundred acres. The family upon Tuesday, the day of the murder, consisted of Mrs. Loomis, her four sons, 'Wash,' Grove, Denio and Plum; Cornelia, a daughter, and five or six laborers or domestics. Between one and two o'clock yesterday morning the family were awakened by hearing men walking through the wood house and kitchen. They heard them go to 'Wash's' sleeping-room, situated upon the south side of the house, ground floor, and one of them call out, 'Get up, Wash, I want to see you.' The men then retreated, and in a few moments they heard 'Wash' go to the kitchen in his stocking-feet. In a few moments the family heard the men go up stairs and call to Grove (whose sleeping room was in the second story,) 'Grove get up.' He answered that he would, and in a short time did so and went down to the kitchen. Immediately the cry of 'murder' was heard and a scuffle. The daughter, Cornelia (her room being down stairs,) now went to the kitchen door and demanded admittance, at the same time endeavoring to open it. She was met from the inside by a man with a pistol, who threatened to shoot her if she did not go away. This man she is positive she will be able to identify. She retreated, in the meantime hearing cries from inside the room. At this juncture, Denio and Plum ran to a neighbor's for assistance. The struggle going on in the kitchen soon ceased, and Cornelia ventured to return. She found Grove senseless upon the floor, with a grain bag, containing a few oats, which had been saturated with some inflammable fluid, and which was on fire, lying upon his body. Several articles of clothing also, hanging about the room, were saturated in a similar manner, and on fire. Other garments, in like condition, had been thrown into the wood-box. With the aid of the family the flames were soon extinguished. Grove was horribly beaten, and, we believe, shot. A large, broken revolver, afterward found upon the premises, is supposed to have been the instrument with which the deed was done. Grove, upon being removed to another room, was found to be conscious, but a new calamity was now discovered. The large barn opposite the house (built upon the site of the one destroyed a year since by incendiarism) was discovered to be on fire. The barn, together with six or seven valuable horses which it contained, the estimated value of some of them being $2,000, was consumed. Upon returning to the house search was made for 'Wash.' He was found lying in a woodshed, back and west of the kitchen, in an unconscious state, covered with blood, and so badly beaten and disfigured that, by his countenance, they were unable to recognize him. There were two or three fractures of the skull, his eyes were swollen from the blows he had received, and his entire face terribly lacerated. He remained in an unconscious state until about noon yesterday, when he expired.

Dr. S. G. Wolcott, of Utica, who had been summoned by the family, arrived at the house a few moments after the death of 'Wash.' He gave it as his opinion that 'Wash' came to his death by blows from a slung-shot. Grove's case is very critical indeed. Inflammation of the brain may set in and death ensue. 'Wash' Loomis was about 43 years of age and Grove is some 35. Both were small men, but strong and athletic.

Members of the family express themselves as confident of being able to identify some of the assailants, of whom they think there are five or six, and rumor has singled out this and that one as the murderers."

Homicide in Philadelphia—A Boy Instantly Killed.—On Tuesday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, a youth named Michael Fitzgerald, was shot and instantly killed in a tavern at Paschallville, in the Twenty-fourth Ward, kept by Mr. John Neild. From an eye-witness of the affair, we learn that the young men of the neighborhood dressed themselves in fancy costume, and assembled at the tavern of Mr. Neild, to celebrate Hallow Eve. While all was merriment and jollity, three men entered the place for the purpose of getting some liquor. After they had been waited upon by the bartender they disputed about paying, and commenced a quarrel with one of a party of boys who came there to give a serenade. This created quite a confusion and uproar. John Conner, one of the three, started for the door, and just at this moment the boy Fitzgerald made his appearance at the door. John Conner levelled a pistol at deceased and fired, killing him almost instantly. Officer Hill, of the Twenty-fourth Ward Police, was in the neighborhood and soon on the spot. He arrested John Conner, Patrick, his brother, and Louis Vessels. On the way to the station-house Patrick Conner and Louis Vessels made their escape. After this occurred the officer accompanied John Conner to his house, for the purpose of informing his parents of what had occurred. On reaching the house Conner went into a second-story room and made his escape from a window while the officer was below. The officer then obtained assistance, procured a carriage, and tracked his former prisoner to the Gray's Ferry Bridge, and succeeded in again capturing him on the east side of it. Conner was disguised about the face with a heavy pair of false whiskers. The accused was taken to the Twenty-fourth Ward Station-house, and, subsequently, Patrick Conner and Vessels were captured, and confined in the same place to await the action of the Coroner. The deceased is represented as being a very inoffensive boy. He resided with his parents in Darby, and was about 18 years of age. John Conner, the alleged murderer, is apparently about 30 years old.

Coroner Taylor held an inquest on the body of the deceased yesterday afternoon at the place where the murder was committed. The Coroner's jury, after deliberating, found the following verdict: "That the said Michael Fitzgerald came to his death from a gun-shot wound at the hands of John Conner, at the American Eagle Hotel, Darby Road, on the night of Oct. 31, 1865; and we also find that Patrick Conner and Louis Vessels were accessory before the fact."—Philadelphia Ledger, Nov. 2.

Kit Carson—His Personal Appearance.—Kit Carson and Col. Bent called on Gen. Pope this morning at 10 o'clock, and had a somewhat lengthy interview.

From a hurried glance of the famous mountaineer, while waiting a few moments in the ante-room at headquarters, we judged him to be a man below the medium size, rather squat in stature, of compact, iron frame, and a countenance besprinkled with slight wrinkles, betokening an expression of great determination and reserved power.

He appeared reserved, modest, and of a retiring nature, as is often characteristic of men of positive character. His countenance was bronzed from exposure, and a gentleman who met him said, "There goes an Indian."

Kit was dressed in a Colonel's uniform, with rather broad shoulder-straps, and his dark hair, slightly sprinkled with gray, flowed down upon his shoulders a la waterfall. He wore a rather broad-brimmed felt, and altogether presented the appearance of a sturdy little man, destitute of all pretension.

Word soon came from Gen. Pope to admit the two gentlemen into his private room, and Kit took off his felt hat and gently bowed himself into the presence of the Commanding General. Col. Carson served as a Brigadier under Gen. Crocker, in New-Mexico.—St. Louis News, Oct. 27.

The Bones of Red Jacket—A Singular Family Relic.—A writer in the Albany Evening Journal, who has been visiting the Cattaraugus Indian Reservation, says:

"The bones of Red Jacket are not buried, but are kept at the house of his descendants, in a wooden chest. On the death of the great chief, he was buried on the Buffalo Reservation. The stone over his grave gradually was chipped away, and the memorial otherwise defaced by too eager memento-hunters. The Indians meantime removed to this reservation. Leading gentlemen of Buffalo determined to place his remains in the new city cemetery, beyond the reach of the over-curious, and honor them with a monument. Accordingly, they procured a leaden coffin; but his family, on learning their purpose, refused to accede to it, and demanded the dust of the great orator, and ever since have tenaciously held all that remains of him. Measures are now on foot, however, under the auspices of the Buffalo Historical Society, to give the bones appropriate burial."

SOUTHERN ITEMS.

—Sundry citizens of the parishes of Caddo and Bossier, Louisiana, have memorialized Gov. Wells to the effect that there are indications of serious difficulty among the negroes. They state that it is known that on some of the largest plantations in the hill lands, especially of Caddo, nearly all the negro men are armed with guns, pistols, etc., which they do not attempt to conceal, and that they are even now exercising themselves in the use of them. They have in some way got the idea that, after Christmas, the plantations are to be divided among them; and their prejudices against the whites have been so excited "that a well-grounded apprehension pervades the country population, and many persons are already preparing to abandon their homes in the country before the Christmas holidays, and will do so, unless some action is taken to disabuse the negro of his present sanguine expectations, and assure the white man against the danger of assassination, and even greater horrors than assassination itself." The petitioners want arms, ammunition and permission to organize for mutual protection.

—Bolling Hall, Jas. H. Clanton and other prominent citizens of Alabama, have issued an appeal to the planters of the State to meet in convention at Montgomery, Oct. 18, to devise means to reorganize labor and to provide for the "ignorant black man."

—R. F. Lehman, who is a candidate for Congress in the Second District of North Carolina, has replied to sundry interrogatories made by his constituents. He says that he belongs to the National Union party, and that he can take the test oath.

—Gen. Canby has issued an order at New-Orleans, dated Oct. 18, revoking all the restraints or conditions heretofore imposed by military authority on the sale or transfer of lands in Louisiana.

—James Rosier, who is well known in Louisiana politics, has declined to run for Congress in the Second District. He says that he belongs to the National Union party.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

—A French gentleman named Viallet has bequeathed to the Prince Imperial a "Stradivarius" violin, in "gratitude for the manner in which His Majesty, Napoleon III., Emperor of the French, when President of the Republic, so disinterestedly devoted his own life to save France from the anarchy with which she was menaced in 1852."

—A man named Buhler, residing at Berne, was in the habit of training dogs to perform tricks, and sometimes cruelly ill-treated them. A few days since he brutally beat a little dog which would not obey his order, and while doing so one of his large dogs sprang forward, seized him by the throat, and bit him so severely that he died on the following day.

—The celebrated mechanical duck of Vaucanson is now being exhibited in the Rue de Paris, at Havre, in a small museum which takes its name from that illustrious mechanician. The bird, standing on a sort of box, shakes its wings, eats, drinks and imitates nature so accurately that the other day a dog flew at it, without, however, doing any mischief.

—The Chronique Musicale has discovered a coincidence between the cholera and the production of a new opera by Meyerbeer. In 1832 the epidemic followed the first performance of "Robert," in 1849 it came with the "Prophete," and in 1854 with "l'Etoil du Nord." And now in 1865 we have "l'Africaine." Is the cholera really on its way?

—Sir Roundell Palmer, M. P., the Attorney-General, was present at a meeting held in the village of Atwick, in Holderness, to promote the objects of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. The honorable and learned gentleman made an earnest appeal on behalf of missionary efforts.

—Three persons have been rescued during the bathing season from positions of danger while bathing from gentlemen's machines at the Wish, Eastbourne, who respectively tendered to their rescuer the sums of 5s., 2s. 6d. and 8d. The eight-penny gentleman could not have entertained very exalted ideas of his own worth.

—In the year 1841, the quantity of tobacco consumed in the United Kingdom was such as to average 13¾ ounces per head of population. In the year 1851 it had risen to 1 pound ⅛ ounce per head; in the year 1861, to 1 pound 3½ ounces; in the year 1863, to 1 pound 4¼ ounces.

—The Newcastle Chronicle reports several other stackyard fires in the north. At Barlow, near Winlaton, twenty stacks in the yard of a farmer, named Robson, were consumed on the 2d, and on the same day, Mr. John Thompson, of Burnopfield, had eleven stacks destroyed. Incendiarism is suspected in both cases.

—The French papers are quizzing the Belgians on account of a musical festival which was lately held near Maubeuge. Prizes were given to one choral society "pour sa belle tenue," to another for being the most numerous, and to a third for having come from the greatest distance. The only thing the committee forgot to award was a prize for good music.

—A letter from Bucharest says that the abdication of Prince Couza is being seriously contemplated by the neighboring Powers. Two candidates for the sovereignty of the Principalities are being brought forward—Prince Bibesco by Austria, and Gen. Floresco by Russia.

—On the 1st, when the King of the Belgians was driving along the Rue Royale, Brussels, the horses of his carriage stumbled and fell. The accident put the animals into such a fretful temper that the King would not trust himself to them again, but returned to the palace on foot.

—A Prussian private soldier was elbowing his way through a crowd at Berlin, when he was hustled by the people. He then drew his sword and wounded some unfortunate individual in the head. Ultimately he was rescued from the mob and taken to the guardhouse, amidst cries of "Ott" and "Eulenburg."

—Turkey has been startled by the rumor of a great innovation perpetrated by the Sultan. It is said that he is having his portrait painted by a French artist, M. Guillemet. Hitherto all representations of the human form have been deemed profane by the true Mahometans.

—The late Mayor of Rochefort was greatly ridiculed by the local press on account of a decree by which he forbade any one in the town to sell mushrooms. A new Mayor has now been appointed, who began his tenure of office by annulling the decree of his predecessor.

—The Comte Cavour, a Turin journal, confidently announces that the problem of perpetual motion has been solved by M. Loucre Rizzo, a mechanic of Strasburg, who, the same journal asserts, has invented a machine which finds its motive force within itself without any external aid.

—The Memorial de la Loire announces the early publication of a volume containing the speeches of the Duke de Persigny, his principal acts as minister, and extracts from his book on the Pyramids. It is said that this selection will be preceded by a political preface.

—The waters of the Seine, in consequence of the continued dry weather, have fallen to the lowest possible point. In Paris hundreds are engaged in exploring the bed of the river, where exposed, with the view of finding trinkets, kitchen utensils, metal or other objects.

—There are now published in Bombay three daily newspapers in English, five weeklies, five fortnightlies, three monthlies, besides three daily journals in the Gujarati tongue, a score of weeklies, and numerous other periodicals in various native dialects.

—The rinderpest having made its appearance in Lower Austria, the imperial authorities at Salzbury have declared that no cattle can be allowed to pass into that province unless each animal has a properly legalized certificate of health.

—Prussia is preparing to strengthen her conquest; 2,500 men have been set to work near Düppel and Sonderburg to render the position more formidable than ever, and to finish part of the new redoubts before the Winter sets in.

—A corporal of gendarmerie, in the department of the Sarthe, has been created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor for informing against the Mayor of Montreuil, who for years had brutally ill-treated his daughter.

—Two Englishmen, who have resided a long time in Italy and become naturalized, are candidates for seats in the new Parliament. Mr. Waddington offers himself to the constituency of Gubbio, in Umbria, and Mr. Lowley to one in Tuscany.

—An earthern vase has been found at Ravenna containing nearly 300 gold pieces, bearing the effigies of Roman emperors of the first century of the Christian era. Their approximate value is set down at 20f. each.

—M. Skogman, a Finnish lawyer, is, it is said, traversing the northern district of Sweden and Norway, trying to get up a feeling amongst the people in favor of joining Finland and becoming subjects of the Czar.

—The poultry in the department of the Haute Vienna (France) have suffered severely from the prevailing epidemic. Many farmers have lost a tenth of their stock, and others have lost all.

—At Hartlepool, Mr. Thomas Ord, a dairyman, who had lost a number of his cows by the plague, died on the 30th, almost broken-hearted, his death no doubt having been accelerated by his loss.

—The Duke of Grammont-Caderousse has left the bulk of his fortune to his friend the Marquis of Gallifet. There is a legacy of 100,000 francs to a well-known actress.

—The Shah of Persia has sent a special agent to Europe, for the purpose of studying the present system of naval construction in France, England, and Holland.

—A railway is to be laid, under the superintendence of the Servian Government, between Belgrade and Alexinacz, near the Turkish fortress of Nissa.

—The Emperor of Morocco has permitted telegraphic wires to be laid in his dominions.

—The discoverer of nicotine, Chevalier Gaspare Cerioli, died recently at Cremona.

—Abd-el-Kader's journey homeward has been interrupted by illness at Smyrna.

Each share will be entitled, from the coal mined by the company in any one year, to its proportionate share of said coal so mined at cost, not exceeding one ton per share, (or the profits thereon,) and a dividend of the profits from the product, beyond the amount delivered on the shares.

The property of this company is situated between the town of Scranton, Penn., and the Wyoming Valley Railroad and Coal Company's property, about one mile from Scranton, and adjoining the Wyoming Railroad and Coal Company. It is free and unincumbered, and the company has no debt of any kind. It is one of the best coal properties in the valley, being estimated to contain seven millions of tons of coal, almost the whole of which is above water level, and capable of producing from 100,000 to 150,000 tons a year.

Any shareholder not wishing to take his coal can have it sold by the company for his account, and receive the profit.

Subscriptions for a limited number of shares received by
WILSON, GIBSON & CO.,

PROPOSALS

Office Depot Commissary of Subsistence,
Washington, D. C., Oct. 31, 1865.

SALE OF HARD BREAD.

SEALED PROPOSALS, in duplicate, will be received at this office, until 12 M., on THURSDAY, Nov. 9, 1865, for the surplus at this and the Alexandria depots. The bread is packed in boxes of fifty (50) pounds each, and can be examined at 6th-st. wharf, in this city, or at the Subsistence Storehouse in Alexandria, Va. No bids will be received for less than twenty (20) boxes—one thousand (1,000) pounds. The price per pound and quantity desired will be stated in each proposal. It will be placed on transports in Alexandria, Va., or at 6th-st. wharf, free of expense to the purchaser. Twenty thousand boxes (50 pounds each,) more or less, can be purchased.

The attention of shippers, and others using pilot bread, is called to the advantages now offered for obtaining their supplies of this article.

The government reserves the right to reject bids.

Bidders not present will be notified by letter of the result of their proposals. All purchases will be removed within twenty days from the date of their acceptance.

Blank proposals, if desired, can be obtained from the undersigned.

Terms—Cash, in government funds, before the delivery commences.
G. BELL,
Major and C. S., U. S. A.

PROPOSALS FOR FORAGE AND STRAW.

Quartermaster's Office,
No. 17 State-st., New-York, Oct. 2, 1865.

Proposals are invited by the undersigned for the delivery of good, merchantable TIMOTHY HAY, on board of vessels at such wharf in New-York harbor as may be designated.

The hay and straw must be securely baled, and weigh two thousand (2,000) pounds per ton exclusive of wood.

Proposals must state plainly the quantity, price, and time of delivery.

The hay and straw will be inspected by a government inspector, and weighed before being shipped.

Proposals will also be received to deliver HAY and STRAW at Washington, D. C., Richmond, Va., an Hilton Head, S. C., subject to the above requirements.

Bids will be accepted from time to time to meet the requirements of the government.

Payments to be made on delivery, or as soon after as funds for the purpose shall be received.
STEWART VAN VLIET,
Brevet Brigadier-General and Quartermaster.

STEAMER FOR SALE.

Navy-Yard, New-York, Nov. 1, 1865.

Proposals will be received until the 14th of November, 1865, for the sale of the United States steamer WANDO, now lying at the Navy-yard, New-York.

This ship is built of iron, about 226 feet long, 26 feet beam, 11 feet 5 inches depth.

She has two oscillating engines; diameter of cylinder 52 inches, length of stroke 4 feet, tubular boilers and feathering paddle wheels.

She is a prize vessel, bought by government for $121,000. Her engines alone are said to have cost that amount. She has the reputation of being very fast; would make a first-rate mail steamer, or trader to ports where light draft steamers are necessary.

Terms—Twenty per cent., when the terms are agreed upon, and the remainder within six days, when the vessel must be removed from the yard.
CHAS. H. BELL, Commandant.

FOR PROVIDENCE DIRECT.

The new and staunch side-wheel steamer CITY OF PROVIDENCE, 900 tons burden, David P. Davis, Commander, will leave Pier No. 45 North River, every TUESDAY, THURSDAY and SATURDAY, at 4½ P. M. For freight or passage apply on board, or to E. PHILLIPS, No. 148 Pearl-st. Fare $2.

DAILY, FOR HARTFORD, SPRINGFIELD, Greenfield, Northampton, and other points, byrail, North, East and West of Hartford, and landing on the Connecticut River, steamers CITY OF HARTFORD and GRANITE STATE, from Peck Slip, New-York, at 4 P. M. First class fare, $2; second class, $1 50. These boats have first-class stateroom accommodations. For further information, inquire of SAXTON & SEABURY, No. 112 South-st., N. Y. D. A. MILLS, Agt, Hartford and New-York Steamboat Company.

FOR RONDOUT AND KINGSTON, LANDING at Cozzens, Cornwall, Newburgh, Marlborough, Milton, Poughkeepsie, West Park and Esopus, connecting with the Delhi and Ellenville stages. The new and elegant steamers JAMES W. BALDWIN, Capt. Jacob H. Tremper, MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS and FRIDAYS; THOMAS CORNELL, Capt. David Abbey, Jr., TUESDAYS, THURSDAYS and SATURDAYS; leaving New-York, foot of Jay-st., at 4 o'clock P. M.

DAILY LINE FOR BRIDGEPORT—ON and after MONDAY, Oct. 9, the steamer BRIDGEPORT will leave from Peck-slip, East River, daily, at 12 o'clock, noon, arriving in time to connect with the express train. Freight taken for the Naugatuck and Housatonic Railroad.

FOR NEW-HAVEN, HARTFORD AND WHITE MOUNTAINS—Steamers leave Peck-slip for New-Haven at 3:15 and 11 P. M., connecting with railroad.

FOR SALE—THE STEAMBOAT ROBERT MORRIS; length 225 feet, breadth of beam 24 feet; beam engine, cylinder, 56¼ inches diameter, 9 feet stroke. For particulars apply to H. C. FARRINGTON, 41 Jay-st., New-York.

STEINWAY & SONS'
GRAND, SQUARE AND UPRIGHT
PIANO-FORTES,

are now acknowledged the best instruments in America as well as in Europe, having taken thirty-two First Premiums, Gold and Silver Medals, at the principal fairs held in this country within the last ten years, and in addition thereto they were awarded a First Prize Medal at the Great International Exhibition in London, 1862, in competition with two hundred and sixty-nine pianos, from all parts of the world.

Among the many and most valuable improvements introduced by Messrs. STEINWAY & SONS in their Piano-fortes,

THE SPECIAL ATTENTION OF PURCHASERS is directed to their
PATENT AGRAFFE ARRANGEMENT.

The value and importance of this invention having been practically tested, in all their grands and highest-price square Piano-fortes, and admitted to be the greatest improvement of modern times, they now announce that they have determined to introduce their "Patent Agraffe Arrangement" in every Piano-forte manufactured by them, without increase of cost to the purchaser, in order that all their patrons may reap the full advantage of this great improvement.

Extract from the testimonial of the most distinguished Artists to STEINWAY & SONS:

Among the chief points of the uniform excellence of the STEINWAY Pianos are:

Greatest possible depth, richness and volume of tone, combined with a rare brilliancy, clearness, and perfect evenness throughout the entire scale, and, above all, a surprising duration of sound, the pure and sympathetic quality of which never changes under the most delicate or powerful touch.

We therefore consider the STEINWAY Pianos in all respects the best instruments made in this country or in Europe, use them solely and exclusively ourselves in public or private, and recommend them invariably to our friends and the public.

THE "PELOUBET ORGANS,"
Awarded by the American Institute, Oct. 19, 1865, a GOLD MEDAL,

were at the Fair of the Institute, just closed, first exhibited, and there put in direct competition with the Cabinet Organs of Mason & Hamlin. After a contest lasting more than five weeks they came off triumphantly victorious, being pronounced by leading musicians, critics and amateurs superior, both in manuals and pedals, in quality, variety and power of tone, and in number of combinations. Critically examined by a jury composed of Appleton, of Boston, and Jardine of New-York, organ builders; Berge, the well-known organist and director; Seymour, critic, and Dr. Ringer, organist and expert, they were awarded a Gold Medal as the best instruments of their class, or as expressed, "for the best Cabinet Organ, made by PELOUBET & SON." Thus indorsed, these Organs and Melodeons are offered as unsurpassed for Churches, Parlors or Schools. Price lists forwarded. General depot, J. M. PELTON, No. 841 Broadway, N. Y.
